Spectator Photographers Capture Basketball Action

KEEP AWAY—Worthington guard John Snouffer (20) looks for a friendly face to pass the ball to after skidding to a stop Friday in OCC opener vs Westerville. Closing in fast at right is Westerville defender Mike Selby.

TWO-WAY TUG-OF-WAR — Lancaster's Dave Miller (center) finds himself as the middle-man in this two-way tug-of-war with Walnut Ridge's Dave Goodyear (left) and Ed Stahl (54) Saturday. Goodyear is struggling to gain full possession of the basketball while Stahl obviously is equally determined to physically remove Miller from the court. Play ended in a jump ball but Scotties eventually lost out on scoreboard struggle as Gales rallied for 58-54 victory. (Spectator photo by Jack Wittenmeier).

'YW' Plans 'Hanging Of Greens' Dec. 12

A family dinner will be held at 6:30 p.m. followed by the program at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Russell Herrold, chairman of the Religious Resources Committee planning the event, says "We are so pleased to be able to bring together our families of varying faiths in one holiday celebration."

Russell Herrold will give the invocation. Rabbi Edward D. Kiner, his wife, Sharon, daughter, Deborah, and son, Seth will open the program with the celebration of "Hanukkah — The Festival of Lights."

Rabbi Kiner is assistant Rabbi at Temple Israel.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar C. Lucas, 445 Eastmoor Blvd., Mary, Elizabeth and Matthew, members of St. Catharine's Roman Catholic Church, will celebrate the Advent Season with the wreath and hangings.

The Rev. and Mrs. Nathan VanderWerf, members of St. Andrew Presbyterian Church, and sons, Duane and Stan, will share their observance of Christmas Eve in the home.

Dr. and Mrs. Yukio Mikawa and daughter, Kazuko, will present the Buddhist celebration of the New Year.

The program will close with Dr. and Mrs. W. Keith Wearly, and daughter, Holly, 2575 Leeds Ave., showing the YWCA family celebrating the Hanging of the Greens. Mrs. Wearly is president of the YWCA Board of Directors.

Members of the Shiloh Baptist Church Choir, directed by Frank Cleveland, Jr., with James White, pianist and Mrs. Madoline Johns, organist, will present music of each faith as the families present their celebrations.

The public is invited to call the YWCA at 224-9121 to make reservations for dinner ($2 adult, $1.25 children under 12 years).

No reservation is needed for the program.

Christmas Antique Show And Sale To Be At Vets

Central Ohio Christmas shoppers will be given the opportunity of finding a gift for their favorite person on their shopping list as the Annual Giant Christmas Antique Show and Sale is held at Veterans Memorial Friday, Saturday and Sunday, December 6, 7 and 8.

Eighty-eight dealers from all over the nation will display a variety of antiques and collectibles that range from the very fragile to the indestructibly sturdy, from the strikingly beautiful to the frankly amusing and whimsical.

In addition, these dealers who have combed markets all over the country, will also feature tiny miniatures to imposing pieces of furniture or decorator pieces.

One dealer even travels into countries with remote villages that are inaccessible by auto and where no English is spoken to acquire the one-of-a-kind Oriental rugs that he will have in his exhibit.

Other displays at the show, which has as its theme, "Give An Antique for Christmas," will include china, silver, pewter, primitives, dolls, toys, toils, furniture, jewelry, clocks, lamps, books, art glass, pattern glass, picture frames, maps, prints, oil paintings, tapestry, statuary, coins, and other decorator accessories, objects d'art, and memorabilia.

Show hours will be from 1 to 10 p.m., Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 6, 7 and 8.

Antique Show visitors will find parking close to the Veterans Memorial Building, 300 W. Broad St.

Food service in the building will be available.

corner, the neighbor next to you, that it is impossible to name everyone and thank everyone individually. I would like to say, however, that the special help from the Mayor, the Governor, the press, especially The Spectator, radio and television gave the campaign the needed start to spell success for the band's trip.

I want to thank them for their help. I want also to say thanks to the dedicated band parents who worked so hard to make the drive a success.

Thanks, too, to Milt Lesnauer of BBF, who had the faith in the band to put in the first large donation; George Byers, who gave up his radio time for band promotion and, well, the list goes on and on as you know.

To list everyone would be impossible. To all of you who shared this Rose Bowl dream with these fine young people, thank you most sincerely. I hope the thrill of seeing the West Band on coast-to-coast television viewed by almost 100 million people will be of great satisfaction to you and part payment for your investment in youth.

Welfare–

won't be felt for some time—if at all."

Canary added that when Congress put the freeze on, they felt the effects of the WIN program would hold the caseload steady.

FRANKLIN COUNTY Commissioners Robert Southwick, Henry Koontz and Jacob Shawan had supported the WIN program as a way of reducing caseloads.

However, Canary said the WIN program "can't in the near future have an effect, and whether it can ever or not is not sure at this time."

At the present time, he continued, "there doesn't seem to be any reasonable hope that the WIN program can reverse this trend (of rising caseloads). The only hope seems to be the repeal of that provision."

The effects of such a federal withdrawal would entail a $3 per month loss to each ADC recipient and would reduce the levels of subsistence in Ohio to a possible 79 per cent of actual needs The current subsistence level is 83.5 percent.

While this may seem a small reduction, Canary said "I think it is generally recognized that the average payment to families now is minimal and that any reduction would be extremely serious for any family."

RAY F. McKENNA, a state welfare official, spelled out what the new provision would mean.

If in July, 1969, for example, there were 200,000 children on the ADC rolls and 168,000 on the same rolls in January, 1968, some 30,000 receiving aid would be affected to the tune of $22 a month in lost funding.

In July, McKenna estimated, the state would lose $500,000 in matching federal funds. The estimated cut probably would affect all recipients.

The cutbacks, in reality, may signify federal withdrawal from this particular public assistance program.

Those familiar with the Ohio Legislature doubted if the state would or could pick up the financial tab created by the withdrawal.

WHILE A SPOKESMAN in Gov. James A. Rhodes' office said he was not aware of any pending state action, Canary said he believed the governor had corresponded with all members of the Ohio delegations in Congress (concerning public welfare).

It is also believed Gov. Rhodes discussed this problem with President-Elect Richard Nixon during a recent get-together.

It remains a moot question whether legislators could make up the difference in costs as a result of federal cutbacks and explain such "welfare expenditures" to their constituents.

While jobs have increased in the state, so have welfare rolls. This deceiving statistic has left many Ohio citizens wary of increased public assistance spending.

But rising costs have been tied in with the fact that more people not previously covered by public assistance programs now are being covered — a fact often overlooked by the average citizen.

Whether or not county governments could help pick up some of the loss July 1, 1969, is, at this stage of the game, unknown.

WORSHIP IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

SHORT OF A MIRACLE

Rome's Coliseum, partly tumbled into ruin, is considered one of the wonders of the world. It was built in 80 A. D.—and that is a long time ago, to be sure. Yet it is but a second when measured against the ages that have passed since God created the world.

The Coliseum—wonder that it is—is also visible proof of the limit of man's accomplishments. We consider it nothing short of a miracle that something built by man has endured that long. Yet those things created by God remain endless and eternal.

God's works should, indeed, fill even the wisest of us with wonder, with awe, and with gratitude. We tend to take them all too much for granted. We tend, at times, to forget them—and even to forget Him—entirely.

Discover God again, in the church of your choice and in the process, rediscover yourself.

Boosters, Young And Old, Aid West Band Drive

"Everyone wants to get on the band wagon" was the slogan at Binns Elementary School this week when the Class of 1919 of West High school joined the Class of 1976, Mrs. Fontabelle Harris' fifth grade, in presenting money to the Rose Bowl-bound West Band.

John Hill, five-year-old son of band director James L. Hill, accepted the donations [illegible] presented shares of stock A [illegible] Billion Dollar Band [illegible] by Gov. James A. Rhodes, Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner and Jack Davies, band parents' president. John, a kindergartner at Binns, will be a member of the Class of 1981 at West.

Mrs. Irene Buttner of 4150 W. Broad St., treasurer, and Mrs. Blanche Willis of Groveport, secretary, said the Class of 1919 made the purse for the band when correspondence began in planning the golden anniversary reunion next June. Class members still living of the 76 graduates number 57 and reside in almost every state in the union.

West's band, which rehearses and marches on the Hilltop every morning, visited Binns school recently and played for the elementary students outside the building. Mrs. Harris said her students decided to give their entire project money to the band for its Rose Bowl trip. Students wrote the band:

"We are very happy to be enclosing $1.85 to West High. We hope you get to go to the Rose Bowl this year. We were going to use the money to buy clay to make Christmas gifts. We thought the band trip would be a more worthy cause. I hope you accept this money.

"Our class enjoyed the concert you put on over here at Binns. We are also very happy that our school gave a check of $25 to West High School Band. Well, there's not very much we can say. We hope you can go to the Rose Bowl."

Hill said the fund campaign will conclude Dec. 24 when the parents group hopes to have reached the $43,000 goal needed for the actual [illegible]es, now some $5,000 short. In addition to financing the trip, the parents have undertaken the purchase of nine new chrome-plated bass horns at a cost of $6,450 and chrome plating for the other school-owned instruments at $2,500.

When the project is completed, West's will be the only all chrome high school band in the nation and will have the only chrome-plated bass horns in the world. Chrome plating, in addition to adding durability to the instruments, creates a breathtaking dazzle when the band marches, Hill said.

He is personally supervising the chrome-plating of the new bass horns in night sessions at Lancaster Electro Plating which is working continuously to complete the project by Dec. 29 when the band will leave for California.

Projects scheduled to put the fund campaign over the top include a headpin tourney at Western Lanes the first three weekend in December; a basketball game between Columbus AAU and Akron Goodyear at the Coliseum Saturday evening when the YMCA "Over 30" team will meet West faculty members in a pre-game encounter (Dec. 7); the benefit display of the original 50 star flag and an appearance by its designer, Bob Heft of Lancaster at Great Western Shopping Center Dec. 14-15 and the sale of Christmas trees at Krogers.

Band members will form brass choirs and play Christmas carols throughout the Hilltop area Dec. 23-24 in appreciation of support given them by area residents.

Six mile marches have been scheduled every Saturday and every day during the holiday week (except Christmas) at 7 a.m. on the new I-270 preparatory to the California event.

A first for the Tournament of Roses parade will be the marching of Ohio State and West bands in the New Year's day event. Carl Hoelscher, music chairman of the Tournament of Roses committee, said for the first time in the history of the Pasadena event, a Rose Bowl participant was named from the same city in which a high school band had been chosen earlier to march in the parade.

With the Buckeyes in the Rose Bowl and Ohio State and West bands led by Bob Hope, former Ohioan as parade marshal, the parade theme, "A Time To Remember," will certainly apply to the nostalgic residents of the Wonderful World of Ohio.

Christmas Choral Music Set At OSU

The Ohio State University Chorus and Orchestra with the University Women's Glee Club and student/faculty soloists will present a concert of choral music of Christmas on Sunday afternoon at 3, in Mershon Auditorium.

The traditional performance of Handel's "Messiah" will be replaced by Bach's "Magnificat" and Benjamin Britten's "St. Nicholas" cantata.

A nominal admission fee is being charged.

Concert Slated

A Christmas Concert will be given by members of the Women's Music Club, Sunday, Dec. 8, at 2:30 p.m. in the Little Theatre of the Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts.

The public is invited.

A reception will be held in the foyer after the concert.

The program follows: Christmas selections by The Women's Music Club Bell Choir, Juanita Harrison, director.

Piano solo by Vivian Ripley.

UCC Christmas Bureau Ready To Help Needy

United Community Council's Christmas Bureau is now in operation, helping those who want to give money, toys, food or clothing to needy families for Christmas.

The Christmas Bureau acts as a referral service, bringing together individuals or organizations wishing to help and agencies whose clients need holiday help. Last year more than 3,100 families received help.

Lists of needy families have been submitted to UCC by nearly 40 social agencies, churches and other groups. Also included are the types of gifts needed. Lists are cross-checked to be sure there is no duplication.

When a person calls offering Christmas help, he is re- addresses of the people being helped are kept confidential, although information will be given out on the children's ages, sizes of clothing needed and special requested gifts.

In many cases, a cash donation enabling the parents to purchase needed items, is most appreciated.

People wanting to help their less fortunate Franklin ferred to an agency whose clients need the kind of gift offered. The agency then makes sure the gift gets to the right person. Names and County neighbors can contact United Community Council Christmas Bureau, 137 E. State St., 228-5696.

FRUIT CAKES

Fruit cakes can be kept almost indefinitely if they are properly wrapped and stored. Simply sprinkling orange juice over the cake periodically keeps it from drying out and adds a touch of flavor as well.

KENT GIRLS PLACE SECOND

JIM MURRAY
Woody—My Favorite Diplomat

Don't Call Us, Call Jim!

To put our insurance company and the Columbus Fire Department at ease, we are obliged to report that Jim Murray does not work out of The Spectator Newspaper office.

All insults, effigies and similar abuses—whether verbal or physical—should be directed to: Jim Murray, Los Angeles Times Syndicate, Times Mirror Square, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.

—The Spectator Sports Dept.

OK, everybody, shape up! Wayne Woodrow Hayes and the Scarlet Scourge of Ohio State is coming to the Rose Bowl.

THERE'LL HAVE to be a few changes made.

First of all, of course, the Rose Parade is OUT.

Disturbs the concentration of the players.

MURRAY

If they play their cards right, Woody may let them bring a recording. He hasn't made up his mind about card tricks.

Sportswriters had better learn to take a nine-count. And to duck.

WOODY decks them when they get too close.

Practices will be open — to God and Woody (not necessarily in that order).

Sportswriters, Tournament of Roses officials and/or spectators will not be permitted to view the team live and in color.

BUT WOODY will distribute black-and-white photographs of it to qualified parties—provided they wear the uniform in school colors and have their name, rank and serial number stamped on the back.

They will be asked to sign for the photos and to stand in a roped-off area of the room before distribution.

So that those covering the game will be sufficiently backgrounded, Woody will permit selected screenings of the 1910 Michigan-Ohio State game.

IF WOODY wins, we may expect some suitably-muted postgame elation—such as an observation or two that O. J. Simpson couldn't make first string on HIS squad, or the Big 10 All-Conference, or that USC was every bit as good as Massillon High.

If it rains, of course, Woody may not even let spectators in.

Pasadena will have to have a curfew New Year's Eve.

..WAYNE Woodrow, you will remember, is the diplomat who came out here in 1955, knocked USC on its haircut, 20-7, and then afterward allowed as how the Trojans would be lucky to finish sixth in HIS conference.

When someone gave him a chance to cop a plea later, Woody on the other hand consolidated the insult: "What was I supposed to do—LIE to them?!" he wanted to know.

He raged about the band being on the field, wanted to know why a $750,000 game couldn't afford a tarpaulin.

HARDLY anything about California satisfied Woody.

When he got caught doling out money to his football players some years ago (prompting someone to suggest the football team should be incorporated), Woody didn't deny it.

HE MERELY insisted he didn't provide any "luxuries" for his players.

He didn't send any of them to the French Riviera, for instance.

WOODY preferred to think of the transactions as non-interest loans.

But since he couldn't come up with the names of the borrowers, and since the only collateral offered was first downs and intercepted passes, the Big Ten shuttered the shop and Woody's career as a pawnbroker was over.

Another time, 20 Midwestern football writers plus the Big Ten commissioner and the assistant commissioner on a conference-sponsored tour of all fall practice fields arrived at Ohio State where they were summarily and humiliating ejected from the premises like common gate-crashers by Wayne Woodrow.

THE SCHOOL apologized. Wayne Woodrow was too busy looking down coal mines and up plow furrows and into pool halls for football players.

THE LAST of the Cavemen hasn't been here in 11 years.

He probably hopes West Coast football has improved. I only hope HE hasn't.

I like getting beat by guys who relish it publicly, not by ones who pretend it pains them more than it does you.

'YW' Plans 'Hanging Of Greens' Dec. 12

A family dinner will be held at 6:30 p.m. followed by the program at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Russell Herrold, chairman of the Religious Resources Committee planning the event, says "We are so pleased to be able to bring together our families of varying faiths in one holiday celebration."

Russell Herrold will give the invocation. Rabbi Edward D. Kiner, his wife, Sharon, daughter, Deborah, and son, Seth will open the program with the celebration of "Hanukkah — The Festival of Lights."

Rabbi Kiner is assistant Rabbi at Temple Israel.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar C. Lucas, 445 Eastmoor Blvd., Mary, Elizabeth and Matthew, members of St. Catharine's Roman Catholic Church, will celebrate the Advent Season with the wreath and hangings.

The Rev. and Mrs. Nathan VanderWerf, members of St. Andrew Presbyterian Church, and sons, Duane and Stan, will share their observance of Christmas Eve in the home.

Dr. and Mrs. Yukio Mikawa and daughter, Kazuko, will present the Buddhist celebration of the New Year.

Members of the Shiloh Baptist Church Choir, directed by Frank Cleveland, Jr., with James White, pianist and Mrs. Madoline Johns, organist, will present music of each faith as the families present their celebrations.

The public is invited to call the YWCA at 224-9121 to make reservations for dinner ($2 adult, $1.25 children under 12 years).

No reservation is needed for the program.

Christmas Antique Show And Sale To Be At Vets

Central Ohio Christmas shoppers will be given the opportunity of finding a gift for their favorite person on their shopping list as the Annual Giant Christmas Antique Show and Sale is held at Veterans Memorial Friday, Saturday and Sunday, December 6, 7 and 8.

Eighty-eight dealers from all over the nation will display a variety of antiques and collectibles that range from the very fragile to the indestructibly sturdy, from the strikingly beautiful to the frankly amusing and whimsical.

In addition, these dealers who have combed markets all over the country, will also feature tiny miniatures to imposing pieces of furniture or decorator pieces.

One dealer even travels into countries with remote villages that are inaccessible by auto and where no English is spoken to acquire the one-of-a-kind Oriental rugs that he will have in his exhibit.

Other displays at the show, which has as its theme, "Give An Antique for Christmas," will include china, silver, pewter, primitives, dolls, toys, tolls, furniture, jewelry, clocks, lamps, books, art glass, pattern glass, picture frames, maps, prints, oil paintings, tapestry, statuary, coins, and other decorator accessories, objects d'art, and memorabilia.

Show hours will be from 1 to 10 p.m., Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 6, 7 and 8.

Antique Show visitors will find parking close to the Veterans Memorial Building, 300 W. Broad St.

Food service in the building will be available.

corner, the neighbor next to you, that it is impossible to name everyone and thank everyone individually. I would like to say, however, that the special help from the Mayor, the Governor, the press, especially The Spectator, radio and television gave the campaign the needed start to spell success for the band's trip.

I want to thank them for their help. I want also to say thanks to the dedicated band parents who worked so hard to make the drive a success.

Thanks, too, to Milt Lesnauer of BBF, who had the faith in the band to put in the first large donation; George Byers, who gave up his radio time for band promotion and, well, the list goes on and on as you know.

To list everyone would be impossible. To all of you who shared this Rose Bowl dream with these fine young people, thank you most sincerely. I hope the thrill of seeing the West Band on coast-to-coast television viewed by almost 100 million people will be of great satisfaction to you and part payment for your investment in youth.

Welfare–

won't be felt for some time—if at all."

Canary added that when Congress put the freeze on, they felt the effects of the WIN program would hold the caseload steady.

FRANKLIN COUNTY Commissioners Robert Southwick, Henry Koontz and Jacob Shawan had supported the WIN program as a way of reducing caseloads.

However, Canary said the WIN program "can't in the near future have an effect, and whether it can ever or not is not sure at this time."

At the present time, he continued, "there doesn't seem to be any reasonable hope that the WIN program can reverse this trend (of rising caseloads). The only hope seems to be the repeal of that provision."

The effects of such a federal withdrawal would entail a $3 per month loss to each ADC recipient and would reduce the levels of subsistence in Ohio to a possible 79 per cent of actual needs The current subsistence level is 83.5 percent.

While this may seem a small reduction, Canary said "I think it is generally recognized that the average payment to families now is minimal and that any reduction would be extremely serious for any family."

RAY F. McKENNA, a state welfare official, spelled out what the new provision would mean.

If in July, 1969, for example, there were 200,000 children on the ADC rolls and 168,000 on the same rolls in January, 1968, some 30,000 receiving aid would be affected to the tune of $22 a month in lost funding.

In July, McKenna estimated, the state would lose $500,000 in matching federal funds. The estimated cut probably would affect all recipients.

The cutbacks, in reality, may signify federal withdrawal from this particular public assistance program.

Those familiar with the Ohio Legislature doubted if the state would or could pick up the financial tab created by the withdrawal.

WHILE A SPOKESMAN in Gov. James A. Rhodes' office said he was not aware of any pending state action, Canary said he believed the governor had corresponded with all members of the Ohio delegations in Congress (concerning public welfare).

It is also believed Gov. Rhodes discussed this problem with President-Elect Richard Nixon during a recent get-together.

It remains a moot question whether legislators could make up the difference in costs as a result of federal cutbacks and explain such "welfare expenditures" to their constituents.

While jobs have increased in the state, so have welfare rolls. This deceiving statistic has left many Ohio citizens wary of increased public assistance spending.

But rising costs have been tied in with the fact that more people not previously covered by public assistance programs now are being covered — a fact often overlooked by the average citizen.

Whether or not county governments could help pick up some of the loss July 1, 1969, is, at this stage of the game, unknown.

HART'S TIGERS ON TOP

CL--'Unquestionably' East; Other Cage Races Clouded

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Sports Writer

Pre-season scouting reports find Columbus East, a three-time State Champion with three superlative basket-shooters back, getting an unanimous tab as "team to beat" in the venerable old City League.

The other leagues are not as certain, however.

According to the loop mentors here are the other pre-season guesses.

- OHIO CAPITAL CONFERENCE — A first time title hunt for the OCC looks to be as well-balanced as the football run with the championship teetering between Gahanna and Worthington.
- CENTRAL CATHOLIC — Defending champion Watterson has the inside track but at least two others could threaten the Eagles.
- MID-EIGHT—The coaches look for either London, Grove City or newcomer Grandview to be doing the talking about the crown with London's veteran power getting the most attention.
- METRO — Teays Valley has the veterans back, coaches say, but nobody wants to concede it to the Vikings.

Here are the reasons:

"East should be stronger this year than last year," noted veteran Heischman of the 1967-68 Ohio High School state champions.

THE ADDITION of Dwight Lamar, Franklin County's top scorer at North last season, plus the blue-ribbon artillery of Ed Ratleff and Nick Connor are reason enough. Speed seems to accent this edition of Bob Hart's Tigers.

In the OCC Worthington (under the direction of Pat Mannion this season) and Gahanna with four lettermen and playing experience returning from a Mid-Eight title-winning team under three-year coach John Stanley look to be the favorites.

Gahanna will have Mike Browning (6-7 center), Fred Points, Mike Wiley and Bill Price to do the heavy duty. That crew along with two others motored to a 19-2 all-games mark last fall.

THREE FRONT court aces — Bob Stein, Ben Melancon, and Jim Reed — are back for new coach Tim Pond (replacing Mannion after three titles in five years at Watterson). That rebounding power seems to draw the CCL glances.

DeSales (under Treeze Sharrock's guidance) and Ready (Pat Penn) could give chase on the strength of returning veterans. Wehrle may run into experience problems, and if Hartley can fashion a game defense, it may bother the leaders.

COACHES LIKE the London look as veterans abound including slippery Howard Porter, but they will not discount G-C's Herb Russell's respected coaching ability and that of newcomer Grandview's Dick Hopkins.

Experience may hinder Grandview while size will be working against Grove City.

FOUR RETURNING starters greet Bob Hoover at Teays Valley but Franklin Heights also has some vets along with West Jefferson in the Mid-Eight race.

CANAL WINCHESTER

Bob Miller's classy Canal Winchester operators aren't as tall as last year, but the season may well be as impressive with three returning starters back from a 20-2 District semi-final round finish.

Back are Chris Hanners (5-10, senior guard), Chuck Carpenter (5-11, senior guard) and Tim Simpson (6-2, senior forward).

THEY WILL be joined by John Durbin (6-3 senior center) and Chuck Hosafros (6-0, junior forward).

Missing from last season sparklers are Roger Epperson and Bill Miles. The latter is on scholarship to Bowling Green.

"We have a pretty good defensive outlook so far," Miller notes.

BUT, ACCORDING to Bob, "We still need a lot of overall improvement."

And better scoring balance is another C-W hope as Simpson holds a 32-point per game average or 50 percent of the Indians' arsenal.

HAMILTON TOWNSHIP

Four returning lettermen are in Ranger uniforms again this season as Mike G[illegible] starts his second sea[illegible] the Hamilton Township[illegible]

JOINING the former Otterbein ace are Bob Fryer (6-2, senior), John Cunningham (5-11, senior), Steve Mathis (6-0 senior) and C. A. Johnson (6-3 junior).

Dick Coogan (5-11 senior), Mike Crabtree (5-8 senior), Dave Gilliam (5-11 junior move-in) are all fighting for the open starting berth.

"We need more consistency and better foul shooting to play winning ball," Grayem notes on his team's poor 10-of-29 free throw record against Teays Valley.

"SPEED AND ball-handling are the strong points for this year's team," he added.

Grayem also lists a pair of classy shooters in Cunningham and Johnson. "If both are 'on' the same night, we'll be hard to beat."

SPECTATOR'S 'Player-Of-The-Week'

Canal Winchester's Tim Simpson has been named The Spectator's "Player-Of-The-Week" for his 33 point effort in the Indians 64-58 escape against Carroll last Friday night.

The slick-popping 6-2½ senior dashed in 45 per cent of his shots to fight off a late Bulldog rally and give Winchester its second straight cage triumph.

"If you take his scoring away from us, we wouldn't have won our first two games," veteran C-W coach Bob Miller said of his three year varsity vet.

All-Star Cage Proceeds Benefit West Bowl Trip

The Masheter Ford All-Stars (composed of former OSU athletes and local radio-TV personalities) will meet the YMCA All-Stars Saturday at 7:45 p.m. at the Fairgrounds Coliseum in a game which will benefit the West High School Band's Rose Parade trip.

Admission price is $1 and that fare will include admission to the AAU cage tilt between Jacobs and Sons and Akron Goodyear at 8:30 p.m.

A City League triple-header will precede the evening games — East meeting Eastmoor (1:30), Northland meeting Brookhaven (3 p.m.) and Linden playing West (4:30).

First rounds of the All-Star qualifiers will be Jan. 25-26 at Wonko and Rainbow.

Entries ($35) close Jan. 22 with a guaranteed $2500 prize fund including paid entry and expense money for the All-Star in May at Hialeah, Fla.

FINALS locally will be Feb. 1-2 at Holiday.

For those interested: Entry blanks for next year's ABC in Madison, Wisc., are available at the CBA office on Cleveland Ave. Deadline for entries is Jan. 21, although the tournament doesn't get under way until Feb. 22 and runs through May 4.

About 140 team entries have already been received, plus 100 for doubles and singles, for the 67th annual CMBA City Tournament, Feb. 14-March 2.

HOWEVER, prime times are filling and if you plan to enter, do so soon if you want a specific time. It's scheduled at Amos Lanes.

Berwick has the 1970 and Western the following year.

Christmas gifts (t-shirts, socks, handkerchiefs, and bowling shirts) will be distributed by a committee of the CBA when it visits the Chillicothe Veterans Hospital Dec. 14.

CHAIRMAN Bud Kline hopes to have the bowling shirts no later than Sunday. Contact the CBA office at 263-3500.

A busy winter and spring, with a healthy increase in prize money, awaits the world's best professional bowlers in 1969.

Officials of the Professional Bowlers Association (PBA) in Akron announced that nearly $900,000 in tournament prize money will be up for grabs from January through May of next year.

BIGGEST portion of the money will be awarded during the 13 nationally televised tournaments staged coast-to-coast by the PBA, according to Executive Director Eddie Elias.

Those 13 weekly tournaments will feature prize funds ranging from $45,000 to the $100,000 offered in the Firestone PBA Tournament of Champions.

The finals of each of the first 13 tournaments will be televised nationally (in color) by the ABC Television network for the eighth straight year.

A NETWORK of some 200 stations will carry the Saturday afternoon finals from 3:30-5 p.m. (EST).

The 10th annual ABC National Senior tournament at Red Carpet Lanes in Milwaukee, Wisc., has been extended to five weekends to handle another expected record entry.

The 1969 tournament will run Apr. 19-20, 26-27 and May 3-4, 17-18 and 24-25. There will be no bowling on the May 10-11 (Mothers Day) weekend.

WNCI Radio To Air High Cage Games

WNCI Radio will initiate its "High School Basketball Game of the Week" program Saturday when East meets Eastmoor at the Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Air time will be 1:25 p.m. at 97.9 on your FM radio dial.

WNCI's play - by - play announcer will be Ed Johnson, a former cage letterman at OSU under Fred Taylor and sports broadcaster of over 250 basketball games in his radio career to date.

Color highlights will be supplied by Tom Rizzo of the WNCI staff.

The second "Game of the Week" will be Whetstone at North (Dec. 13) with subsequent games (making up the schedule through February) announced as the season progresses.

'Wheelchair' Cage Game Is Saturday

Don't forget the Eastland Vocational School-sponsored "Wheelchair Basketball Game" scheduled for Saturday (8 p.m.) at Whitehall-Yearling High School.

The opponents will be the Chicago Sidewinders and the Wilmington (Ohio) Sternwheelers. This will be the only appearance by Mid-American Conference teams in the Columbus area this season.

Tickets for the game ($1. for adults and 50 cents for children under 12) are available from Eastland Occupational Work Experience students or at the door.

Proceeds from the game will be used for educational activities and materials.

P-V Athletic Director Helps Apollo Astronauts Collect 'Bet'

Pleasant View High School Athletic Director Larry Rood received the thanks of the Apollo VII astronauts last week for the latter's effort in helping the space trio collect a "bet."

Rood's explanation (accompanying a letter from the Apollo astronauts) reads:

"THE COLUMBUS and Ohio Chapters of the internationally famous "Turtles Club" presented the astronauts with their membership cards into the club when the space mission advertised the organization high above the earth.

"To collect their 'bets' the astronauts had to be official members. We are proud to say they are."

Larry's correspondence from the Apollo crew was as follows:

"THANKS FOR your tremendous response to our 'Turtle' show televised from the 'studio' of the Apollo VII space craft.

"For your varied comments and your generosity in sending us club membership cards, we are heartily grateful!"

The letter was signed: Wally Schirra, Donn Eisele and Walt Cunningham.

The Dapper Dan Club of Columbus has scheduled its second annual "Hall of Fame" banquet to be held at the Sheraton-Columbus Hotel; Tuesday, Dec. 7.

A few persons noted in bowling circles will be installed in the club's "Hall of Fame."

A. VICTOR Thayer, secretary of the Columbus Bowling Association will be installed. Art Todd, the amatuer golfer, will also be installed along with many other noted sports figures. Art is a fine bowler as well as a talented golfer.

On Dec. 14 a committee from the CBA will journey to the Veterans Hospital at Chillicothe to deliver Christmas gifts to the veterans.

Gifts such as tee-shirts, socks, handkerchiefs and used bowling shirts will be distributed.

THE COST of these gifts are paid for through the contributions made by Columbus bowlers into the Boys Club and Veterans Fund. This fund is collected and supervised by the CBA.

If your league does not have a rule endorsing a contribution to this fund, we urge you to make such a rule. Your contribution could not be used for a more worthy cause.

Any person wishing to contribute his old bowling shirts should contact the Columbus Bowling Association (263-3500) as soon as possible.

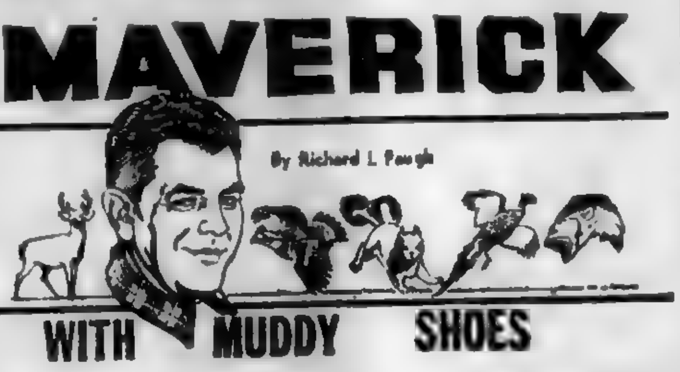
MAVERICK WITH MUDDY SHOES



By Richard L. Paugh

Most firearms owners are wondering how their weapons are affected by the "Gun Control Act of 1968."

All firearms are covered as are all ammunitions and loading components.

If you deal in arms or ammo, you will have to ask the Internal Revenue Service for revised form number seven. Complete it and send it in with your check for 10 dollars.

THAT IS a raise from one dollar. I suppose the additional profit will go to fight crime.

Complete records must be kept of ALL sales of arms and ammo (this was already being done by honest dealers).

You must be 18 years old to buy rifle and shotgun ammo but 21 if you buy handgun ammo. Residents or non-residents may buy ammo.

DEALERS must not sell or ship (and here I quote directly) "if he has reasonable cause to believe the purchaser is a fugitive, a felon, a narcotics addict, a user of marijuana or any depressant stimulant or narcotic drug or has ever been adjudged mentally incompetent or has ever been committed to any mental institution."

Just what the liability laws would do to a dealer should he make a mistake is unknown at this time.

The Federal Government assumes that each gun dealer has great insight into the minds of the passing public.

PURCHASERS for firearms must also be 18 for long guns and 21 for handguns. Non-residents may not buy handguns.

If non-residents wish to buy shotguns or rifles, the dealer must make sure he is not helping the purchaser violate the laws of his home state.

This will require either the aid of an IBM machine to research the laws, a law degree, or blind faith in the stranger. There are over 20,000 gun laws in these United States.

NONE OF these regulations, if in effect at the time, would have stopped any of the recent killings nor will they in the future. If 20,000 laws aren't enough, another certainly isn't.

I can see two benefits from this Gun Control Act of 1968

First, the government makes nine dollars profit with another hidden tax and secondly, the Lawyer's Union — as surely there must be — will fatten the pockets of its members clear across the country by charging the usual high freight for getting well-meaning but ill-informed clients out of the pokey on a minor gun charge.

Sideliners Will Honor Three Area Gridders

Three area high school grid standouts will be honored Feb. 28 at The Sideliners fifth annual "Coach of the Year" banquet.

Linden-McKinley halfback Larry Griffin and Upper Arlington quarterback Ted McNulty will each receive a "Jim Brown Award" — each gridder tying in the balloting for the "top back in Central Ohio" category.

Don Caldwell, South's All-League lineman, will receive the "Jim Parker Award" as the area's top lineman in 1968.

OK, everybody, shape up!

Wayne Woodrow Hayes and the Scarlet Scourge of Ohio State is coming to the Rose Bowl.

THERE'LL HAVE to be a few changes made.

First of all, of course, the Rose Parade is OUT.

Disturbs the concentration of the players.

MURRAY

If they play their cards right, Woody may let them bring a recording. He hasn't made up his mind about card tricks.

Sportswriters had better learn to take a nine-count. And to duck.

WOODY decks them when they get too close.

Practices will be open — to God and Woody (not necessarily in that order).

Sportswriters, Tournament of Roses officials and/or spectators will not be permitted to view the team live and in color.

BUT WOODY will distribute black - and - white photographs of it to qualified parties—provided they wear the uniform in school colors and have their name, rank and serial number stamped on the back.

They will be asked to sign for the photos and to stand in a roped-off area of the room before distribution.

So that those covering the game will be sufficiently backgrounded, Woody will permit selected screenings of the 1910 Michigan-Ohio State game.

IF WOODY wins, we may expect some suitably-muted postgame elation—such as an observation or two that O. J. Simpson couldn't make first string on HIS squad, or the Big 10 All-Conference, or that USC was every bit as good as Massillon High.

If it rains, of course, Woody may not even let spectators in.

Pasadena will have to have a curfew New Year's Eve.

..WAYNE Woodrow, you will remember, is the diplomat who came out here in 1955, knocked USC on its haircut, 20-7, and then afterward allowed as how the Trojans would be lucky to finish sixth in HIS conference.

When someone gave him a chance to cop a plea later, Woody on the other hand consolidated the insult: "What was I supposed to do —LIE to them?!" he wanted to know.

He raged about the band being on the field, wanted to know why a $750,000 game couldn't afford a tarpaulin.

HARDLY anything about California satisfied Woody.

When he got caught doling out money to his football players some years ago (prompting someone to suggest the football team should be incorporated), Woody didn't deny it.

HE MERELY insisted he didn't provide any "luxuries" for his players.

He didn't send any of them to the French Riviera, for instance.

WOODY preferred to think of the transactions as non-interest loans.

But since he couldn't come up with the names of the borrowers, and since the only collateral offered was first downs and intercepted passes, the Big Ten shuttered the shop and Woody's career as a pawnbroker was over.

Another time, 20 Midwestern football writers plus the Big Ten commissioner and the assistant commissioner on a conference-sponsored tour of all fall practice fields arrived at Ohio State where they were summarily and humiliating ejected from the premises like common gate-crashers by Wayne Woodrow.

THE SCHOOL apologized.

Wayne Woodrow was too busy looking down coal mines and up plow furrows and into pool halls for football players.

THE LAST of the Cavemen hasn't been here in 11 years.

He probably hopes West Coast football has improved. I only hope HE hasn't.

I like getting beat by guys who relish it publicly, not by ones who pretend it pains them more than it does you.

COSL Query: 'Will Golden Bears Get Dunked In '69?'

The Spectator's Central Ohio Swim League Preview

By JACK WITTENMEIER

Spectator Sports Editor

Is this the season Upper Arlington loses its perennial hold on the Central Ohio Swim League title?

The odds are against an end to the Golden Bear dominance of the COSL but loop coaches didn't give their usual "who else" vote of confidence to UA in the swim skippers' pre-season tabulation for the likely league champion this year.

IN FACT, two mentors rate the '69 COSL race as a "tossup" between Todd Grant's Golden Bears and Sterling Apthorp's Cardinals at Worthington.

The COSL itself finds a trimmed-down field this season with defending champ Arlington, Worthington, Bexley, Whetstone, Pleasant View and Greenfield McClain the only members.

Academy has adopted an independent schedule this winter while Grove City and Hartley have dropped competitive swim programs.

HERE'S THE COSL outlook for '68-'69:

ARLINGTON

Todd Grant won't dispute the fact he parted with a bucketful of swim talent last June — graduation trimming away nine key performers.

But 12 returning letter winners (including State backstroke champion Jeff Lewis) from UA's State runnerup and 14-1 dual squad (lost only to Akron Firestone) of last winter doesn't exactly leave the Bear natatorium vacant.

TOUGHEST to replace off that District title team will be Steve Hinton (State breaststroke runnerup), Mark Ezell (State 50-yd. freestyle runnerup) and freestyler Mark Knoderer.

Grant's '68-'69 UA splash unit figures to be built around junior Lewis who currently holds four school records (100-yd. backstroke, 200 and 400-yd. freestyle and 200-yd. individual medley).

LEWIS buzz-sawed his way to the backstroke title at the State Meet in :56.8 and added a tenth-place finish in the I.M.

Classmate Steve Miely (seventh in State with 1:06.2 100-yd. breaststroke effort) plus senior tri-captains Doug Ezell, Andy Doyle and Chris Copeland (all freestylers) also figure to supply more than their share of pool points for Grant this campaign.

Other letterman returnees include: seniors — Bill Ellis (fly, I.M.), Chuck Baker (fly), Dave Armstrong (freestyle), Jim Miller (freestyle) and Marty Todd (I.M.) and juniors — Byron Snow (fly) and Mike Reedy (backstroke).

GRANT ALSO expects some team strength forthcoming from junior prospects Steve Buckmaster (f.s.), Steve Sours (I.M.), Rick Barnes (backstr.), Bruce Ambuel (breastr.); Bob Walsh (f.s.) and Mark Shutt (diving) and sophomore Tom McElroy (f.s.).

Looking over his pre-season prospects, Todd allows: "With Jeff (Lewis) we'll be strong in the backstroke and we appear to have good depth in the breaststroke and distance (200-400 yd.) freestyle events."

Major problem areas at this early date would appear to be the sprint freestyle and butterfly events.

GRANT SEES Worthington ("good young team") as his Bears' number one obstacle en route to yet another COSL and District swim titles.

The UA swimmers debut Dec. 18 in the City Relays at Arlington. COSL opener is carded Jan. 8 vs. Whetstone.

WORTHINGTON

Sterling Apthorp, whose 11-man Cardinal letterman list includes but one senior, figures this might be the year Worthington gives Arlington "a good run for its money."

"WE'VE GOT a lot of depth and a lot of power this season and have been creeping up a little closer each year," Apthorp details optimistically.

The Cardinal splashers won't have to wait too long to find out how much of a run they might make at UA's stranglehold on COSL honors—Worthington opening Saturday at tough Sandusky Perkins.

The Sandusky visit cracks open what Apthorp terms an "ambitious" 22-meet schedule which shows some 16 dual meets against such squads as Cincinnati Princeton, Mansfield Malabar, Springfield North and Newark besides the Cardinals' regular loop playmates.

WORTHINGTON, which finished 7-5 overall and fourth in the COSL last season, will not be without its graduation holes to fill.

Most missed will be diver John Donovan (placed seventh in the State last season) and breaststroker Bill Little — the latter departing with the school record of 1:07.5.

Of the 11 returning vets, only four are upper classmen—senior captain Mike Yost (backstroke) and juniors Jeff Love (fly), Rick Wohlman (freestyle) and Gary Yost (freestyle).

PACING THE sophomore returnees are a pair who helped Worthington to a successful summer swim season—Jeff Rogers (all strokes) and Stott Steinman (backstroke, freestyle).

Other soph veterans include: Dan Crawford (I.M.), Mike Garrison (breastr.), Bill McKee (backstro., f.s.), Rick Moore (f.s.) and Rob Miller (fly, backstr.).

Apthorp comes up in pretty fair shape relining two key relay quartets which established new school marks last season.

JEFF ROGERS, Jeff Love and Mike Yost return to the 400-yd. medley relay unit (4:15 flat last year) while Rogers and Love represent a 50 per cent come-back for the Cards' 1:47.5 200-yd. medley relay foursome.

The Worthington swim coach is also looking for big things from a pair of outstanding freshman prospects in Gary Rogers and Mark Pflieger (all strokes).

Other top prospects include sophomores Chris Fehl (f.s.), Bill Grant (f.s., breastr.) Rufus Jones (diver) and Scott Merryman (breast/backstroke) and senior Jay Farquhar (breast/backstroke).

WHETSTONE

BRAVE mentor Dave Thomas is hopeful that improved depth will help overcome the graduation loss of two top swimmers who helped boost Whetstone to a 12-4 overall mark and a third-place COSL finish last winter.

Missing are Charlie Dunaway (at OSU), who currently holds six school swim marks (finished fifth in State in 100-yd. backstroke last season) and Barry Armitage — Whetstone's sprint-freestyler-deluxe now at Miami U.

"We don't have that outstanding swimmer this year," relates Thomas, "but we have more depth in more events and should pick up a lot of seconds and thirds.

"WE SHOULD show more of a team effort this season," Dave concludes.

Five senior performers pace Whetstone's list of seven returning swim vets—Rick Daniell (freestyle, breaststroke—holds school record of 1:08.8 in lattter), Bill James (backstroke), Steve Metzmaier (f.s., I.M.), Jeff Pratt (f.s.) and John Zook (distance events).

Junior lettermen are Steve Corotis (freestyle, distance) and Tom Trout (breaststroke).

BEXLEY

DESPITE the return of 10 letter winners, new Lion swim coach Ed Rutter details the job of equaling or bettering Bexley's 8-5 '67-'68 tank mark as uphill this season.

Optimism over his load of veterans has to be tempered by the graduation loss of co-captains Dennis Maupin and Colby Crall—the Lions' top swim stalwarts last winter.

The versatile Maupin, who swam in just about every event for the Lions last season, will be especially hard to replace.

ONE PROBLEM Rutter won't have is diving, three of his returnees — senior co-captain Dan Kayne, junior Fred Mendelson and soph Mike Motter — taking third, fourth and fifth spots in that category at last year's District Meet.

The remainder of Lion hopes will likely be centered around the seven other veterans — senior co-captain Craig Honts (I.M., fly, breaststroke), juniors Whit Dillon (freestyle sprints), John Levoff (200, 400-yds. f.s.), Bill Arnold (backstroke, f.s., relays) and Roger Myers (f.s.) and sophomores Ron Miller (I.M., fly, breaststroke) and Dan Buhrmaster (breaststroke, I.M.).

Despite his diving strength, Rutter is counting heavily on heady performances from Levoff ("very strong in 400-yd. freestyle"), Miller ("should break school 'fly record after just missing it as freshman last year") and Buhmaster (breaststroke).

"OUR SHORT freestyles and relays need the most work right now," Ed admits. "Maupin was used in all our relays last year and we'll have to build our new quartets without him."

Another problem for Bexley this season could be swim time — the Lions cut down to only two days of practice each week (total of 180 minutes) at the old Academy pool on Nelson Road.

Rutter, whose squad debuts Dec. 18 at the City Relays (at Arlington), rates the Golden Bears as the best bet for COSL honors again this [illegible].

PLEASANT VIEW

WITH NINE returning letter winners and new coach Terry Barnett at the helm, the swim prospectus for Pleasant View should be on the rise this winter.

Barnett isn't promising any "rags-to-riches" turnabout for his Panther splashers (P-V won only one meet in its first season of competition last season).

The former Central Y standout rates the '68-'69 COSL title run as a battle twixt defending champ Arlington and fast-coming Worthington.

"WE HOPE we'll be in there third," Terry details.

Barnett is largely basing his success hopes on three returnees and P-V's top sophomore prospect — all of whom he believes can place high in their respective events at the '69 District Meet.

Pacing the returnees is senior Rob DeVore, holder of all school swim records but one and a fifth-place finisher in the 100-yd. butterfly event (:54.8) at the '68 State Meet.

DeVORE also competes in the freestyle and individual medley events.

High hopes have also been placed on the shoulders of junior vets John Otte (backstroke, freestyle, hold school 50-yd. freestyle mark) and Joe Florio (middle-distance freestyle).

Barnett's fourth ace-in-the-hold is sophomore Mark Anderson, State age-group champion in the freestyle (under :25) last summer.

"HE'S OUR utility man. He does everything," Barnett says of Anderson.

Other top Panther swim prospects include junior Brad Allen (breaststroke) and six sophomore freestylers — Rick Ruggles, Bruce Henne, Bill Murray, Mike Meyers, Steve Gooseman and Mike Pelck.

PLEASANT View opens its '68-'69 season Wednesday (Dec. 11) at Westerville.

ACADEMY

Viking swim coach Gene Pierce welcomed back eight returning lettermen as Academy opened preparations for an independent schedule this [illegible]

The Vikings, perennial runnerup in the COSL behind Upper Arlington for many seasons, excused itself from loop competition this year.

ALTHOUGH the quantity of returning vets is not high, the quality evidently is—five of the eight currently holding down school swim records.

Heading the pack are senior co-captains Richie Nairn (I.M., backstroke) and Jim Lape (I.M., backstroke, freestyle) — the latter showing record-smashing efforts in the 200-yd. freestyle (1:55.5) and individual medley (2:12.8) last winter.

BESIDES another runnerup finish in the COSL last season, the Viking swimmers lost only three meets (duals to Arlington, Newark and Mansfield Malibar).

Early-season action finds Academy competing in the City and Denison Relays (December) and opening it[illegible] season at home Jan. [illegible] Westerville.

'First Edition' Planning Color In Costumes

Two Thursdays past, "The First Edition" played a four night engagement at The Bistro. It was during Friday's show, the group revealed several changes.

The group is going from black and white to color, sometime soon. Having always worn black and white as part of their "act," the group is now having clothes designed in color. Upon further questioning, they wouldn't reveal which colors.

Perhaps the answer to this question will come this Sunday, Dec. 8, when the group appears on the Smothers Brothers Show at 9 p.m.

Also, the lively five are taping an NBC Special during early December which then will be broadcast the latter part of this month.

Several remarks by spokesman Terry Williams during the show led one to believe the group has adopted The Bistro and Columbus as home.

The rapport is two-fold... Bistro owner Sam Harachis reports that their four night engagement broke records of attendance for any group during a seven day show.

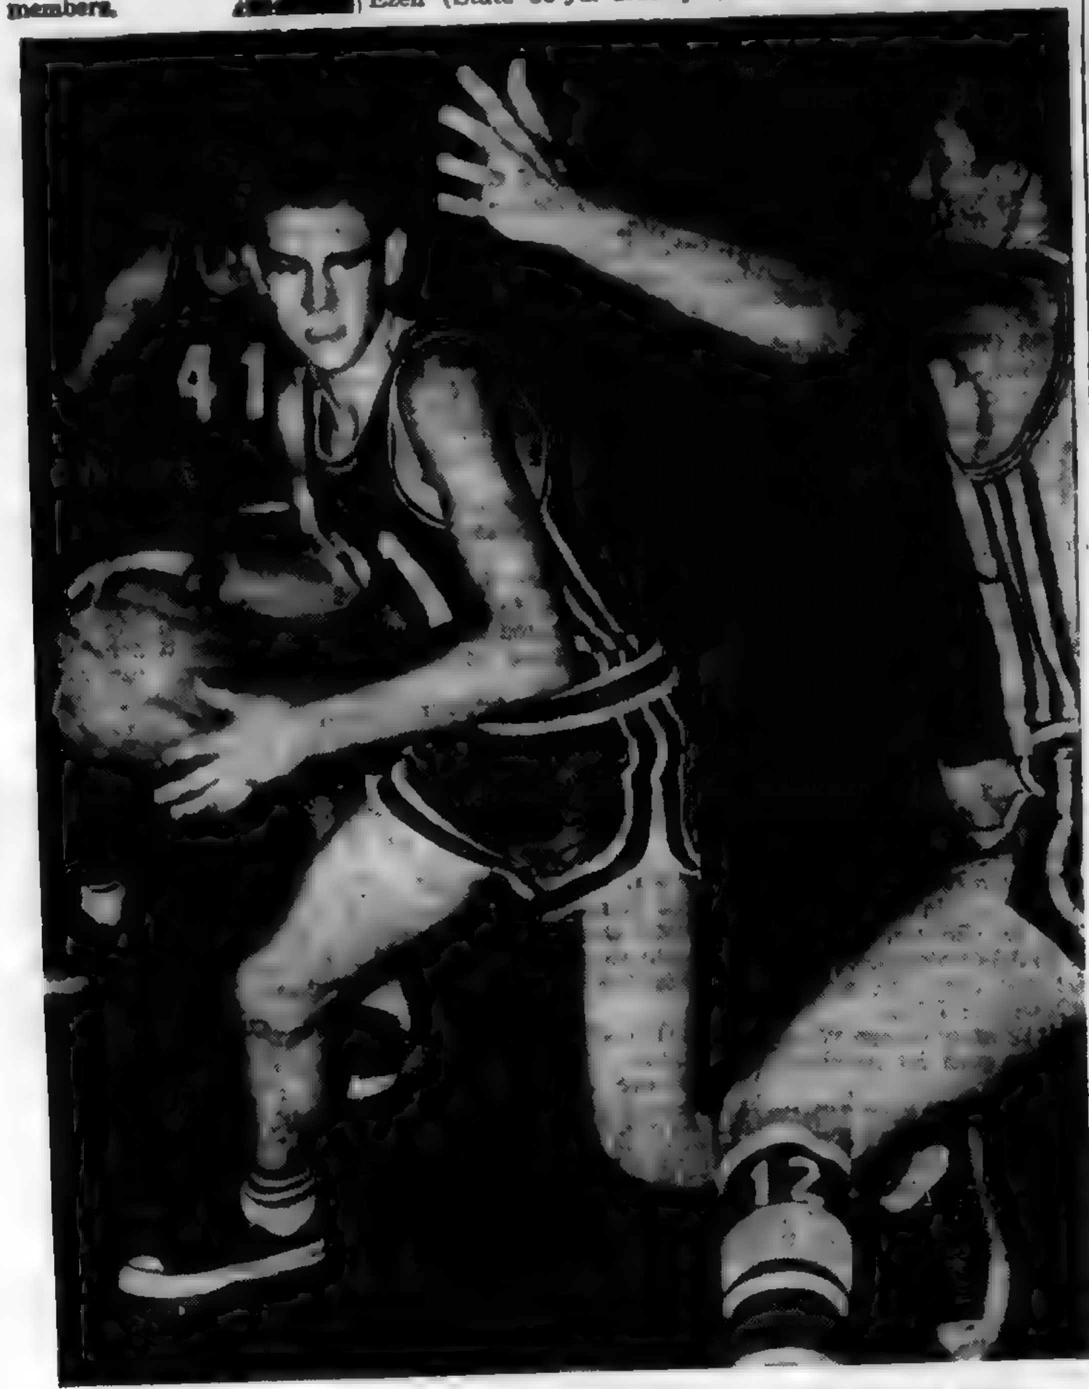
Walker Earns Stripe In Viet

Victor R. Walker, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin L. Walker of 3039 Baker Hill Rd., has been promoted to Corporal while serving with the Third Marine Division in Vietnam.

As a part of the Third Marine Division's new mobile posture, the battalion has been conducting sweep and clear missions throughout the five northernmost provinces of South Vietnam.

GOOD LUCK CUSTOM

According to English custom, each person in a family must sit on the yule log and salute it before it is lighted. This is said to bring good luck to the household in the new year.



MOVE ASIDE! — Groveport cager Jim Stevenson (21) looks all business as he begins a breakaway around Grove City defender Mike Stout (at right) Friday as teammate Mark Raynes (41) looks on. Stevenson tallied game-high 27 points but Greyhounds pulled out narrow Mid-Eight opener victory, 69-65. (Spectator photo by Joe Wagner).

WHO'S THERE? — Groveport's Bob Ward (with ball) isn't about to turn around to recognize Grove City's Bob Hitchens (50) as the Greyhound defender breathes down the Cruiser's neck following this rebound grab in Mid-Eight League play Friday.

STEVE SOARS — Groveport's Steve Williams (25) heads goalward as he flies past Grove City's Bob Hitchens with this two-point attempt Friday.

BEEF AND POTATO CASSEROLE

2 lbs. boneless beef cubes
¼ cup flour
3 tbs. cooking oil
1 cup water
1 medium onion, chopped
2 teas. salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 can (6 oz.) tomato paste
1 can (4 oz.) mushroom stems and pieces
6 cups seasoned hot mashed potatoes

Dredge beef in flour. Brown in cooking oil. Pour off drippings. Add water, onion, salt and pepper. Cover and cook slowly one hour. Mix Worcestershire sauce and tomato paste together. Add to meat and continue cooking 45 minutes. Stir in undrained mushrooms and cook 10 minutes longer.

Spoon mixture into a 2½ quart casserole. (Chill if desired, for heating later). Spoon or tube mashed potatoes around edge of casserole, forming a border. If desired, place under a broiler until potatoes are browned, about 10 minutes. Number of servings: Six.

APPLE TORTE

[illegible] cups flour, sifted
1 cup brown sugar
½ tsp. salt
½ cup rolled oats
¾ cup butter
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup water
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1½ tsp. vanilla extract
6 large cooking apples, pared and sliced 1 in. thick
Whipped cream or ice cream

Mix flour, brown sugar, salt and oats cut in butter to form crumbly mixture. Pat about half of mixture on bottom of greased pan (9x13). PUMPKIN BREAD

3 cups sugar
1 cup oil
3 eggs
2 cups pumpkin
3 cups flour
½ teaspoon baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt (none if self-rising flour)
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup chopped nuts (optional)

In a large mixing bowl, beat the sugar with the oil. Beat in the eggs, one at a time. Add the pumpkin, beating well. In a separate bowl, stir the flour together with the other dry ingredients and add all at once to the pumpkin mixture. Mix well.

Fold in chopped nuts if desired. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease 2 loaf pans, 9x5 in. by 3 in. deep. Dust with flour. Pour batter in, pushing well into corners and making it a little lower in the middle than at the edges. Let stand 20 minutes. Bake at 350 degrees for about 1½ hrs., or until it pulls away from side of pans and is nicely browned. Makes two 9x5 in. loaves.

BOEUF ALA BOURGUIGNONNE

6 strips bacon, cut in ½-inch pieces
3 pounds beef chuck, cut in 1½-inch cubes
1 large carrot, sliced
1 medium onion, sliced
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
2 cans condensed beef broth
2 cups red Burgundy wine
1 small can tomato paste
2 cloves garlic, minced, or [illegible] teaspoons garlic powder
½ teaspoon thyme
1 bay leaf
1 lb. mushrooms or 1 lb. mushroom pieces
1 lb. small white onions (not cocktail type)
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons salad oil
¼ cup flour
3 tablespoons butter

In Dutch oven, cook bacon crisp. Remove. Brown meat in the fat. Remove. In drippings, brown carrot and onion. Spoon off fat. Return bacon and beef to pan. Season with the salt and pepper. Stir in flour. Reserve ½ cup of the broth. Add remainder to stew. Add wine, tomato paste and herbs. Cover, simmer for 3 hours. Quarter large mushrooms. Leave small ones whole, or drain canned pieces. Saute in mixture of butter and salad oil for 5 minutes. Lift out. Add small onions (drained if using canned type), brown. Then add reserved broth. Simmer, covered, until tender, about 10 minutes (less with canned onions). Thicken stew with beurre manie made by creaming flour and butter and rolling mixture into pea-size balls. Skim fat from stew, drop in balls. Stir over very low heat till thickened. Add mushrooms and onions. Bring to bubbling. This stew may be frozen for later use. Number of servings: 8-10.

Before beginning his new duties, Ballmer worked nine years at Lincoln Lodge, where he worked in various capacities from desk clerk to food manager. He then joined the Imperial chain as food manager of the Kings Inn Restaurant of the Imperial House-Arlington.

One of the immediate changes to take place at the Imperial House-West is the enlarging of the cocktail lounge and bar. Plans call for doubling the seating capacity and the bringing in of the best entertainment and lounge acts available. The dining room is soon to be completely redecorated in order to create a more colorful and cheerful atmosphere. All banquet facilities are scheduled for a redecorating program and all services will be totally revamped.

All food services, according to Ballmer, will offer new menus, new, efficient service and a much better quality of food.

"The goal of the operations of the Imperial Inn Restaurant at the Imperial House-West is to improve the quality of food, service and dining pleasure and meet the standards of excellence of the Imperial Chain. These standards are considered the most rigid in the business," stated Ballmer.

CJTA Fund Raising Project Under Way

Ideas and dreams usually take a lifetime to become reality. Not when Mrs. Evelyn "Sis" Bloom and Mrs. Edie Mae Herrel have ideas and dreams.

The idea was to form a theater for, by and to the children of the community. The ideas that stemmed from this were that it would be for all children regardless of race, color, creed or social standing; that workshops would entail every phase of theater, as well as prepare children to appreciate theater as an art form.

The dream was to have a building which would include workshops, office space, storage rooms and a large room to perform and rehearse.

Sound easy? Try it. Or better yet, ask "Sis" Bloom or Edie Herrel.

The idea became real in June of 1963 as the state granted non-profit incorporation papers to Columbus Junior Theater of The Arts.

Since that time, children have been gathering at the theater on Saturdays to take part in workshops which lead to tryouts, parts, or crew work on a major production which caps the theater workshop season.

The dream became reality after two temporary homes, the first on West Broad Street on the Hilltop, the second, Trinity Episcopal church at 115 W. Main St. a Streets.

The CJTA purchased an old hurch at 115 W. Main St. a little over two years ago.

The building wasn't much to look at and was in need of repair. Some repair was accomplished through donations.

Now repairs and re-modeling are at a standstill. Rather than ask for donations, CJTA has taken on a fund making project . . . sponsoring opening night of "Star" at Northland Cinema Dec. 19.

Patrons of CJTA will lead off the festive agenda at 7:30 p.m. with champagne and hors d'oeuvres. At 8:30 p.m., costumes designed for Julie Andrews by Donald Brooks will be modeled.

Gertrude Lawrence's life story will unfold as "Star" takes the stage following the fashion show.

There are two categories for purchasing tickets . . . patron and general admission.

Madison Cautiously Eyes Auditor's Tranfer Proposal

Madison Local School Board refused to commit itself this week on the interest expressed by the County Auditor's office in switching certain parcels of land from one school district to another.

The proposal was made to simplify bookkeeping.

HOWEVER, THE Madison Board and administration believe the matter is of county-wide concern and a decision merits county-wide study.

The auditor's request involves isolated parcels of land in a school district that also lie within a "foreign" village or township.

IN SUCH cases, tax money collected from property owners in the area entails dual bookkeeping.

Examples include the three parcels of vacant land in Madison School District and also in the Canal Winchester Corporation and the piece of property in Madison Township that is included in the Teays Valley School District.

IN NEITHER case is a great deal of tax money involved as the three parcels in Canal Winchester Corporation limit generate only $137.19 to Madison annually on its valuation of $4,780 and the township parcel is valued at less than double that figure.

The possible pitfalls in going along with the auditor on the suggestion which in itself is regarded as innocuous apparently involves the stake Madison has in the tax duplicate of more than 1,400 acres that have been annexed to Columbus.

This acreage includes the Berwick Plaza Shopping Center, the industrial park under construction northeast of Williams Road and Alum Creek Drive and the 700 acres in Truro Township that makes up most of the 802 acres northwest of Brice that County Commissioners recently approved for annexation to Columbus.

ALTHOUGH THIS acreage is now largely open, it is slated for residential development by Ernest Fritsche, as well as commercial use, and represents a potential increase to the Madison duplicate of considerable magnitude.

It is recognized that if Columbus Public Schools should pursue a more active policy of striving to make school district and municipal boundaries synonymous, the proposed action on isolated parcels might well be used as a precedent.

The Madison Board did agree to participate in two county-wide studies recommended by the Metropolitan Cooperative Educational Council.

IF A MAJORITY of the districts in Franklin County agree to take part, application will be made with the Federal government to fund the projects with actual board commitment withheld until the studies and subsequent recommendations are made.

The first study involves the feasibility of a cooperative program for slow learning, emotionally, neurologically and physically handicapped pupils.

The second project includes six possible areas of joint effort: centralized purchasing, vocational, occupational and technical education, county-wide transportation, employe insurance, combined data processing centers and year-round school.

For Madison It Was V-Day

Voters in Madison Local School District assayed the value of tax dollars against that of a sound education for their children Tuesday.

Most found the worth of their children's future outweighed that of money and by a 57.82 per cent majority approved the 8.5 mill operating levy that will permit the schools to operate without crippling the program.

THE UNOFFICIAL tally stands at 1,407 votes for and 1,026 votes against.

Encouraged by the healthy turnout of voters, Supt. Phil Williams pointed out that this is the largest total vote ever tallied in the district except at the general election in November when a record-breaking 3,741 persons turned out to defeat the same millage by 79 votes or a bare two per cent.

Williams was also jubilant over the fact that support of the schools came from all areas of the district and not merely from this or that specific subdivision.

THE ISSUE carried in all but three precincts and even in these areas the levy evidenced considerable strength, with the margin of defeat: Edgewater Park, five votes; Groveport in the area south of Main Street, nine votes, and McFadden Acres in Obetz and Watkins Road (combined), 27 votes.

Meeting Tuesday night after the polls were closed and the results in, the board and administration had nothing but thanks to the volunteer workers and news media who had assisted in their appeal for support of the schools, and nothing but praise for the voters who are willing to shoulder their responsibility to the youth of the community.

IN RETURN for the vote of confidence given, Board President Wayne Wilson and Williams both pledged themselves to a continued effort to live up to the faith showed by doing the very most they can with the funds now available.

Although the budget doesn't include provisions for any expansion of program, Williams pointed out that Madison is already providing most of the curriculum benefits which Columbus voters approved only in November. (He was referring to elementary art, music and physical education, remedial reading, guidance and such programs regarded as increasingly important for a well-balanced education.)

Wilson and Williams both expressed the belief that with the major hurdle — that of operating money — cleared and state building assistance within reach, there's clear sailing ahead for the district.

Teenagers Nominated

Three Southeast schools have nominated students for selections as "Outstanding Teenagers of America for 1969."

Chuck Carpenter, Chris Hanners and Linda Lamb will represent Canal Winchester, Jim Gorczyca, Gary Topping and Julie Davie will represent Hamilton and Judy Graves, Dennis McKinister and Frank Riggsby will represent Groveport-Madison in the competition for the Governor's Trophy awarded in each state.

The program, sponsored by the Outstanding American's Foundation, is designed to honor, inspire and encourage youth to take full advantage of American opportunities.

Selected on basis of ability and achievement, the state winners will compete for the two national awards and college scholarships.

Two From Troop 422 Will Become Eagles

Even though they both play the sousaphone in the Groveport-Madison Band, neither Robert Hague nor Robert Wray has ever been accused of tooting his own horn.

However, the members of Boy Scout Troop 422 really have something to blow about.

Sunday they will become Eagle Scouts at a ceremony to be included in the 10:30 a.m. service of the Asbury Methodist Church which sponsors their troop.

The former is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hague, 4571 Walburn Rd., and a member of the Shady Lane Presbyterian Church.

The latter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wray, 2950 Courtright Rd., and is vice president of the Brookwood Presbyterian youth group. He was a Cub before becoming a regular Scout.

Both boys are 14-years-old, freshmen at Groveport-Madison and have been Boy Scouts for three years.

Robert Rall is Scoutmaster of Troop 422.

Area Men At AVEA Convention

Three Southeast men are among the 6,000 delegates attending the American Vocational Education Association annual meeting in Dallas, Tex., this week.

They are Franklin Miller, vocational agricultural teacher at Groveport-Madison High School; Richard Hummell of Canal Winchester, who is in charge of Young Farmer Education in Ohio, and Dr. Ralph Bender, also of Canal Winchester, who is vice-president of the American Vocational Association for Agriculture.

The Ohio delegation is headed by Dr. Byrl R. Shoemaker, director of Vocational Education in Ohio, and his staff.

THEY SHED LIGHT ON MAIN

The Village of Groveport owes its holiday garb to members of the local Lions Club who invested $250 to "rehab" its 10-year-old garlands of lights spanning Main Street from College east to Front Street. Seen devoting their Saturday afternoon to the project are Ken Lang (on the ladder) who was recognized as responsible for the "lions share" of the work, and clockwise from left foreground, Bill Niday, Dick Stanley, Kester Eubank, Bill McCracken, Jay Moore, who is currently Groveport Lions president, Phil William and Moore's son, Rob.

Hamilton Approves Cuts On Election Eve

With few holding on to much hope for the passage of the 13-mill operating levy appearing on Tuesday's ballot, Hamilton Local School Board met Monday and adopted the cuts for next year recommended by an administrative survey in case the gloomy predictions were accurate.

With the evaluation of the pre-election mood now proven all too true, these recommendations are a bitter pill that must be swallowed.

ACCORDING TO Ed Nordin, assistant to Supt. John Savel, who made the report, enrollment predictions, and state and federal aids were reviewed to enable drawing up of two temporary appropriation measures, one involving a $2,178,400 budget possible with passage of the levy and another one of strictly economy size without the $251,000 the 13 mills can generate.

The survey divides the cuts into those of program, professional staff and non-certificate personnel.

In the first category cuts were set at $112,000 with major items including curtailment of bus drivers and routes, $12,500; new text adoption, $13,000; library books, $7,500; summer school, $5,000; summer recreation, $2,000; remodeling of Obetz Elementary, $50,000 and the contingency fund, $14,000.

NORDIN STATED the elimination of his job and that of Obetz Elementary principal and 10 teaching positions plus a reduction in the use of substitue teachers represents almost another $100,000 economy.

The non-professional staff cut-backs proposed included elimination of two secretaries, the positions of transportation coordination; playground, classroom and library aides; full-time school nurses and a reduction in the custodial staff. These steps would slice another $40,900 from the budget.

In the vote on approval of the recommendations, Tim Gibbs of the board abstained.

UPON QUESTIONING from a member of the community in the audience, he explained that, as he has opposed the 13-mill levy from its inception he doesn't see fit to vote on any matter hinging on the levy.

With the outcome of the major campaign — that of the operating levy — still unknown Monday night, the board fought a couple of brush fires.

The first involved approval of, at board expense, attendance at eight faculty professional meetings and "any board member that desires" including that of Savel at American Association of School Administrators at Atlantic City in February.

IN SPITE of rather strenuous opposition from Bill Lares to other than Columbus meetings (he particularly objected to the Atlantic City meeting which he believes is of little professional value) and Mrs. Frances Shipley, the votes of Gibbs, Don Beggrow and Joe Mace carried the recommendation, after the board member provision was deleted.

The second skirmish was with the Hamilton Local Teachers Association and involved the teacher's attendance at the annual meeting of the Franklin County Education Association and that of the Central Ohio Teachers Association.

The school calendar now allows two "professional days" with school dismissed, to allow attendance at these meetings.

THE DEMAND of the HLTA that attendance at the meetings be optional with teachers authorized—at their discretion—to spend the day in the Hamilton building pursuing their own professional interests was sharply contested by Savel.

He took the attitude that the professional days were designed for professional growth opportunity and attendance should be mandatory.

He stated if the majority of the teachers feel the meetings without value, then the professional days should be abandoned and school should remain in session.

ALTHOUGH THE board went along with Savel, Don Russell of HLTA was later assured by Lares that the matter could be opened for reconsideration.

Although the question of renewing the contract of Al Knodel as clerk treasurer, which expires Dec. 31 was placed on the agenda by Savel, the board declined to discuss the matter.

By law, the four-year contract cannot be officially renewed until the organizational meeting Jan. 6, but it is general policy that such employes are given a letter, stating the board's intent, in advance.

THE REMINDER by Savel that he must be notified by February as to the disposition of his contract which expires July 31, 1969, was also ignored by the board.

A report by Roger McBrety of the architectural firm employed by the board indicated that the Middle School will definitely be ready May 31 and may possibly be ahead of schedule.

The architect quieted doubts that have been expressed about the semi-windowless building with the ex-

Quality Schools Dealt Fatal Blow

Canal Winchester and Hamilton Local school administrators and boards went about the dreary task of trying to pick up the pieces of their shattered educational systems this week.

When votes were tallied after the special election Tuesday night and it was learned the proposed operating levies had failed, it meant only one thing — the public had bought itself a community crisis.

AND LITTLE comfort was taken from the fact that voters hadn't screamed "No," as they had in November when asked to support their schools, but merely whispered "Huh-uh," as they defeated the issues by relatively small margins.

At press time, the unofficial tally for Canal Winchester was 453 for and 526 against, a difference of 73 votes compared to that of 290 at the general election when 500 more persons turned out.

Similarly, in Hamilton the count appears to be 644 for and 852 against, with the preponderance of nays dropping from 444 to 108 with about 300 fewer votes tallied.

NEITHER SCHOOL district is considering an early appeal from the verdict, as even a change of heart in January will not put any money in the bank until 1970.

In Canal Winchester (where only Precinct A in the village proper and the Carrol precinct approved the levy) the board will meet Monday night to begin final judgment on the way $45,000 can be trimmed from a $559,000 budget with least harm done to the educational program.

According to Supt. Carl Miller, failure of the 6.6 mills will be felt immediately with curtailment of purchases, field trips and extra curricular activities, but will hit the hardest next fall when staff and program will be cut in an effort to stretch available dollars through the 1969 calendar year without closing the schools.

ALTHOUGH HE expressed considerable concern about the quality of the program that can be offered, Miller indicated that the payroll can be met.

He reiterated the board's earlier stand that busing will be continued. With transportation costs largely subsidized by the state, little would be gained by and much would be lost in service by such a move.

Asked whether he expected a mass exodus of students to Eastland Vocational School next fall, Miller said he didn't anticipate it, but was less confident about the staff.

APPARENTLY rumors about staff resignations to date have been exaggerated, but he reported three resignations have been received.

In Hamilton where the situation is considered even more critical than in Canal Winchester, Board President Bill Lares stated he has no plans to call a special meeting of the board.

"The public told us something," he said, "and now we have to get along on what we have."

EXPRESSING the belief that the levy had been picking up popular support recently, he feels if the election had been three weeks later, the results would have been reversed.

In the meantime, with funds almost depleted, schools will close next Friday for Christmas vacation and not reopen until January 20, with the lost days made up in June.

Although Lares hasn't a prosecutor's opinion on the matter, he believes the partial payment of teacher's salaries in January (to be made up after new funds are available) will constitute a breach of contract and the members of the faculty will be free to leave.

ASKED TO pinpoint the source of the defeat of the 13-mill levy, Lares stated that lack of support of the issue by Tim Gibbs of the board was perhaps the greatest single factor.

He was also resentful of the repeated televising by a local station Monday night of an interview with John McClain, an elderly resident of the community.

McClain was pictured telling the interviewer passage of the levy would force him to sell his home.

IN THE REPORT of Monday night's board meeting appearing on page one, are the general economy moves adopted by the board.

In view of the levies' defeat, it becomes of interest to take a closer look at several areas.

Obetz residents will perhaps be hit the hardest by the closing of its elementary school next September, with children bused to Central.

THE STAFF positions that will be eliminated will include two elementary physical education teachers, two elementary music teachers, one speech and hearing therapist,

WHERE THE ACTION REALLY IS

The real, "street-style" recruiting of the so-called hard-core unemployed often goes unnoticed. A new approach, however, is being tried now by the Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization, utilizing coach recruiters. Van Sailor, left, is shown lining up some projects for the training program. His background is not totally unlike that of the young men he recruits. Sailor is aware of the frustration of ghetto residents — and he understands the promise of the CMACAO program. See the full story of this exciting venture on page 11. projection presented to the board this week predicts student population will jump from the present 4,500 to 5,032, a figure consistent with the growth pattern experienced during the past five years.

According to Supt. Phil Williams, from 100 to 120 of the additional pupils will be at the high school level, 90 to 100 in grades seven and eight and the balance in kindergarten and elementary.

Resignations accepted included those of Forrest Garner, high school math teacher who is leaving the teaching profession the end of the semester; Dorothy Farrell, grade two, Groveport, who will not return after Christmas vacation as her husband is being transferred to Japan; Sheryl Passero, Asbury second grade teacher whose husband is leaving military service; and John W. Waugh, custodian and bus driver, who resigned last week to move to Florida.

MISS SUZANNE Palsgrove, Groveport Madison alumna who is a winter graduate of Ohio State, will replace Mrs. Farrell.

Other business included approval of time and one half rather than straight time for overtime to non-certificated employes to comply with federal law.

Retroactive to February, 1967, the estimated $1,100 due will be cleared up this month.

The meeting was adjourned to a special session to be called by Board President Wayne Wilson either Wednesday, Dec. 18, or Monday, Dec. 23, to wind up the year's business.

An organizational meeting will be held Monday, Jan. 6.

TREE SYMBOL

The fir tree was an early religious symbol in many parts of the world. Dr. Oswald Hoffman, of radio's The Lutheran Hour says this was probably brought about by the fact the fir is evergreen and always flourished through each of the four seasons; thus symbolic of a beloved God who was immortal.

Madison Cafeteria Operation In The Red

An operating loss of $7,482 in seven-months of cafeteria operation of the Madison Local School District heralds a probable price increase for high school students and teachers.

Currently all students are charged 35 cents for a substantial and well-balanced meal with teachers paying a nickel more.

Supt. Phil Williams has recommended that the first of the year, the price for children in grades seven through 12 be raised to 40 cents and teachers' tickets hiked to 50 cents.

He points out that with thes prices in effect during the same seven month period in 1968, an $18 surplus would have replaced the deficit.

The fact that adult lunches not subject to reimbursement under Federal regulation, Williams states, actually results in a subsidy of the cost of staff lunches by the children.

"I know of no board of education that holds out a lunch below cost as a fringe benefit for teachers," the superintendent informed the board.

With it generally agreed that Madison lunches could not be purchased for twice the cost at nearby restaurants, little opposition is expected from those affected.

The matter will be further considered at the special session later this month.

Quality—

a remedial reading teacher and two classroom teachers.

Pupil-classroom ratio will be raised for the second time in two years and cuts in the high school curriculum will involve humanities, advanced biology, sliderule, speech and dramatics and journalism, and possibly other areas.

The impact of the curtailment of purchase of new text books is illustrated by the elementary math situation.

CURRENTLY, NEW math is being taught in the first three grades with the plans made to provide new math texts for the next three grades in the fall.

This will be impossible, and the students with a modern math foundation will be switched to the older system at grade four.

According to John Savel, superintendent, another problem is the "moral dilemma" faced by the professional staff members.

HE ASKS whether it is better to maintain the present program until the finances run out and then close the schools, or cut back drastically, "seriously challenging the basic value of a democratic society, that an informed, intelligent citizenry is the most important line of defense against all forms of tyranny. Free men cannot be taught properly by slaves Courageous citizens cannot be well educated by scared hired men."

planation that a blower system with a "swamp cooler" will assure adequate ventilation.

THE BUILDING was planned with as few windows as possible to make more efficient the operation of future air conditioning.

It was also clarified that the occasional necessity to open the junior high windows to avoid "baking" teachers and students is the result of the custodial staff's lack of familiarity with the new boiler.

The architect is confident the excess heat from the steam system will be halted when "the boiler and the staff get to know each other."

PERSONNEL matters involved accepting the resignation of Mrs. Sara Tallbacka, speach and hearing therapist for Central and the Junior High, effective the end of the semester and employment of Miss Cameron Lee Rumsey as a fifth grade teacher at South, effective Jan. 6.

Democratic Women Plan First Party

Officers for 1969 will be elected when the Southeast Women's Democratic Club holds its first annual Christmas party at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 12, in the Huntington National Bank Building in Canal Winchester.

'Avenging' Wehrle 5 Eyes Rangers

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Sports Writer

Wehrle is out to "set the record straight" quite a few times this season.

At least that's the way things look after the knock-down, drag-out fight the Wolves had with CCL foe Ready Friday.

THE VERDICT was 62-59 in the Wolverines' favor when the dust settled, and automatically Bob Fowle and his charges started to prepare to avenge a couple of '67-68 whippings.

"We'll try to make up for last year," was Fowle's feelings on Hamilton Township as the Rangers slipped a couple of mickeys in the Wolves' brew last campaign. The dosage didn't set well with the Parsons Avenue operators.

"Even though they beat us by close scores, we want revenge," Bob reiterated.

WEHRLE WILL have to go hunting for a couple of pretty capable scorers to turn the trick as John Cunningham and C. A. Johnson show sharp shooting eyes.

"They're also a good-sized team," Bob admitted. "Our tallest is Mike Sachs at 6-2."

The Rangers and Wolves will probably line up about even in that column as Mike Grayem will send in his tallest—Johnson, at about 6-3.

BOB FRYER, a 6-2 cornerman for H-T, will offset Wehrle's Dave Maurer (6-1) and sixth-man Ed Bauman's 6-1 size.

Hamilton fashioned its two strongest ingredients—speed and ball maneuvering — to whip Dublin Friday (65-59) while Wehrle was outscrambling Ready in what Fowle called a "running and racing match."

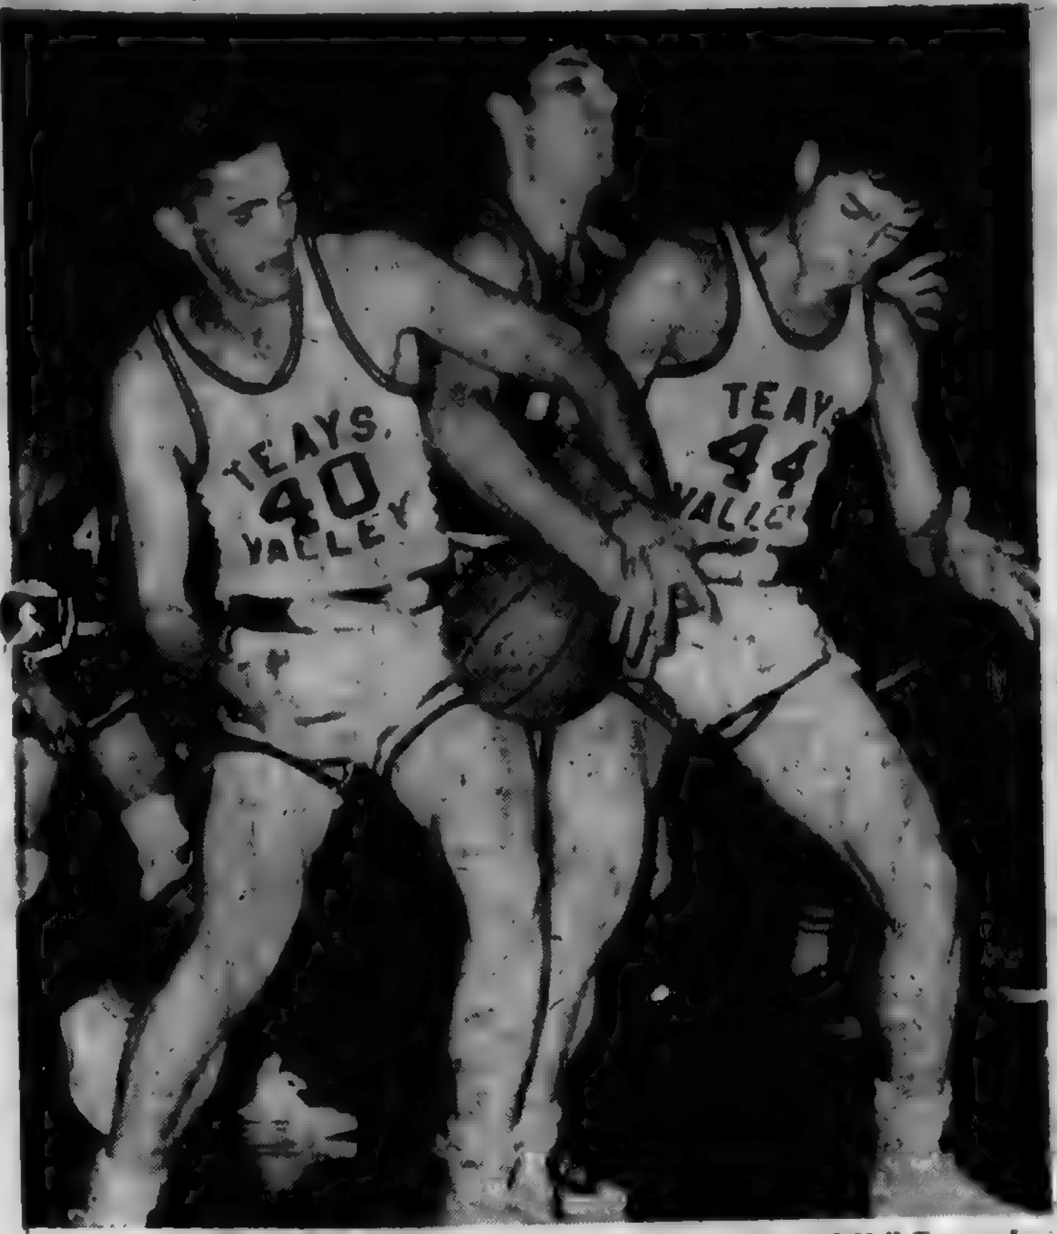
"It was an overall team effort although Maurer was the top scorer with 21 points," Bob said. "In the end, we were probably better at the foul line and that was the difference."

"WE'LL HAVE to grow up a bit," noted Mohawk's Dave Scheetz on his Indians' first two City League performances. But after a narrow loss to South (50-47), West had better hope that Mohawk doesn't have growing pains for at least another week.

"Experience hurt us both times, especially in the pressure aspect of it," Dave said. "But we didn't make East a do-or-die situation," he added.

The Indians have been getting top mileage out of Fred Saunders (6-7) and Bruce Nelson (6-3) on the regular crew, and Scheetz likes the sub work of Greg Bell, a 6-4 sophomore, and Lew Hale, a first-line replacement.

"WE HAVE about seven men to draw from for the starting nod and that is a favorable situation," he concluded.



"FREEZE-OUT" — Teays Valley's Larry Dixon (40) and Neil Fosnaugh (44) put the squeeze on West Jefferson's Craig Landrum Friday as the Viking cagers cut down the competition for this loose ball.

South Only Area Mat Winner; Cruisers Fall

Only South of area teams debuted successfully as the '68-'69 schoolboy wrestling season unfurled the curtain last week.

The Bulldogs provided an opening victory for new coach Gordon Brooks as they decisioned Mohawk, 28-21, on the strength of middleweight points.

ELSEWHERE, Linden slipped past Marion-Franklin (26-21), New Albany bounced newcomer Wehrle (32-17) and strong-closing Hilliard eked out a 24-23 nod over defending Mid-Eight titlist Groveport.

John Butler's Indians at Mohawk started strong (decisions by Marv Edmonston and Gary Miller at 103 and 112 respectively) and finished the same way (decision by Gerald Strother at 175 and pin by heavyweight Joe Anderson) but got only one victory in between (Bob Burnett's pin-win at 145).

Co-captain John Vick (138), Jerry Driggs (154) and Paul McCamey (165) secured Bulldog pins while Tony Britford won by decision and Barry Jones and Dick Taylor took forfeit nods.

A CLOSING pin by Steve Grabovich (175) and Wendell Fellure's decision at heavyweight weren't quite enough to complete a heady Red Devil comeback vs. Linden.

Bright spots in Wehrle's initial setback were pins by Bill Payne (120) and Kieran Astley (175).

MIKE EGGER'S decision at 112 and draws for Fred Miller and Craig Bauman earned the other points for Dave Erwin's Wolves.

Heavyweight Rick Cantrell's pin-win in the final seven seconds of the match completed a king-sized Hilliard comeback as the Wildcats downed Groveport.

A forfeit victory by Dick Franks (103), back-to-back pin-wins by Oshal Waugh (112) and Larry Lang (120) and Gary Lang's decision at 127 boosted the Cruisers into a wide 18-0 lead.

BUT HILLIARD slammed the door tight with Mel Jackson's pin victory at 165 the only Groveport points the rest of the way.

The Cruisers lost two tough verdicts by a single point — Dave Maxwell to Jim Pack at 138 (6-5) and Andy Lyles to Mike Kuhlwein at 154 (8-7).

McKee, Callahan Play For Otterbein Cagers

Two area cagers are competing for Otterbein College's '68-'69 varsity cage squad this [illegible]

Jim McKee, a 1965 graduate of Groveport High and son of Clifford McKee of 5587 Clinger Court, is a 6-6, 215-lb. regular center and captain who averaged 18.4 pts. in 21 games last season.

Backing up McKee is 6-6, 192-lb. sophomore center Charley Callahan, a graduate of Marion-Franklin High and son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Callahan, Jr., of 509 Glendower Ave.

TELL HIM, REF! — Teays Valley's Ed McCord (on floor) looks on approvingly as referee charges foul on West Jefferson foe who decked McCord on drive-in attempt Friday. McCord's field goal attempt was good and Viking junior added free throw to provide 48-46 lead in fourth period. (Spectator photo by Sack Wittenmeier).

WELLKOMM

Will Plank meant it when he posted Wellkomm over the back door, located at the parking lot.

In fact, all his help join with him with that warm, friendly welcome smile as they hurry to fetch German-made beer by the mug or pitcher. It's that way right on through to the kitchen help. "We all love Willie, and work hard to take care of his business," one waitress said. No better compliment could be paid any president or mother.

Peggy Clevenger, night waitress, was the first to work at Plank's, now in its eighth year at the corner of Whittier and High. But nearly all have been there a long time. Nancy Hunter does the cooking, Dottie Yuhas is a day waitress, as is Rosy Huffman. Then there are Marjie Campbell, Carl Rounds, Leo Huffman. Peggy Anderson's daughter, Nancy, has been working part time the past two years, while Jim Myers, a Southsider, is in his fifth year. Dorothy Miller helps lead the singing and helps you to sing-along.

Planks is a good place to go for good home cooked food, or to meet a neighbor and shoot the breeze on how you would have made the play that lost the game.

Planks have a set menu. They have beef stew and ribs on Mondays, Wednesdays it's bratwurst. Thursday's baked German loaf is made of beef, pork and liver mixings. There is always a choice every day.

There is also something for those who come along who haven't acquired a taste for German cooking. There are the regulars like chicken and T-bone steak, cooked to please the diner.

Nixon Is A Bit German

Richard Nixon's mother was a Quaker. Quakers are followers of George Fox, a British seeker after spiritual truths. They are known also as the Society of Friends.

Research into Jakob Ammon of Switzerland and other smaller sects reveals sidelights of the Quakers. They gained renown in England because of persecution there. But they entered England by way of Ireland. Their roots began in Switzerland, but only because soldiers defected, and parents had enough of supplying soldiers for armies. The Swiss offered protection as a parent home. They called Switzerland their homeland for protection.

Almost all religions had their origin in Switzerland, a country that served soldiers and a bridge for neighboring warring countries. Many founders were of German heritage, an era transfigured by Luther Reformation and ultimate destruction of thousands of Germans.

Quakers are Friends of the Soil. Their churching is prayer and meditation, living close to God and nature. Their ministry is of an inspirational leadership. Oldsters wear the habit of the Plain Sects. One could say one of German heritage is president-elect of the U.S. through his mother's side of the house. Four years ago he announced he was a Presbyterian. Childhood training never leaves one.

He is not the only one with German heritage who rose in the political ranks.

German born John Peter Altgeld, past governor of Illinois (1893) and but for the quirk of a quelled Pullman Works strike in Chicago, he would have been the Democratic nominee at the 1896 convention. Altgeld's book "Our Penal Machinery and Its Victims," is a classic in constructive social measures which he helped to incorporate into law.

Some wrote that Altgeld missed the presidency nomination because of his German ancestry, and coupled it with the stronghold the Communist party was gaining in America, a group founded by German born Wilhelm Weitling after 1846. He just didn't campaign hard enough.

About Our Advertisers . .

Paul's on South High carry two German magazines called Nune Illustrierte Revue and Stern. Stern means Star, Fate in English. Its format is like Look and Life. WIG WILES

Wig Care is becoming a major part of beauty service today. We thought you might like to know a little more on Wig Wiles, and decide to Wig or Fall.

Wigs, falls, wiglets, braids and other small pieces are impulse items. If a woman sees one she likes, she purchases it at that moment.

She might get it home, try it on a number of times before venturing out in public with it on. Nevertheless, she has a Wig on hand when the next flippant moment arrives to make a new self.

Women have a wide choice of hairgoods at virtually all price levels. Purchase from a hairdresser ensures a better fit. Too tight wigs which are not worn, hurt the trade.

Owning a wig or hairpiece, hairdressers are brought to the fore to teach the women how and when to wear them. Finally, the hairdresser explains the special care.

Wig care by hairdressers consumes a great part of their time. The busy social-minded woman, the public entertainer or business woman merely changes her Wig and away she goes to another appointment, neatly coiffured.

Christine's Beauty Fashions have a nice selection from which to choose. They also offer the best in Wig care.

HAIRPIECES . . .

The demand for men's hairpieces is growing fast. It was back to school for many to learn step by step measuring to final placement of the finished piece on the head. Styles and types of hairpieces vary with the customer and his needs.

Men, young and older, both find hairpieces the answer to effective good grooming. A little later we will give you some startling news about men's hair pieces in the early 1900's, and those thick full mustaches so German like in character.

ABOUT OUR ADVERTISERS . . . .

Earl is back!

Earl Rhodes Jr. is back home to stay after a 2-year tour of duty in the Army. His last Service Camp was Bemberg, Germany. "There are no signs of WW II anywhere. All has been rebuilt," Earl said.

Earl is an old-timer in the Southside, in the Pizza business. Now that he is back, his mother, Verna Rhodes, will back away from serving Pizza by Order and let Earl take over.

German Village Pizzas vary from a dollar to $3.35 depending upon the garnishes. Delivery fee is only a quarter, anywhere. Calls not only come from residents but transients in Clarmont Motel, YMCA, and downtown Hotels.

Night workers find German Village Pizza a good lunch time item. County jail deputies, impounding lot workers, and men in the railroad towers on the Southside enjoy hot Pizza at times. "Downtown delivery is easier to handle than areas farther south," Mrs. Rhodes said.

John D. Kiner is a specialist in imported car service with 10 years experience back of him. He offers complete tune-up or motor overhaul of any Model import or antique car at his garage.

The 1814 Senior Citizens Shop has Ceramics of all kinds for sale. Made by oldsters with high hopes in their heart that shoppers will buy their handi-mades. You will find all kinds of Tree ornaments, Cards with Tatting, Upside Down dolls with Grandma on one side and Red [illegible] Hood and the Wolf on [illegible]ther. For oldsters looking for a nice comfortable dress or lounge robe, there are the three arm hole dresses that need no buttons or zippers.

Der Village Markt has one of the largest selections of domestic and imported wines anywhere. Try their hot barbecued ribs to go.

Add to the fragrance with flowers, wreaths and greens from Sally's Flowers. No parking problem, plenty of elbow room to shop.

Buying the Special Girl a car for Christmas? Buick's Opel Kadetts at Len Immke's are good-looking, roomy, and easy on the pocketbook later on in upkeep and use. A tank of gas could carry her through the week's social activities and bussing the kids to school. It promises easy starting, and assured arrival with safe driving. See the Opel Kadetts at Len Immke's today. They are economical, and take a hard work-out as easily as the sure-pull of the elephant that emblemizes the Opel Mini-Brutes.

Where does Lindenhof Restaurant get its name? There are Linden Trees growing in the front and back yard. In front is an American small leaf Linden Tree, while in the back yard is one that was brought here from Germany as a sapling in the late 1800's. "Linden Trees are popular in Germany," Max Behr, Lindenhof Chef said.

"Its flowers are used to make a tea, something like America's Camomile which is good for the stomach and nerves," he continued.

The Village Inn is again serving good steaks and seafood, draft beer and cocktails.

Sally's Flowers have new novelty gift items that German Villagers would like.

Old Fashioned Jars (with corks) filled with Spices, 32 kinds of them, make a lovely gift for German Villagers anywhere. Another group contains Jellies and marmalades. All are in the old fashioned jars. Planters and Poinsettias make nice Christmas gifts. Open House at Sally's Flowers will be Sunday, 1-6 p.m. Take this opportunity to see Christmas gift items, artificial and fresh flowers.

Stockings Stuffers at Dor-O-Bel Gift Shop start at 39 cents, a little game the toddlers or oldsters alike will enjoy. You will want to wear one of their Christmas tree lapel pins. They are multi-colored, about three inches in height, and cost only $2.25. They are a great buy at this low price.

Dor-O-Bel have hand made stockings for only $2.00 to hang on the tree for the baby-to-be and another for the bride-to-be. By the way, they offer the stockings free for next year for any twins or triplets born over the holidays. Shop Dor-O-Bel easily for there are no parking problems.

For something that is different for the gift of clothing, you will find pretty little things at the Cielito Lindo Mexican Shop just off S. High Street. The sweaters are bulky but unusual in beautiful designs. You will find the shirtwaists' stitching plentiful and suitable for both men and women. One particular shirt is called the Wedding Shirt, worn by the man in Mexico but by the women at weddings in this country.

Shop Cielito Lindo for clothing, purses, pottery and other novelties. Prices are inexpensive, styles are different, quality is good.

Linden Laden offers unusual gift items, many with foreign flair. They carry many of Bill Arter's paintings, as well as his vignettes now offered in book form. Paintings cover St. Joseph's Cathedral, the Schumacher Castle and German Village landmarks. Nowhere will you find such a collection of stocking stuffers as at Linden Laden.

Christmas shop early at Linden Laden, move over to the restaurant side and eat heartily of good German cooking.

Mohawk Grill offers a sea food dinner platter every Friday night. On the platter is turtle, three shrimp, three oysters, 1 frog leg, plus potatoes, salad, rolls and butter—all for $3.40. Fried turtle is a specialty of the house.

German Village Noodle Recipe

HAMBURGER NOODLE SOUP

1 lb. ground beef
1 cup chopped onion
3 T. drippings
4 cups tomato juice
2 T. celery leaves
1 dash celery salt
¾ t. Worcestershire sauce
salt to season
3 quarts boiling water
1 T. salt
1 8 oz. package German Village Noodles (fine)

Brown meat and onions in drippings or other shortening. Add tomato juice, celery leaves, celery salt, Worcestershire sauce and salt to taste. Cook noodles separately by adding slowly to rapidly boiling salted water. Boil noodles until tender (about 35 minutes), drain and combine with soup. Simmer for 15 minutes.

A Great Loss

The shock of State Rep. Robert G. Jones' death a week ago will take a long time to wear off.

Bob Jones was not an ordinary man. He was a rarity in politics — a man driven by a desire to do what was right for people. His devotion to what he felt were worthwhile causes was almost religious in quality — and, in fact, he was an active lay minister in his church.

Bob Jones brought to his constituents and the state of Ohio a devotion to duty and a sense of justice that brought him the respect and admiration of all his colleagues.

He will be missed deeply.

And we issue a challenge for men like Bob Jones to get involved — to try to fill his large footsteps.

More Welfare Problems

Another top administrator has left the Franklin County Welfare Department in the wake of Tom Brittenham's dismissal as director and Michael Seidemann's appointment as acting director.

While some changes are inevitable when top leadership is changed, it seems to us that the turmoil which has so thoroughly damaged the department's effectiveness is not only still alive but is, in fact, gaining momentum.

Franklin County's welfare situation is already in a mess. There are too few qualified workers to straighten it out. The loss of even more qualified professionals will only make matters worse.

The time to correct this trend is now —before it gets so out of hand that the entire welfare system in this county is destroyed beyond repair.

It is incumbent upon Acting Director Seidemann to immediately re-evaluate his administration's posture. And it is incumbent upon incoming County Commissioners Mike Dorrian and Harold Cooper as well as incumbent Robert Southwick to take a long, hard look at welfare operations and act quickly to restore some semblance of stability to the department.

Well Put

Rarely have we seen a controversy as succinctly put into its proper perspective as was the potential Baumann-Dorrian race for Columbus City Auditor

Deputy Service Director John Jones, chief City Hall Democratic strategist, performed the feat by commenting:

"This is ridiculous, a plumber (Baumann) wanting to be auditor when we've got a certified public accountant (Dorrian) we've been grooming for three years."

With the temperature in the 20's, few people are thinking about the hot weather to come next summer. But, the use of air conditioning steadily rises year after year. Air conditioning, once considered a luxury, is now widely regarded as a major necessity of modern living. Expenditures for cooling equipment in 1968 will approach $5 billion — over twice the level of 1963.

Now that so many people have become accustomed to working in an air conditioned environment, more and more feel they should be equally as comfortable at home and in their automobiles. Almost half of the 1968 cars have cooling units, compared with one in seven in 1963. One out of every three new homes has a built-in cooling system.

Last year, the sales of air conditioning equipment for use in structures totaled $4.2 billion — a gain of 14 per cent over 1966. During the past ten years, the average annual increase in volume has been 11 per cent — more than twice the growth rate of the building industry as a whole.

There are three principal types of equipment: engineered systems, unitary installations and individual room units.

Sales of engineered systems have doubled in the past six years. Because of their large size, they are shipped as separate components by the manufacturer and assembled at the building site. Almost every new office building, motel or hospital is now being equipped with an engineered system.

Unitary installations are assembled at the factory and shipped as a complete package. The primary market is smaller stores, office buildings, motels and restaurants, as well as homes. Residential use accounts for two-thirds of the shipments. In 1967, unitary installations in homes were twice the number of installations of five years ago.

Room units were the first widely used form of residential air conditioning. Sales mounted to the annual rate of 1.5 million units by the mid-50's. The number shipped in 1967 was 4.2 million units.

Collision Course

By ROBERT TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

Franklin County's Democratic community is bracing for what promises to be the wildest political free-for-all in years.

Publicly, the principals are City Treasurer Hugh Dorrian and City Councilman James Baumann. Both are seeking the post of City Auditor, now held by Republican John Price, who will not seek another term.

Dorrian, Baumann and at least one Republican will be on the May nonpartisan primary ballot with the top two vote-getters going on the November ballot.

But behind the scenes is where the real struggle is shaping up. The combatants are Mayor Sensenbrenner's City Hall Democratic machine and the county organization. Specifically, the battle has been joined by County Chairman George Twyford and Deputy City Service Director John Jones, the mayor's political chieftain.

It is not the first time the two factions have clashed—but for the most part the disagreements haven't been out in the open. A classic recent example was Herbert Pfeifer's campaign for Congress. Pfeifer was strongly backed by the county hierarchy while City Hall kept its hands off the race.

This time, it promises to be a wide-open Pier 6 brawl with more than the Dorrian-Baumann race riding on the outcome.

It could determine the future course of the Franklin County Democratic party.

Haircut

By TED BEARDSHEAR

As a youth, I jumped into the barber's chair and simply got my hair cut.

In my teens, the style was a flat-top, and I demanded it in the fashion of the period: short, round, flat and square.

Along about my mid-20's, the style turned to longer hair, Princeton Cuts they were called. So I'd jump in the chair and order a Princeton Cut.

About this time, barbers began to notice a little hair growing inside my ears. They'd trim off a few strays and I didn't think much about it.

In the 30's, the style was very long hair. But now barbers were not only clipping my hair and my ears, they added my nose too.

Style wasn't too important any more. I just jumped in and ordered a haircut SHORT, SHORT, SHORT. Simple. Lasted six weeks.

And by this time the price was high enough to warrant thinking in terms of making one cut last six weeks.

In the style conscious years (and the cheaper ones), every two weeks was mandatory.

Now then, I have just returned from my barber. I have it SHORT, SHORT, SHORT. It'll last six weeks and I'm happy.

However, two unusual things occurred.

Note how, through the years, the barbers have added my ears and my nose to the haircut.

Today was the day of days. I got a haircut. I got the ear clip. I got the nose job.

Thinking it was all over, I began to get up. A forceful hand pulled me back.

The barber took out a razor and SHAVED the TOP of my ears. There was hair there. Then he took a special scissors and TRIMMED MY EYEBROWS.

At this rate, I figure in 20 years I'll be as hairy as Colo and have to get my clippings at the Columbus Zoo.

There's no other alternative.

"I Guess It Really Is Time To Do Something About This"

Tito Arias 'Unforgettable'

By ROBERT W. REIDER
Editor and Publisher

REIDER

Former Ohio Governor Michael V. DiSalle, whose varied talents take him frequently to such far-off global glamor spots as Rio de Janeiro and Berne, Switzerland, is a leading figure in an intriguing movement to restore political peace to tiny but, strategically, important Panama.

Recently, Panamanians were caught again in one of their periodic explosive upheavals.

DiSalle is working closely with Tito Arias, member of a prominent Panama family now in temporary (he hopes) exile. Arias has taken residence in Manhattan's Navarro Hotel and from this Broadway point confidently plans the ultimate return of government to the Panamanian "people."

A wealthy coffee grower and member of a family that has guided Panama's destinies for a number of generations, Arias comes by his role naturally.

His father served a term as president of Panama. His uncle was elected on four occasions — only to be thrown out by revolutionaries. The last time was a few months age when he was deposed after serving only 11 days.

Tito, himself, is a remarkable example. He is a gunshot victim of a 1964 revolution. It left him paralyzed from the waist down, speechless and permanently confined to a wheelchair.

But neither his keen mind nor his courage was affected. Despite handicaps which would have defeated the average person, he is one of the world's best-read men, hears and understands perfectly, and undergoes a strenuous daily work session that would exhaust the average individual.

As a young man, he was a close friend of the Roosevelt family. He has been intimately associated with the Kennedys for years. The late Senator Robert Kennedy (who himself ironically later became an assassin's victim) visited Arias several times while he was confined in a Panama hospital, recovering from the attempt on his life.

Arias was a close friend of the late Winston Churchill, has represented Aristotle Onassis for many years, and numbers many world leaders among his close friends.

Tito is married to Margot Fonteyn, internationally famous dancer, and it is obvious that they are deeply devoted.

When we spent an hour with Tito in a hotel suite in New York the other day, his alert mind covered an amazing number of topics, clearly reflecting his financial genius and quick grasp of international politics.

Tito "communicated" with us through Marlene, his loyal and alert secretary of the past five years. She complements her employer well. With an Oriental trace in her ancestry, Marlene is strikingly attractive and on an intellectual par with the unusually able man she serves so well.

Tito candidly places the blame for most of his country's current woes on Castro-fed agents who have infiltrated the Panamanian government, plus the quickened pace of the international drug traffic in Panama and other Central American nations.

Panama's militia, incidentally, numbers only 4,800 men. Obviously this is not enough to defend the country and consequently its primary purpose is to serve as a national police force.

Tito Arias unselfishly is dedicating his time and personal resources to what he is certain will be a restoration of governmental freedom for his beloved Panama.

One of the vehicles he expects to use to accomplish this is an about-to-be formed Committee for Preservation of Constitutional Democracy in the Western Hemisphere. DiSalle's prestigious Washington law firm is assisting in the formation.

In Remembrance

By JOHN MORGAN

Death is an intimate reality, as personal as the first gasp of breath of a new baby.

It is a time which touches the inner strength of a family.

Only in death are some men revealed —what they have done with their lives brings about the small vacuums which no one else can fill.

The death last Thursday of State Rep. Robert G. Jones, a representative of the 62nd District, has left that kind of vacuum.

IT WAS an unusually chilly day some two weeks before the Nov. 5 election that I accompanied Rep. Jones around for a day of campaigning.

It was to be a hectic day, filled with phone calls and visits to two campaign headquarters. It was, he had told me, a typical day of campaigning. I thought the day would end at his house with dinner. But it really had just started.

We were to go house-to-house later.

Jones believed in what he called a "personal campaign." I think it was because he himself was a warm human being. I saw more than one neighborhood resident respond to his warmth—from an elderly couple sitting in the corner of a drab room to a man whose speech defect would not allow him to respond verbally. He shook Jones' hand and held it for awhile, expressing in this way what he could not express verbally.

We went door-to-door in that predominantly inner-city, black neighborhood.

To each resident there, Jones said the same thing as he got ready to leave. "I want to tell you I'm against George Wallace and everything he stands for."

The people there responded to this. They were surprised first of all that he had taken the time to talk with them. They were even more startled by his honesty.

One old woman was so taken back by his stand on Wallace that she leaped from behind her door to shake his hand. "So are we, Mr. Jones, so are we."

I ASKED him why he bothered to go door to door.

He replied that if he had the money he would utilize television, but he felt that these people had the right to see who was going to represent them.

Earlier in the day we had journeyed to Universtly Hospital to visit one of his campaign workers who had been injured in a fall.

Jones, himself a lay minister in the Methodist Church, confided to me that he often got depressed during these kinds of visits. But he said he looked upon them as "pastoral calling, because there are people in here who need cheering up."

In his Dec. 4 report, which was to be his last, Jones had written these words:

"I COULD never repay all the kindness shown to me.

"In these past few days of my confinement, I've experienced the heart of the real world . . . a world that cares . . . that's filled with concern for people in need."

There are beautiful, gentle people everywhere.

This is the only real truth worth knowing, because it is these people who carry the burdens of the world for the rest of us.

Letters To The Editor

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. In general, preference will be given to writers willing to take responsibility for their views. Letters should be kept as short as possible. All letters are subject to editing.

Praises Policeman

To The Editor:

This is a copy of a letter sent to Mayor Sensenbrenner:

"Being one of the participants in the planned demonstration to procure traffic and walk signals at James and Langfield roads on Sunday, Nov. 17, I wish to commend Police Sgt. Patrick McGarvey for his excellent handling of the situation upon his arrival at the scene.

Sgt. McGarvey was not only courteous and friendly, but also had empathy and a keen understanding of what we were attempting to achieve.

More important, however, was his sensitivity to individual and group dynamics of human beings and their behavior. Unfortunately, too many of his brother officers in the Columbus Police Department, as in other departments around the country, have demonstrated a gross insensitivity to the uniqueness of individual responses or group reactions to emotional stimuli.

Sgt. McGarvey in his conduct exemplifies the type of police officer that is so sorely needed in the police ranks. His action should not go unnoticed nor should he go unrewarded. I hope that he will continue to function in this manner and be an example after which his junior officers can model themselves.

I hope, through you, we can thank him for his courtesy and sensitivity."

Private Drab's Bargaining Table

By ARTHUR HOPPE

HOPPE

"How are the peace talks going?" Private Oliver Drab, 378-18-4454, asked his friend, Corporal Partz, as the two squatted behind a revetment.

"Well, it says here," said Corporal Partz, leafing through a newspaper, "that the Reds are demanding we talk around a square table. But we're holding firm for a rectangular table. And the fur's sure flying."

"I am glad they got something to talk about," said Drab.

"It's mighty important," said Partz. "The Reds say there's four sides negotiating and we say there's only two. So we're going to hang tough for a two-sided table no matter what. And the Reds say they'll never yield an inch. Don't look like there's any solution."

"My grandma could've solved it," said Drab. "What she'd say is . . ."

"Great news, men," cried Captain Buck Ace, striding up, his eyes agleam. "Headquarters has picked us for a dangerous search and destroy mission. Check your weapons and get ready to zap those Charlies!"

"Yes, sir," said Drab politely, "but what for?"

CAPTAIN ACE frowned. "You're not going to start that again, Drab. We've got to get out there and kill Commies."

"But if we're talking peace with them, sir . . ."

"We've got to kill them while we're talking peace with them, soldier, in order to maintain our position at the bargaining table. And those Charlies out there, they're fighting for a square bargaining table."

"But my grandma . . ."

"Blast your grandma!" thundered the Captain "What the hell are you talking about her for?"

"She's dead, sir."

"I'm sorry, son," the Captain said automatically, putting a hand on Drab's shoulder, "my condolences."

"Thank you, sir. But before she died there used be this big fight at her house every Thanksgiving who should get to sit at the head of the table. My Uncle Ed darn near killed Cousin Franklin one time. But my grandma, she solved the whole thing — she went out and got herself a round table! So if we got a round table, sir, we wouldn't have to go out there and get killed to maintain our position at it and . . ."

"Shut up, Drab!" shouted the Captain. "And get out there and fight for whatever I tell you to fight for."

So Private Drab went over the top crying, "Don't give up the rectangular table!" But you could tell somehow that his heart wasn't in it.

AS HE SAID somewhat moodily that night to Corporal Partz as they crouched in a rainfilled foxhole, pinned down by enemy fire:

"Maybe there's something wrong with me, but do you think a rectangular table is a worthy cause to die for?"

"Nope," said Corporal Partz, scrunching lower. "But to tell the truth, Oliver, I never thought of a good enough one yet."

Conducted By
ROLAND SUNKER

There is a great singer with a great voice currently at the Maramor. Lori Rogers is the gal's name and if you watch the Merv Griffin TV show you certainly will know her. She is practically a regular on his show. She is scheduled on the Johnny Carson show as soon as she returns to New York.

But while Lori is in Columbus you must see her. Even though Lori was plagued with a case of the Hong Kong Flu opening night, she came across as a fine singer and entertainer.

What a bundle of enthusiasm this gal possesses. She is vibrant and sings with lots of feeling and heart. Good stage technique and an enjoyable presentation of her material are just a few trade marks of Lori Rogers. On stage, Lori is in command of her music and audience.

Although she is talented and projects well, Lori knows the importance of having good material and arrangements. The material is all solid, strong music that is varied, yet does not get out of bounds. Her arranger and accompanist, Howard Danziger, has done a tremendous job with the charts. By the way, Danziger will soon start to write and arrange the musical score for a movie based on one of Mickey Spillane's novels.

Lori's voice, style and material all add up to an entertaining performance at the Maramor. You have the rest of this week and all of next to catch Lori Roger's act.

Bobby Lewis at 'Opry'

This week at Ohio's Grand Ole Opry is a fellow who plays the lute and has had his United Artists records among the top 10 on the record charts on three different occasions. When you hear Bobby Lewis perform, you'll know why he is considered one of the best country and western performers in the business. He has a pleasing voice. It's a great, full voice that is nice to hear.

Lewis has his own style, which is interesting and shows off his talent. He is able to mix his voice and style into a blend that makes for pretty, pretty music. When you listen to Bobby Lewis at the Ohio's Grand Ole Opry Club, you do so with much amazement because this guy knocks you out.

The only country and western performer to accompany himself on the lute, Lewis achieves a different sound. The lute, the forerunner of the guitar, produces a more mellow and softer sound which blends in with his voice.

If you enjoy good music, you'll be cheating yourself if you don't catch Bobby Lewis this week. You don't have to be a country and western fan to appreciate this fellow's music. See for yourself; you won't be sorry.

Clock's Clock Blows Down

The high winds Thanksgiving day blew down the old clock in front of the Clock Restaurant. But the mightiest of winds will never blow away organist Buddy Cotter. Pleasing patrons at the popular High Street restaurant and lounge for over 13 years, Cotter's personality is as pleasant and enjoyable as is his musical talents.

Corrections, Additions And Meditations . . .

By CLAUDIA ELKINS
Entertainment Editor

Last week I reported some facts about what once was a rumor, that Little Theater Off Broadway had purchased the old Douglas Theater in Grove City, had rennovated it and was opening their first production, "Generation."

Saturday evening I followed up, thusly a follow-up story is necessary . . . . more news . . . . a few corrections and some meditations.

With my long run of bad luck at finding a suitable space large enough (two car lengths required) for me to park my vehicle, I arrived 45 minutes early.

Not wanting to appear too early, for surely I would have blurted out my reason, I counted cars. Conclusion, Grove City has a lot of traffic!

At 8:14 p.m., I wrestled with my gloves and won, locked the car and hurriedly entered the theater.

There it was, a theater every group dreams about, an audience one wishes for and an actor craves. Just large enough to be comfortable and small enough to appreciate theater.

Excitement and pride were everywhere. On faces, in voices and every material object glowed with the love that cleaned and created them.

My mistakes were pointed out by LTOB's guiding light, Dick Grace. I had stated in last week's story that carpeting and permanent seats were in. The carpeting is not down yet, nor are the chairs in. The group is using folding chairs from one of the schools.

But nobody really noticed the floor or the chairs. I would have gladly sat on the floor just to be a part of this memorable event.

Would you believe I sat on the only newly upholstered theater seat in the house? As a matter of fact I, being a critic, (I should think of something witty) was sitting in an area known as the critic's corner.

Its location is at the top of the stairs leading to the old projection room where the light panels and sound equipment are now housed.

The theater is just perfect. But the members I talked wdth are all making plans to improve it! They will: they've gotten to this point, there's no telling what comes next.

As for the show, "Generation," of which I have never been overly fond, was a delightful experience. I heartily laughed (audience also) at the lines which before seemed contrived. Dick Grace's delicate touch of underplay provided the play with a chance to breathe.

Since I do not normally review a show, which is no longer running by the time you read this, I will only add that LTOB had a success, changed my opinion (amassed by their mediocre past performances) and, if wisely handled, may become one of the area's most respected theaters.

Now for the addition. Last week I also mentioned that another rumor had been circulating . . . that a recent successful musical revue might be staged at LTOB.

It will be. "Look For The Joke," written and co-directed by Jerry Loffman and Betty Dragonette for Players Club's experimental theater this past November will be recreated at LTOB Jan. 3, 4 and 5.

Now is the time to reserve tickets.

This show will be a sell out.

There are 132 tickets available for each performance.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m., Friday and Saturday with a 7:30 p.m. curtain on Sunday.

Phone number is 875-5110.

IT IS A COOPERATIVE EFFORT

The annual "Toys for Tots" program has taken on a "Double Good Turn" this year. With Boy Scouts of America, the U.S. Marine Corps, the Columbus Fire Department and Goodwill Industries working together, 12,500 Scouts and their leaders and Marines will be knocking on doors Saturday. Not only toys for tots to be distributed among youngsters who otherwise might find it difficult to believe in St. Nick will be collected, but also discarded household articles that can be repaired by the handicapped learning a trade at Goodwill Industries. In the picture above taken at the Parsons Avenue Fire Station, are Firefighter William Mason, Scout Deloss Whitten, Sgt. Gerald McDowell and Mack Mitchell of Goodwill. ....

Original Composition Winner For Sorority

The original words and music written by Mrs. Terry Hollinger, 217 College St., Groveport, won the Alpha Gamma chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International Sorority first place in the song contest at its winter convention.

Also honored was Mrs. Richard Giehl, 506 Blacklick St., Groveport, who was named first runner-up in the Outstanding Girl Contest as well as song chairman for the State Council.

MRS. GIEHL, who teaches home economics at Groveport-Madison High School, received the award for her community and sorority activities.

Past-president of the sorority, she is now educational director and is actively involved with the Groveport Teen Center and the G-M FHA chapter.

Both Mrs. Giehl and Mrs. Hollinger (who started the Alpha Gamma Chapter as well as chapters in Kentucky, West Virginia and Peru) are holders of the First Degree Pallas Athene Award which is given for individual contributions to the growth, progress and service of the sorority.

ALPHA GAMMA was also given official recognition at the State Council for completion of nine consecutive educational programs.

Concert Set At Wagnalls

Wagnalls Memorial at Lithopolis will be the setting of "Songs of Christmas" Sunday, Dec. 15, at 2:30 p.m. to be presented by "The Happy Wanderers" of Columbus.

The choral ensemble, under the direction of Carl Speckman, will present the most familiar and beloved of Christmas songs, including what Wagnalls describe as an unusually beautiful arrangement of "White Christmas."

The program will also involve audience participation and will close with a candlelight service with the choir singing "Silent Night."

Through the courtesy of Wagnalls, the public will be admitted without charge.

UMC Choir Sets Cantata

A Christmas Cantata will be presented by the Livingston United Methodist Church Chancel Choir Sunday, Dec. 15, at 7:30 p.m.

Entitled "Love Transcending," it will feature several solo parts.

The public is invited.

CHOSEN

Arnold Pack, 3121 Houston Dr., has recently been accepted by the board of the Big Brother Association of Columbus to serve as friend, companion and advisor to a boy in a fatherless home. Those interested in acquiring a Little Brother are asked to call or write the agency, 2104 Tuller St., 294-44:3.

Auxiliaries Plan Holiday Parties

The Auxiliary of the Southway American Legion Post 144 and its junior group are planning separate Christmas parties next week.

The adult party is at 8 p.m. Wednesday, with a gift exchange, a visit from Santa and contributions for a Christmas basket planned.

The program of the teenage unit planned at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 16, will also feature a gift exchange and a visit from Santa.

Southsider Recognized Nationally

Frank Nutis, 821 E. Jenkins, is one of the 18 leaders of the American Jewish community in the field of education who recently was presented the "Amudin Award" in New York City.

The award, which takes its name from the Old Testament word meaning "Pillar," is presented annually by Torah Umesorah, the National Society of Hebrew Day Schools.

Nutis is the founder of the Columbus Torah Academy, the only Columbus Hebrew Day School and the school's first treasurer, and current vice president.

He is a graduate of Ohio State University, a board member of the Agudas Achim Synagogue and a member of the Kiwanis Club of Southern Columbus.

CMACAO Launches Bold Hard-Core Job Program

A SPECIAL REPORT TO THE SPECTATOR

A bold, new, imaginative approach to assist Columbus' hard-core unemployed is now being pursued by "coach recruiters" for the Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization.

Called CMACAO's Manpower Program, the project is now producing significant breakthroughs in recruiting the underemployed inner-city residents for meaningful futures.

IN THE PAST few years, both private enterprise and government agencies have been undertaking countless programs to reach the unemployed.

Probably the most vital aspect of these programs is the recruitment of trainees. Given the tedious nature of recruitment, however, many potential job-seekers often are frustrated.

For the most part in the past, prospective trainees were [illegible]ted to read newspaper advertisements, listen to radio [illegible] television announcements, knock on doors, fill out application after application, make telephone calls or trek across town to employment offices.

CMACAO, however, has discovered a more realistic approach to this problem.

The Manpower Program is charged with the task of providing meaningful employment for the hard-core unemployed.

IT IS THE coach recruiters, however, who have really made this program work.

Under the supervision of David Terry, nine coach recruiters go "where the action is." Their jobs are not relegated to some office desk.

Recruiters spend their time talking to inner-city residents on street corners, in pool halls, recreation centers, front porches, snack bars — wherever unemployed persons are found.

VAN SAILOR, a 23-year-old recruiter, is typical of those who use the "gut-street" approach. Sailor, who cames by his present position through the project, says he was "just like a lot of ghetto guys who got by any way they could."

Sailor understands the plight of the frustrated ghetto resident and is fully aware that those days are not too far removed from his own past. He doesn't always use the "hard-sell" approach. "It doesn't work on everyone," he claims.

"I tell people I've got the opportunity to give them a chance to be what they want to be and do what they want to do," he says.

"I approach some cat sitting in a bar or on the curb and ask him just where he's working and how much money he's making and if he thinks he can do better."

Sailor admits that people don't always listen to him the first time. But he rarely gives up.

"I EXPLAIN the program. I let them know that they don't have to fill out a hundred applications, that someone will help them with all the forms."

Sailor says he explains the program's promise to them. "I explain the hygiene classes, buyers' training program and the course in ethnic — that's black — history that are conducted during the two-week orientation."

Sailor believes that "every man and woman wants to work and improve himself." He feels the Manpower Program will meet this desire. "It helped me," he says simply.

"The thing is," he says, "we have enough fighting and hating. What we need is more love. That's what will cure a lot of the problems we have here."

Sailor says he didn't always feel this way. "Until I got my chance, I just about hated everyone and everything."

But he says now: "The United States is "one house and it's got to be a united house."

THIS STREET approach to recruitment fostered by CMACAO's program has proven successful.

The orientation program — a two-week period consisting of classes in health and hygiene, consumer education and ethnic history — is one significant reason for success.

Donald Tate director of the project with offices at 293 E. Long St., feels the major reason for success in the Manpower Program is the coach recruiters.

The job of the coach recruiter is not a "desk job." Van Sailor, left, one of nine persons working on the job training program, spends a great deal of time in the streets, talking to the so-called "hard-core unemployed" residents of the ghetto. In this phase of the program, Sailor is shown approaching a likely candidate on Mt. Vernon Avenue. In the process of taking these pictures, he signed up four trainees for the Manpower project. Argyle Park Civic Association Asks 'Law And Order'

By JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writer

Some residents of a predominantly black section on the Northeast side of Columbus want law and order in their neighborhood.

At a meeting of the Mayor's Advisory Board Nov. 7, Rev. Cottrell Terry — president of the Argyle Park Civic Association — told members of problems of corruption in his area.

ACTING AS spokesman for both the Argyle Park group and the Marina Park Civic Association, Rev. Terry complained of bootlegging, dope-pushing and numbers operation in his area..

Rev. Terry said illegal activities have been going on for four years.

And he adds: "We think the police could be doing more."

The Mayor's Advisory Board at the Nov. 7 meeting passed a motion requesting that a letter be sent to Police Chief Robert Baus asking for a report on action taken by the police department on the complaints.

The report was to be submitted to the advisory board through the Community Relations Department.

MAJ. ROBERT Gloeckner of the Columbus Police Department said police had been aware of problems in Rev. Terry's area "prior to last summer."

He said that vice squad officers have regularly checked the area and have made one arrest.

The major said the problem was unique, since the area in question was residential, "making information which is necessary for arrests difficult."

The police department is investigating complaints, he added.

"We are still aware of the problem. Any information given to the police will be acted upon."

Maj. Gloeckner concluded that problems in the Northeast section were also visible in other parts of the city.

"We do keep up on them," he added.

MEANWHILE, a spokesman at the Columbus Enforcement Office of the State Liquor Department revealed that he and another agent had talked to Rev. Terry about neigrborhood problems.

"At this time it is a valid complaint," he said.

The spokesman explained that his office covered 28 Ohio counties. "We take enforcement action when warranted," he added.

He said that after a talk with Rev. Terry, his office had been working in that area. "But we cover the whole East Side."

He added that he felt Rev. Terry was a "very conscientious man who has asked for assistance."

"WE ARE trying to assist," he concluded.

Another qualified source said the major difficulty was part and parcel of the "rather tense" relationship between city police and the black community.

The police, he said, are reacting with deliberation in handling the situation because of this tension.

And, he added, while neighborhood residents feel they have a valid case, the police department is after "sure proof in a residential area where such documentation is not easy."

REV. TERRY believes neighborhood residents have voiced their complaints.

"We've established the fact of illegal activities," he said.

He cited his group's appearances before the mayor's board, a petition with 25 signatures complaining of activities and a petition signed by some 30 ministers of the Baptist Ministerial Alliance.

He said letters of complaint have been sent to Mayor Sensenbrenner, Gov. James Rhodes and Columbus Safety Director Fred Simon

ASKED WHY he was so concerned by such alleged activities, Rev. Terry responded:

"I would like to show that maybe in a new community we can really provide a good environment. We repudiate these illegal activities."

He added: "I would like to see our kids — black and white — move up to become good Americans."

Rev. Terry said he was "dumbfounded" by such activities.

And while he is uncertain why more arrests have not been made, he expressed concern that something be done [illegible]

YWCA Schedules Christmas Ball

Chuck Selby, his 11-piece orchestra and featured vocalist, Anne Young, will furnish the music for the Annual YWCA Christmas Ball, Wednesday, Dec. 18, 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. sponsored by the Mid-Week Dance Club.

Everyone is welcome to come, singles or couples.

This will be the final dance of the year, as no dances will be held Dec. 25 and Jan. 1.

NORTH, SOUTH, WEST

Community Issues Stir Quiet Struggle

By JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writer

The present tension over differing philosophies of community organization on the Near North Side may be symbolic of a quiet struggle now taking place in many Columbus neighborhoods.

Residents and community workers in the North Side confronted each other last week on means used to bring about changes in their neighborhood.

CMACAO workers had engaged in attempts to organize the poor, particularly parents and students in the Everett Junior High School District.

Gladden Community House on the West Side was shut down the first week in November in an apparent disagreement between staff members and the settlement house board.

Staff members had contended part of the controversy stemmed from their involvement at Starling Junior High School. Ex-Director Harry Viehman illustrated the split between staff and board when he called the Gladden board's action "impetuous and unnecessary."

Meanwhile, Council of South Side Organizations, (CSSO) was writing a letter to community leaders questioning programs at the settlement house.

THE LETTER revealed a long-brewing difference in philosophies of the CSSO and the settlement house.

Curiously enough, as in the North and West Side, educational issues were again at stake. The CSSO letter stated that certain activities in the South End were preventing teachers and students from achieving classroom goals.

Those involved in community organization argue that is the responsibility of community organizers to involve themselves in the problems of the neighborhood people—and this often spells trouble.

Bernie Wohl, head of the South Side Settlement House, countered that he felt agencies should be "working toward affecting the attitudes that can bring about change."

Grover Banks, a dismissed Gladden worker, said he was essentially concerned that services which revolved around controversial issues—race, poverty, welfare—would be discontinued.

A community worker at the North Side CMACAO center also touched on the same point. He said he believed in "conflict and confrontation."

THE LATEST controversy on the North Side bears some resemblance to patterns at Gladden and the South Side Settlement House.

Rev. William A. Yueill, who serves as president of both the advisory board to the center and to the neighborhood council which questioned methods being employed, suggested that the hassel there is part of a tension evident across the city.

He said that frequently the tension is the result of conflicting philosophies of what community service is all about.

"I can't help but feel," he said, "that this whole CMACAO conflict is an indication that the United Community Council has not been doing things."

But he added: "I don't think this tension is bad, for if there is to be change there must be conflict."

Rev. Yueill pointed out that tensions have not been created. "They have been here for many years."

HE SAID conflict was creative for two reasons: significant differences in viewpoint were being exposed and different roles by separate institutions were being examined.

Frequently some disagreement over policies has been evident between UCC-related agencies and CMACAO.

On the North Side, the minister explained, CMACAO had approved plans "to help the poor people." He said the advisory council approved this goal in October.

"People could have voted on priorities at that time," he said, adding that "persons objecting to CMACAO for the past two years have had the chance to vote on programs."

He said the current controversy stemmed from workers' attempts to support parents and students in the area. He added that council members objected to the means used to take this action.

"Their feeling," he explained, "was don't mess with the professionals' job."

The residents had objected to a flyer billing an organizational meeting as a "Sock-it-to-em session" and to a closed meeting with students.

"SINCE THEN," the North Side pastor said, "the meetings have been open."

While community workers claim problems encountered in these three separate areas are more than coincidence, no one has admitted influencing any neighborhood decisions.

The real issue at stake, Rev. Yueill commented, is differing philosophic [illegible]

He said the news media sometimes seized on particular incidents while neglecting the widespread issues.

"I just hope we can get over this one incident," he concluded.

Here are 7 reasons
why
GAS heat
is best.

(without even mentioning economy!)

- Cleanliness
- Fresh air circulating heat
- Dependability
- Convenience
- Even, whole-house heat
- Quick, precise heat
- Safety

So you can see why more than nine out of ten homes around here are heated with Gas. Not to mention all the things you can do with the money you save with Gas.

One Nation Or Two: What Can Be Done?

(Editor's Note: The racial situation in America appears so confusing and agonizing that even those who want to do something don't know where to begin. Americans are asking: What can we, as individuals, do to solve some of the problems? In an effort to provide some guidelines for action, The Spectator has put this question to key members of the Columbus community).

By JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writer

Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization Executive Director Curtis A. Brooks believes alternatives to the present inner-city economics must be found.

"A dollar bill," Brooks said, "is color blind, and the economic processes involved are independent of the race of the participants. Our country is run by the system of capitalism — supposedly a system of free enterprise and open competition."

NEVERTHELESS, CMACAO'S director explained that a growing minority of blacks and whites do not "actively participate as owners and true competitors.

"Instead of sharing in the nation's affluence, they are like part of an underdeveloped country; their source of employment is like working for a plantation with no concept of profit distribution."

Because these minority groups are not directly involved in day-to-day management, a great deal of unrest has been created, he continued.

What can be done?

"The ghettos of our major cities," Brooks intimated, "should be regarded as sharing the same needs as the underdeveloped countries of the world."

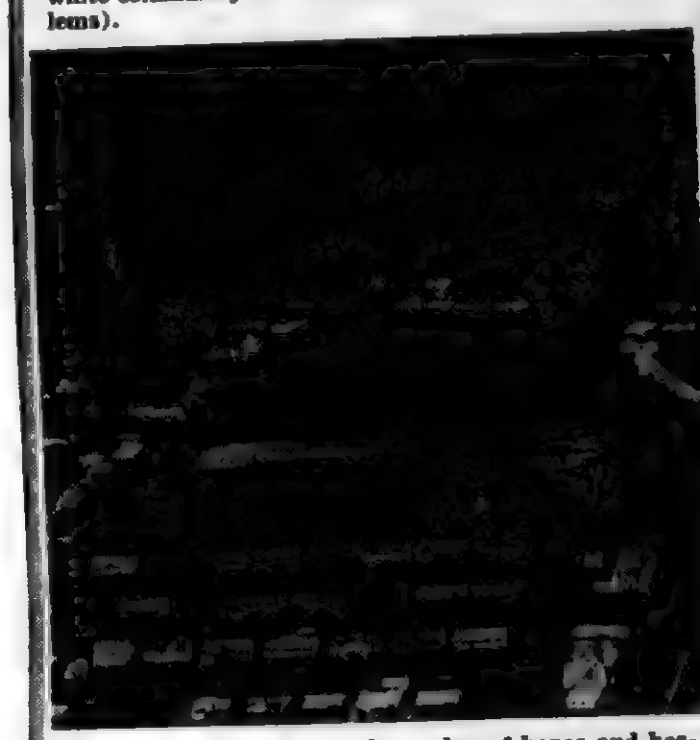
HE SUPPORTS domestic aid — similar to foreign aid — to the inner-city areas to establish private capitalism and achieve an economic base in poverty-stricken communities.

This task must be tackled, he said, "with the full realization that our economy is no longer based on rugged individualism."

He believes all economic forecasts point to the rapid decline of the small businessman in a time of corporate giants.

"The peaceful and orderly transfer of economic wealth to the previously empty pockets of the poor must be undertaken with this fact firmly in mind."

(Next week: Brooks talks about business, the white community and CMACAO's role in solving problems).



This is the city, a hodge-podge of hopes and hostilities, promise and decay. The future of the American city, as the future of Columbus, depends on whether "human power" can be tapped sufficiently enough to meet existing problems. The Federal Riot Commission report could well have been speaking about the future of our cities when it said of black-white relationships that no organism can survive fragmented, divided against itself. Either the city becomes one living organism, where human beings can live where their means and desires dictate, or it turns into an urban nightmare with rich against poor and blacks isolated from whites.

League To Monitor

For the first time in its 50-year history, members of the League of Women Voters of Ohio will officially monitor the counting of the electoral college votes for the state.

League members from all over the state will be in Columbus Dec. 16 to keep tabs on the election count.

The league has chosen the electoral college for a national study because members feel citizens know little about how it works.

The electors, chosen by Ohio voters in the Nov. 5 election, will cast their votes at the Capitol building in Columbus.

Votes then are certified by the Secretary of State and sent to Washington.

On Jan. 6 votes received from all 50 states will be counted by Congress. The president and vice president will then be officially proclaimed.

THE SPECTATOR SPORTS

'CATS, You Say?

SELF-EMPLOYED?

Only the Investment Annuity Retirement Plan has everything you want.

- [illegible]h proprietor, partner and employee chooses his own investments and can make changes freely within his personal tax-sheltered account—before and after retirement.
- Your retirement income will change each year with investment results of your account.
- Lifetime annuity guarantees protect you—and your spouse if you wish—from outliving your account.
- Up to 25% of the employer contribution can be used to buy low cost term insurance, if you wish.
  Example: Of a $2500 contribution, $625 can be used for term insurance. At age 40, this provides $170,000 of insurance protection.
- Death benefits can also be paid as a tax-sheltered, growth-oriented lifetime income.
  Example: Widow age 40 would receive first year annuity payments of $853 per month from a $170,000 account, 15 years certain and life, with payments changing from year to year with investment results.
- There is no charge for telephoning 800-523-2721 any time of the day or night. You may get more information or an enrollment kit simply by leaving your name, address, telephone number and business or profession.

You don't have to be self-employed to be eligible for an Investment Annuity. Immediate or deferred annuities can be used with all types of tax-qualified pension and profit sharing plans, including tax-sheltered annuities for teachers and employees of certain non-profit organizations.

MAVERICK

WITH MUDDY SHOES

Every hunter I have talked with that went afield for upland game tells me that this is the best bird and rabbit harvest in 10 years.

No one seems to know why but the success ratio is well ahead of any recent year. Hunters who have traveled north and west for pheasant have done better than those who went into Pickaway and Fayette counties.

SO FAR, in the first four rainy days of the deer count, the harvest is way down.

Haggard, wet and pouting, the deer hunters can be found drinking cokes at crossroads filling stations, asking if anyone has seen a whitetail.

Averaging an inch of rain a day in some of the prime deer country, the adverse weather has caused the bucks to settle down way back in the bush.

IT'S NEARLY impossible to track them in wet weeds and as the hunter creeps in a thicket, they can creep out the other side without a sound.

When you read this, there will still be enough time to call 469-3770 and pick up tickets for the first annual Ohio Conservation Achievement Day Banquet to be held Dec. 14 at the Youth Center on 17th Avenue in Columbus.

For only $2.50 each, you will have a full day of very interesting guest speakers including outdoor experts from all over the Mid-west—plus special guest Fess Parker.

THE BANQUET will be a $5 one with various individuals and companies picking up half YOUR tab.

You can't beat a deal like that, but you must call right now.

Although the federal firearms law that just went into effect was not too hard on the sportsmen, the interpretation given it by the Treasury Department is a travesty of justice.

NO WHERE did the law mention registration of ammunition buyers. This can serve no earthly purpose.

Most hoods carry very common weapons like .22, .38 or .45 caliber handguns. Now, if you buy the same size as was used in a crime, you may be hauled in and harassed.

If you are like me, you couldn't prove where you were half the time. And as far as going back a month or more and remembering where I was — well, they're just going to have to guess along with me. My memory just isn't that good.

IN TALKING with sporting goods dealers, I find their work has tripled. They must keep track of every shell they sell and must keep the records current and apparently forever.

That great golden dream of every American—owning his own business — certainly has become tarnished in the past few years.

TOURNEY TALK — Berwick will entertain two big tournaments early in '69 — the Ladies City Championship (four weeks in March) and the American Transportation gathering (four weekends in April).

Berwick and Main will split the Kiwanis State event, for teams only, on Mar. 22.

Loretta Linhart, who bowls in two Columbus leagues, is in a three-way fourth-place tie for highest composite league average for the past five seasons — 195 — among members of the Woman's International Bowling Congress.

OTHERS with a five-year 195 average are Doris Coburn of Buffalo, N.Y., and Bobbie Soldan of Costa Mesa, Calif.

Average leader for the five-year period is Jeanette Bonn of Milwaukee, Wis., with 206. Mildred Martorella of Rochester, N.Y., who set an all-time WIBC league average of 219 during 1967-68, has been bowling in WIBC-sanctioned league competition for only four years.

I've been asked about unattached membership. Well, in WIBC, the cost is $2.

IF YOU wish to enter a tournament, buy the unattached membership from the tournament secretary. Your membership makes you eligible to participate in all the season's tournaments sanctioned by WIBC if you comply with the requirements of the individual tournaments.

This does not apply to city or state association tournaments.

In ABC the cost is $2.40 and does cover the city and state tournaments. ABC also has a one-tournament participation fee of $1.

AT THE 1969 WIBC annual meeting an amendment will probably pass to allow the participation membership in that organization also.

The average of averages for all women (WIBC) bowlers has recently been computed as 132 (a "rounded" figure). This is a small increase over the 129.87 average of five years ago.

But it proves that lower average bowlers are the ones who are predominant in leagues. We read more about high scores — but a salute to the lower average gals!

Gahanna, Linden, Watterson, W-J Chart Key League Cage Victories

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Sports Writer

Gahanna's third-period advantage dashed Worthington Friday in the first test case of the newly formed Ohio Capital Conference as John Stanley's Lions,—'67-68 Mid-Eight League champions — zipped to a 68-60 verdict on the third quarter thrust.

"We had a dry spell in the third period and they pulled up by eight," noted veteran Pat Mannion, who is in his first season at the Cardinal helm. "That would have to be the turning point."

WORTHINGTON was on thin ice with a 36-35 intermission lead, and Stanley vows nothing of any consequence was altered during the halftime talk.

But Gahanna, playing in front of a large home following, buzzed to a 16-9 margin in the next eight minutes to put some daylight between the teams.

Fred Points was the man who most determined that last-half Gahanna takeover, and both coaches were in agreement that "he was the difference in the game."

FRED MERELY flipped in 14 of his 21 points in the second half and that — coupled with the usual superlative effort by Gahanna's Mike Browning (23) — offset Dave Van Meter's 20 and Brad Forward's 17.

Linden had to hang on after running up a 38-24 halftime lead over pesky West and Panther first-year coach George Mills wasn't a bit happy by his group's second-half play.

"We just stood around," George said, "and after we thought we had the game, we took it easy and almost got beat."

LINDEN didn't exactly win by a landslide as a breathing room of 62-56 on the final books belies a tight finish which saw West creep within a lone point (55-54) with 1:15 remaining.

But four quick turnovers and desperation fouls gave Linden the emphasis needed to retain a tie for the top City slot.

"Arch Armstead is only a sub but he did a lot better than several of the first-string boys," Mills assured as his 6-2 junior allowed only four buckets to West's Mike Stumpf throughout most of the game.

STUMPF'S 21 point total came mostly on nine foul shots as Armstead and Williams managed to handcuff the productive 6-6 Cowboy senior.

"We made too many mistakes," West's Heischman observed. "We would make a mistake and hurry to correct it, and in the process make another," he bemoaned of his Cowboys' 30 turnovers — 10 in the final quarter when they were within striking distance.

WATTERSON'S Central Catholic debut under Tim Pond was on target as the Eagles marched to an impressive finish to buckle Hartley, 62-43.

"We got into foul trouble and had to take (Dave) Mackin and (Pete) Wein out. We couldn't contest them on the boards," said Hawk veteran Dick Geyer. "They had too much size."

"Hartley did an effective job by taking Ben (Melancon) outside in the first half," noted Pond, "but we also just stood around and couldn't put things together.

"THE ONLY change at halftime was to approach their press differently and try to score off it. We were breaking it in the first half but didn't get the easy shot," Tim added.

West Jefferson managed 11-of-14 final period foul shots plus a generally good press-breaking floor game to whip Teays Valley at Ashville, 66-60, in a key Metro League struggle.

"We just wanted to win," was all an elated Dave Holland could offer on his Roughriders' capture of first place in the Metro Loop with a game against Dublin pending tomorrow.

"TWO THINGS told the story besides the foul shooting," Dave said. "First of all, we broke the press on their big floor which answered some questions for us, and secondly, Obie Folden scored some 20 points in the last quarter and a half to give us a heck'va shot in the arm."

Folden had but one bucket going into the last 12 minutes. He and senior Dan Thatcher supplied the bulk of the pressure-packed free throws in the closing minutes of play.

SPECTATOR'S

'Player-Of-The-Week'

Watterson's Ben Melancon, a robust 6-4, 210 lb. free-wheeling center ace, was selected as The Spectator's "Player-Of-The-Week" for his key role in the Eagles' 62-43 win over Hartley in an opening CCL struggle.

Ben made the difference with his 28 points and 16 awesome rebounds as his board play turned a slight 32-28 Watterson lead (with 3:03 left in the third period) into a comfortable Eagle win.

The two time All-Catholic Leaguer dashed in 16 points in the last 10 minutes to cause Hawk boss Dick Geyer to claim: "His board strength and momentum was the turning point."

Heart 'Roll-Off' Set Sunday At Northern Lights

More than 600 bowlers are expected to compete in the Central Ohio Heart Association's fifth annual grand roll-off Sunday, Dec. 15, at Northern Lights Lanes, 3525 Cleveland Ave.

Tournaments were held at 180 lanes throughout the COHA's 47-county area during November with two classes for men and two for women based on league averages.

Four top winners and the four who ranked second automatically became eligible to compete in the roll-off. The four top roll-off winners each will receive $100 and an engraved tray.

Reports are not in from all the 180 lanes, so the amount realized to go into research is not available at this time.

Last year's tournaments netted $26,500 for the Association's fight against heart disease.

Checkers Schedule

The Columbus Checkers, revived from an early season tailspin, host Muskegon's Mohawks Saturday at 8 p.m. for the local International Hockey League entry's lone home date until Dec. 20.

Central Ohio Heart Group Offering Christmas Cards

Running short of Christmas cards?

The Central Ohio Heart Association has cards in four different designs still available.

Two carry the words "Holiday Greetings" in script and are in white and magenta.

The other two carry Christmas scenes, one of a child kneeling by a cradle (in tones of green and brown) and the other features homes and a Christmas tree (in olive and red-orange).

For information about price, call the Heart Association office at 228-6327.

Cards will be mailed on request, or may be picked up at the Heart office, 535 E. Broad St.

Part of the program for children at The House of the Christmas Mouse, 1849 Francisco Rd., is story telling time. Listening intently to Mrs. Robert Stickney are, from left, Lisbeth Kubina, Coleen Donahue, Pam Cavanaugh and Andrea Fenton. The House will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Dec. 14 and 15.

Christmas Mouse House To Be Open Dec. 14, 15

The House of the Christmas Mouse, 1849 Francisco Rd., (Northcrest Model Home just north of Henderson and Reed Roads behind the Northwest Shopping Center) will be open for children and adults 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 14 and 15.

Admission is 50 cents per child. Adults are admitted free.

The project is sponsored by Mask IV of Cystic Fibrosis and all proceeds will go for research.

The aroma of freshly baked cookies will greet youngsters and their parents upon entry, according to publicity chairman Mrs. Robert Strawser.

Once inside, parents and children will part company. Dad and Mom will be treated to cookies and coffee while browsing through a boutique of Christmas pastries, holiday decorations and small gift novelties.

The children will travel from song to story to movie to game room. Then on to see "Super Elf," (Mask IV's newest original character) and a puppet show on a seven foot stage.

Final stop for kiddies will be a visit with Santa Claus, a personal chat and a take-home present.

Mrs. Robert Fenton is project chairman assisted by Mrs. Richard Bigham, Mrs. Francis Webb, Mrs. Charles Ritter and Mrs. Thomas Roper.

No. It's just a rope . . . at the breaking point. But, frankly, it's a good illustration of how a man feels when his nerves are "worn to a frazzle."

It shows him a Purpose in life more important than mere existence. It shows him a Power more effective than his own strength. It shows him a Future more rewarding than selfish gain. And it gives him courage more lasting than the sheer force of his human will.

With these spiritual resources, founded in the certainty that God understands and helps, a man never reaches "the breaking point." For when his human reserve is exhausted . . . he has only begun to tap the vast reservoir of Divine Strength.

THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE CAN SHOW YOU THE WAY!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

SOLID DINING ROOM AND BEDROOM FURNITURE

Just in time for the holidays!

Save $100.00 on our better living room or bedroom suites at Hazletts.

You can buy better quality furniture at the price you would usually pay for low grade. Save 30% to 40%. HOW? We have no fine expensive buildings, we are not on Main St., but we do have over 25,000 sq. ft. of floor space jammed with brand name furniture. WHERE? Drive 10 mi. out East Broad or 3 mi. north of Etna on Rt. 40 to PATASKALA—come to George St. at south end of town (do not confuse us with the furniture store near RR tracks). Remember the name HAZLETTS. We are proud of our reputation for the past 8 years.

a basic down to earth style. There are no gimmicks in Cotter's organ stylings. Just plain, simple, key board artistry. He sticks with a strong melody line along with a generous serving of the "oldies." Buddy knows how to entertain his audience.

Not only does he entertain his patrons, he welcomes people entertaining him. If you like to sing, all you have to do is stop in and pick up a key. Buddy encourages his listeners to get up and vocalize. According to Buddy, he has found a lot of good talent sitting in the lounge. One of the persons he encouraged to sing at the Clock was his own godson, Glenn Dunno. As most of you know, Glenn turned pro and is doing very well for himself.

A showman he isn't, but Cotter is a good musical entertainer. Stop in at the Clock Restaurant and watch the hands of Buddy Cotter make some pretty organ music.

Trudy Hamon at Max's

Playing Max's Steak House this week is one of the most unique entertainers this columnist has ever seen. Her name is Trudy Hamon, a good pianist and an equally fine singer.

Trudy does play a good piano, employing good chord structures, lots of feeling, and a real fine touch. Now the unusual part of her act is that she is playing piano with a broken left wrist. Trudy's arm, from elbow to her knuckles, is in a cast. Normally, she plays with gloves on, which is also a rarity. But, with a cast, that's something else. It's such a gimmick I don't think Trudy should get rid of it.

In the vocal department, there are no tricks needed. She has, to a great degree, the technique and presentation of a Pearl Bailey and a tonal quality of a Barbara Sherwood. While Trudy doesn't have a great voice, she knows how to use it for everything she's got. She has personality. A real live wire on stage, Trudy Hamon is fun to see and hear, even with her cast.

Skipping Around Town

Skipping Around Town . . .

Pat Zill's new record, "Lonesome 77203" was released this week throughout the country. You'll read more about this record later. In the meantime, stop in and see Pat at the Boathouse . . . Everybody's favorite, Charlie Pickens, is now in the Town and Country Room of the Neil House . . . Watch this column in about two weeks announcing all the New Year's Eve parties going on. This is going to be a great town on New Year's . . . Would you believe that Miss De Lois has been held over again at the Everglades? Tony Deleweese called and said he's held this sexy singer and dancer over for the seventh time . . . Try Dorothy Landford's Kozy Korner for some good food, especially her soup. It's not canned either . . . Bob Kaiser, bar manager of the Olentangy Inn, asked me to mention his new waitress, Annette. With a beautiful gal like that, you don't need to ask, Bob . . . Speaking of the O.I., Tom and Glenn are still doing a good job there . . . Jimmy Joseph, of Ohio's Grand Ole Opry, tells me he has the rest of the year booked with top stars . . . Danny Mann's Speakeasy is going great guns, shoot-outs and everything. His new day girl, Cathy Kerr has to be one of the cutest and tiniest gals in the business . . . The Andy Launer Trio of the Imperial House-North is playing as great as ever. These boys are truly talented. Stop in and see for yourself . . . After skipping around town, visit Ann-Ton's for a late snack or dinner. They have great food.

Harp Duo Sets Concert

A Christmas concert performed by duo-harpists, Joseph Longstreth of Richmond, Ind., and John Escosa of Columbus will be presented Wednesday through Friday, Dec. 18-20, from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. at Stouffer's University Inn.

Escosa has appeared on the Nick Clooney Show of WLW-C television several times and is known in Columbus for his long engagement at the Arlington Arms Restaurant and more recently at Stouffer's Inn.

Cocktails and dinners will be served throughout the evening. For reservations phone 263-0755.

Hockey Stub Good At Any Academy Show

The Columbus Checkers Hockey Club and Academy Theaters have teamed up to provide a double entertainment value for the price of one.

Every person who purchases a ticket to a hockey game may turn in the ticket stub at any Academy Theater for one free admission upon purchase of one ticket.

Academy Theaters include the Beechwold, Clinton, College Cinema, Esquire, Markham, State, University and the National Auto, South Drive-In and 17th Ave. Auto Drive-Ins.

'Star' To Open

Tickets remain on sale for the opening night of "Star" at Northland Cinema which is being sponsored by Columbus Junior Theater of The Arts.

Champagne and a style show presenting Miss Julie Andrews' costumes for her role as Gertrude Lawrence will precede the 8:30 p.m. debut of "Star" Dec. 19.

For tickets, phone 471-1212.

'Traffic Court' Procedure A Study In Law And Art

By CLAUDIA ELKINS
Entertainment Editor

Once a week, usually a Tuesday or Wednesday evening, an enactment takes place in Studio A, WBNS-TV.

A courtroom set has been erected, cameras stand by and the control room bustles with last minute preparations for WBNS-TV is on the verge of taping "Traffic Court."

On the darkened set for "Luci's Toyshop," the cast and director assemble to organize the court agenda. Dr. Richard Mall, director of Alumni Affairs for OSU, is a towering and powerful figure, which enhances his role as the judge.

With sincere interest and dedication, Dr. Mall represents the court with esteem. As he scans the "characters" who have violated traffic laws, they sit in apprehension as they await their case.

Usually four cases are presented. Each actor portraying a defendant has received through the mail a copy of his or her case, which includes a brief character description. It is during this first and last rehearsal on the darkened set of "Luci's Toyshop" that each presents his or her case.

Aside, but helping form the agenda, sits Marion Muncie, a Columbus City Policeman, preparing his cases as city prosecutor. Not far from him are several city policemen; Richard Hoover who, alternating with Chester Crumpler, portray the court bailiff and two or three patrolmen who represent the arresting officers.

With script, notes and taping information in hand, director Ron Prange announces it is time to tape. A silence fills the studio while the cast walks to the far end of the room.

The silence is broken as Dr. Mall takes his position at the bench and as Ron Prange announces, "Please do not refer to a specific model or make of car, do not use proper names and do not use friends' names."

"Ready," spoken with a finality that demands silence and nerves to abate, the show progresses through an introduction, into each specific case and character to the sage advice of Dr. Mall, and if there is enough time, a run down of the FBI Ten Most Wanted Criminals.

Basically, that's how it is produced. Now for the curious, here are some facts learned from Dr. Mall and Ron Prange. The program originated over 12 years ago with Dr. Mall portraying the judge for the past seven seasons.

Dr. Mall has no script to work with. When you see him writing or referring to his notes, he is looking at blank sheets of paper with a few doodles he has made.

Yet, here is a man who reads newspapers, checks the current outcomes of similar cases and who, above all else, realizes the seriousness of his role. Although Ron Prange is the director, it is Dr. Mall who must control the show on the set.

"This is a skeletal program. Everything, even the rehearsal, is never carried out to the finish. This, then, provides the reality.

"My role is one of listening, analyzing and responding. I do not prepare ahead, if I did, it would change the show," booms the voice of Dr. Mall.

Director Ron Prange has been supplied by the City Police Department with a listing of traffic codes and regulations. From this, he creates the characters with some aid from court cases. But in no case is there connection with an actual case.

He then compiles a brief synopsis of the "defendants," name, age, sex, plea, violations, past violations, descriptions of violations and defendant's attitude. These are then mailed to the actors, two or three days prior to taping.

Each actor then improvises and as most Central Ohio residents know, presents the human interest.

To become an actor on the show, one may contact the studio at 770 Twin Rivers Dr., Columbus, O. The station in turn mails out an application.

Along with the application, a picture is needed. These are filed according to statistics and used by Ron Prange as the cases demand.

The program aired at 5:30 p.m., Saturdays, performs many deeds. Viewers have an opportunity to associate driving habits with their own. Traffic laws and codes become familiar. Police officers become people, resulting in understanding.

As I was leaving the station, Tom Ryan approached with sadness in his eyes, for he had been up on the freeway where an accident had badly injured several people.

And we just keep right on maiming, injuring and killing.

"Traffic Court" is entertaining, but more than this it is a reminder to all of us how careless and thoughtless actions while driving may end in tragedy.

OUT WITH THE OLD: IN WITH THE NEW

Skeptics said it couldn't be done — that it would be impossible to raise the $14,000 necessary to purchase the home of Mrs. Fannie Leightner to allow construction of a municipal parking lot in Groveport on Cherry and Wirt Roads south of Main Street. However, the determination of Mayor Roger Higgins paid off and contributions from the local business community led to the above scene last week. Razing the buildings where the Leightner blacksmith shop once stood are the two dozers contributed by Marvin Dutcher, pictured driving the crawler on the right. At the left, Higgins hitches a ride on the dozer operated by Ray Haden of Canal Winchester. It is estimated the lot, already graveled, will provide parking for almost 150 automobiles.

Aroused Community Seeks To Aid Schools

"Community Cooperation for Better Education."

It's a mouthful but it may be the answer to Canal Winchester's school problems.

WHEN THE board met this week in the wake of the failure of the 6.6 operating levy, about 50 members of the community were present.

Most apparently had come to learn what can be done to save the schools from self-destructive cut-backs.

The answer, of course, is money and Harold Schacht was particularly articulate in his demand for "Community Cooperation for Better Education" which he envisions as a joint effort of the board, administration, faculty—and the taxpayers—to back the schools.

GLENN LACKEY was another parent who indicated he has "just begun to fight" for the education of his children.

"Rather than spending our time looking for another handout, this can be an opportunity for us to take a leadership role in the State of Ohio," he said in discussing the role school supporters might take through voluntary contributions to the districts general fund.

On pins and needles concerning the results of the State evaluation that was just completed, the board and the public alike were obviously worried that drastic cutbacks in curriculum can place their school charter in danger.

(THROUGH RICHARD Hummell of the State Department it was learned that, at the moment, Canal Winchester is not one of the 21 schools whose charter is considered "in jeopardy").

Although no decision is foreseen immediately, it appears likely that millage will again appear on the May ballot.

A new law described by Supt. Carl Miller makes passage of a levy before November the most logical "out."

THE LEGISLATION makes it possible for a school district to issue anticipatory notes on a levy that is passed one year, but is not collectable until the following year.

These notes, which may be issued up to the full amount of the income anticipated over a 12-month period, if granted after the primaries, would make it possible to open the schools in September without the wholesale curtailment that is dreaded.

A letter to the board from the membership of the Canal Winchester Education Association showed an apparent difference in philosophy on how the problem of cutbacks should be approached.

WHILE THE BOARD and administration has consistently taken the stand its financial problems must be solved with the least harm to the schools, the faculty is convinced the only way to gain voter support is to "hit them where it hurts."

This was summed up in the opening paragraphs of the letter suggesting the cuts the faculty believe important.

"Reductions which are aimed at the further tightening of our belts will not convince voters of our need for the additional operating money. They will simply say, 'See, you managed to operate, so you didn't really need the money after all.' They will not see the deterioration of the educational program."

THE SIX areas of curtailment they suggest are:

- Operate the present program until the money runs out, then close the schools.
- Reduce busing to state minimums which involves ending busing for high school students and for elementary students living within two miles of the school.
- Close school at 3:30 p.m. with no athletics, band, club meetings, class plays or other extra - curricular activities, and banning weekend usage of the building by various groups.
- Students are to rent or buy texts and furnish own supplies.
- If absolutely necessary, eliminate art, music, physical education, remedial reading and speech and hearing therapy at the elementary level.
- Half-day sessions initiated rather than overcrowded classrooms.

On the other hand, the professional staff went on record as strongly opposing reduction in staff, use of high school students as substitutes, salary cuts and reductions in either textbook or library appropriations.

Evidently unprepared to act on these or any other suggestions, the board arranged to meet in executive session to brainstorm the matter before publicly making any recommendations.

BOARD ATTENTION was also drawn to the faculty with the presentation of five resignations.

Those of Mrs. Paulette Sternback, Mrs. Mary Glendenning, Mrs. Judith L. Goodpasture and Clark Davis were for personal reasons and effective either the first of January or at the end of the semester.

Only that of Miss Etherl Heintz, vocal music instructor who stated she will not be available for reemployment at the end of the contract year, stated the failure of the levy triggered her action. She explained she preferred to move on to a community which was willing to support its schools.

ACTUALLY, although no one is predicting how many more resignations are in the offing, the announcement of these five dispelled the rumors especially prevalent among the students that "half the staff is quitting."

Supt. Miller alerted the board of pending legislation that he believes a threat to the school district.

Young Seeks OK For Walnut Grove

Jim Young, Groveport developer, appeared before Canal Winchester Council this week seeking the ordinance that will permit him to proceed with construction of the subdivision Walnut Grove.

The plats he presented members of the council show 72 homes on the 78-acre site at the intersection of Gender and Lithopolis Roads as well as an area to be dedicated to the Village for park purposes.

WITH FUTURE planning of Canal Winchester involving eventual extension of city water to the area, the Village is satisfied with Young's proposal for individual wells as a source of water for the present.

However, local officials prefer that Young construct a central sewage disposal system rather than individual septic tanks or leech beds on each of the 20,000 square foot lots.

With costs for such a treatment system estimated at $345 per acre, Council feels its stand a reasonable one which will actually save money for the developer.

ACCORDING TO the ordinance now in the works, the Village would assume operation of the proposed plant.

A motion by Councilman Reno Robinett to reduce the speed limit on Washington, W. Columbus, Franklin and Wedgeview Drive from 25 miles per hour to 15 miles per hour was referred to the safety committee for further study.

Robinett stated his attempt to enter Wedgeview from Franklin at the present speed limit resulted in squealing tires and other evidence of excessive speed.

AFTER SUSPENDING the rules, the Council held the second and third readings of the ordinance levying special assessments for curbs and gutters on Hocking and Columbus Streets.

Property owners assessed their share of the $2,614 improvement may either divvy up immediately or have the levy placed on their tax duplicate, payable over a five year period.

A report given by Mayor Mike Miller on the Auxiliary Police indicated that the establishment of the unit in mid-October was a boon to the Village.

SERVING WITHOUT pay, with the only expense to Canal that of partial uniforms, the three-man unit accumulated over 300 hours of duty last month.

Their responsibilities include both riding in the cruisers with the regular officers and foot patrol as well as special duties such as that required at Halloween.

The men are Earl Myers, Earle Sherburn and Robert Miller.

A SPECIAL guest at Monday's meeting was Guy Porter of the local American Legion Post who presented the Mayor with a flag for outside the Municipal Building to replace the one destroyed by high winds.

Council will convene for its organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Jan. 6.

According to Miller, it is doubtful the temporary appropriations measure will be ready for Council action by that date, and business will be relatively routine.

Hamilton Does About Face Schools Will Remain Open

Whatever criticism is made of the Hamilton Local School Board, it is unlikely that after its action Monday night, it will be accused of being "set in its ways."

In a reversal of action taken after the 13-mill levy failed last month, the board authorized Clerk Al Knodel to either obtain a tax advance or borrow money to keep the doors open.

CANCELLING of the announced closing of school for the first 20 days in January was apparently influenced by three factors: the recommendation by Supt. John Savel, petitions by registered voters to keep the schools open and the report from Knodel that the county auditor is ready [illegible]ome to the rescue with [illegible]undistributed tax mon[illegible]ddenly discovered.

According to Knodel, a $11,000 windfall in the form of additional personal property taxes will allow the district to end the year with a balance of $25,000, a sum $35,000 to $40,000 less than that required to meet the Jan. 15 payroll. (Foundation money will be paid later in the month).

The clerk states that Art Marlin in the auditor's office has informed him that taxes collected after the books closed and those paid in advance are adequate to make up the deficit and he will make the tax advance available to Hamilton before the payroll is due.

HOWEVER, WITH nothing in writing, Don Beggrow of the board moved that if this money is not forthcoming, the clerk be authorized to borrow up to $65,000 to keep the doors open.

Seconded by Tim Gibbs, the motion carried, although Joe Mace and Mrs. Frances Shipley voted against it, adamant in their stand that taxpayers' money should not, under the circumstances, be used to pay interest.

Board President Bill Lares explained that although he is still completely opposed to borrowing money, he voted for the motion with complete confidence that Knodel knows what he is talking about and the tax advance will materialize.

SOME, INCLUDING John Miller, one of the citizens of the community who worked diligently for passage of the levy, found it difficult to understand why the question of interest loomed as a big deal when weighed with keeping the schools open.

Interest on $65,000 for 30 days amounts to less than $200.

Miller also brought up an interesting question in asking whether the community wants to become a part of a large and impersonal school system and suggesting that Dean Luvern Cunningham of Ohio State University be asked to take a look at the situation.

(Cunningham led the team which prepared the school study report for Columbus Public Schools last summer).

MILLER WAS undoubtedly referring to the recent legislation which allows the State Department to dissolve a school district which is not meeting its responsibilities.

According to John McKnight, director of the Division of School District Organization for The State Department of Education, if a school district is believed inadequate, an evaluation team can be sent in to review the situation and report to the state superintendent.

In turn, the superintendent makes his recommendations to the State Board of Education which may then withdraw the District's charter.

SUCH ACTION would be followed by the transfer of the district to one or more adjacent districts.

The law reads that if this procedure is carried out, the tax rate of the receiving district or districts then prevails.

For example, if Hamilton were to be split among the Columbus, Teays Valley and Madison Districts, voters in the defunct Hamilton District would pay the rate of taxes already voted in these districts.

McKNIGHT who explained this law has never been utilized stated that it would be the hope of the Department of Education that Hamilton can work out its own problems without the State stepping in.

Although he conceded a state-wide attitude exists that real estate taxes are burdensome, he denied that this fact alone is responsible for the failure of Hamilton levy.

To back up his position, he pointed out that in Ohio, 100 per cent of renewal levies passed in November and 92 per cent of those combining new and old millage were okayed and that 50 per cent of those resubmitted in December passed.

"REGARDLESS of taxes, people will pass a levy when the schools find out what is wrong within the district and correct it," McKnight stated.

Clarifying that the proposed cuts are only preliminary ones for the balance of the school year with further cuts r necessity Sept. 1, the board adopted 10 recommendations made by Savel that will go into effect Jan. 1.

These include each student's being charged a flat fee of $1 for educational supplies plus actual cost of workbooks and other educational supplies; curtailment of use of buildings except for school sponsored activities and PTA and PTO meetings with outside organizations paying $5 an hour for classroom use and $25 for use of cafeteria, gym or auditorium; elimination of adult classes, support of the summer recreation and summer school; elimination of all new textbook adoption and termination of purchase or replacement of all educational, custodial and maintenance equipment.

This program is estimated to save from $38,000 to $40,000.

The reorganizational meeting of the board will be held at 7 p.m. Monday, Jan. 6, preceding the regular meeting at 7:30 p.m.

Frye Asks Investigation Sanctions Pose Threats

The Hamilton Local Teachers Association has requested the Ohio Education Association to make a study of whether sanctions should be placed on the Hamilton Local School District.

This little bombshell exploded this week when Supt. John Savel received a telephone call from OEA informing him that the request had been granted.

THE REPORT by OEA that the HLTA letter was received last weekend seems to be in some conflict with the story told by Dick Frye, HLTA president.

He told Savel that the letter was sent in November but was lost and this week Frye personally asked the OEA for a reply to the earlier letter.

Asked why neither William Lares, board president, nor Savel did not receive a copy of the November letter, Frye replied he "had forgotten to send one."

SAVEL INFORMED the board that he believes the OEA request for a meeting with the board this week is premature and recommended that the board meet with its legal counsel prior to meeting with OEA.

In reply to a query about the implications of "sanctions" from a member of the community present Monday night, Frye explained that such sanctions could involve an OEA edict discouraging all teachers from accepting employment in the district.

Ashville Sticks By New Rules

Ashville Council members are going to stick with their new shelter house regulations—at least until a fair trial proves them faulty.

This became evident when park caretaker Dick Conway asked for further discussion of the matter when council met this week.

UNDER THE legislation passed this fall, use of the facility will be free to non-profit organizations, (Scouts, local churches and civic organizations, for example) and others will be charged $10 a day.

In addition, those sponsoring activities such as dances will be required to pay for police protection.

Although some oral "nibbles" have been noted, only one written application has been received to date for the position of clerk-treasurer, now held by Mrs. Ann Leatherwood who has announced her intention of resigning this spring.

Those interested in the part-time post which pays about $2,000 annually should contact Mayor Harold Hartley. Both men and women will be considered for the job.

OTHER ACTION included the arrangement to purchase the tools owned by the late Claude Ward who retired as street superintendent of Ashville shortly before his recent death.

Five Precincts Back Millage To The Hilt

Although 1,408 of the 2,437 persons voting on the Madison Local operating levy last week gave it a comfortable 57.77 per cent margin of victory, five of the precincts gave it a whopping support of over 70 per cent.

These precincts include College Hill and Winchester Estates with 52 for, 10 against, for 83.87 per cent; Amberly, 56 for, 18 against, for 75.67 per cent; south of Harbor (including Harbor) west of Clearwater, east of Noe-Bixby and north of Old 33, 165 for, 59 against for 73.66 per cent.

NORTH of Harbor, west of Clearwater, east of Noe-Bixby, south of extension of Refugee Road, 163 for, 76 against, for 70.86 per cent and Brice and Truro Township, 40 for, 15 against, for 72.72 per cent.

Other precincts which carried the levy were Groveport north of Main, 155 for, 109 against, for 58.71 per cent; Madison Township south of Groveport Pike, 91 for, 84 against, for 52 per cent.

East of Noe-Bixby, south of Refugee on a line extended east to Township Line, and north of Old 33 except for Precincts F and G, 105 for, 59 against, for 64.02 per cent.

SOUTH OF Old 33, west of Blacklick Creek, north of Big Walnut Creek and Williams Roads between Big Walnut and Alum Creek Drive except for area in Columbus, 132 for, 120 against, for 52.38 per cent.

NORTH of Groveport Pike, east of Big Walnut Creek and south of Williams Road, from Big Walnut to Blacklick Creek and south of Old 33, 133 for, 129 against, for 50.76 per cent.

The issue failed in Groveport in the precinct south of Main Street where 120 persons voted for the schools and 129 against for a percentage of 48.19 and in the McFadden Acres area and the neighborhood near Watkins Road which voted down the issue, 76-49, with only 39.20 per cent supporting the levy.

Hero's Parents Given Posthumous Awards

Awards earned by Sgt. Ronald D. Busby were posthumously presented to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Busby, in a ceremony held recently at their home, 568 Frebis Ave.

Busby, an alumnus of South High School, was killed in enemy action late this summer in Vietnam a few days before he was scheduled to return to the United States.

He was serving in reconnaissance with the Ninth Infantry Division of the U. S. Army.

The awards, five of the 11 he was given, included the Silver Star for Gallantry carried out the day of his death, the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster for heroism, the Army Commendation Medal for Heroism, the Purple Heart and the Good Conduct Medal.

The 20-year-old soldier also had earned the National Defense Medal, the Vietnam Defense Medal, the Vietnam Campaign Medal, the Combat Infantry Medal and the Sharp Shooter with Rifle Award.

John R. Craven, Electrician 1/C, U. S. Navy, has returned to the States after a year's service in Vietnam. He entered the service 11 years ago when a group of boys from Hamilton Township decided to join.

He spent Thanksgiving with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Craven, 3357 Faycrest Rd., Columbus, then returne dto Norfolk, Va., where he entered the Naval Hospital there for surgery.

His Norfolk address is 9246 Rippart Ave. 23503 and he would enjoy hearing from his old friends in the vicinity.

Party At Church

The Christmas program at the Obetz Christian Church will be held Sunday evening, Dec. 22, in the sanctuary. Following the program, there will be a fellowship hour in the parish house with treats from Santa Claus for all. Refreshments will be served. On Christmas Eve there will be a candlelight service at 11. All are invited to attend.

The CWF of the Obetz Christian Church held its monthly meeting followed with a Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Rudy Wolfe, 1693 Thomas Ave., Columbus, last Tuesday. The group collected gifts for the patients at State School and delivered them. They are also making up Christmas baskets of food for the needy.

Caroling Scheduled

The CYF of Obetz Christian Church will be out Christmas caroling Monday evening, Dec. 23, and will be giving "Cheer Baskets" to the elderly members of the church and the shut-ins. This group is under the direction of Mrs. Paul Barr of Obetz.

Members of the Obetz Business Men's Association and their families held an annual party at the club house Saturday evening, Dec. 14. There was a potluck supper with turkey, ham and oysters and all the trimmings.

MOHAWK

The regular Mohawk P.T.A. meeting will be held tonight. The music department, under the direction of Charles Cooper, Herman Watson and Mary Wielbacher will present a special Christmas program.

Gifts For Franklin Village Provided By Community

Giving gifts to the children at Franklin Village at Christmas has become, in some families, a tradition.

A unique aspect of the gift-giving is that donors have the opportunity to buy the child the gift he wants, rather than donating gifts which end up in a large pool that is up for grabs.

This year, some 400 children will receive gifts through nearly 600 organizations and individuals.

Don Dodsworth, director of special services of the Child Welfare Board, feels that the most important aspect of the community gift-giving program is that donors have an opportunity to learn more about Child Welfare and Franklin Village.

He said, "Here is a way that thousands of people in Franklin County have learned what Child Welfare Board does."

Several months before Christmas, staff members, cottage workers and caseworkers at Child Welfare Board ask each child what he would like for Christmas. This list is available to donors so they may individualize their gift purchases. The children, by getting the gifts they want, according to Dodsworth, know that someone took the time to be concerned.

Some years ago a youngster in Franklin Village wanted a Jerry Mahoney puppet doll. The dolls were no longer popular and hard to obtain.

A group at the Defense Construction and Supply Center took this on as a project. They were unable to locate a doll of this type anywhere.

On Christmas Eve, Dodsworth said, CWB received a telephone call from the group. They had located a Jerry Mahoney puppet doll in a warehouse in Chicago, and were flying it in at their own expense.

Although Christmas gift-giving for the children under the care of Child Welfare Board is important, Dodsworth emphasized that "This should not be a bunch of emotional binges for orphans for Christmas. I think most people who fell this way have never really learned how to help kids."

He said throughout the year there are always many opportunities that families and organizations can have to help. Dodsworth feels that it is what the community provides other than clothing, shelter and food which makes the difference.

Froehlich Weinachten und ein gluecklichnes Neujahr

Santa Claus and smiling fairy were brought to life by Timmy Dexter and Samantha Given when the fifth grade students at Watkins Elementary dramatized "Merry, Merry, Merry," last week. The annual Christmas play was presented to the student body and the PTA.

To Present Pantomime

The choir and both the Girls' and the Boys' Glee Clubs of Southmoor Junior High will perform at the Christmas program planned at 9 and 9:45 a.m. Friday.

"The True Meaning of Christmas," a pantomime pageant set to music, will be narrated by two students, Janet Hill and Sheila Echenberger.

Santa's Surprise Tree at the PTA Christmas Bazaar at Beck Elementary provided a unique fishing game. Supervising the game at which every child was a sure-fire winner were Mrs. Wanda Champlin, left, PTA hospitality chairman, and Mrs. Betty McCoy, right, a room-mother.

With small muscle coordination difficult for the neurologically handicapped, these children at Fornof Elementary School are understandably pleased with the papier-mache angels they have created for a Nativity scene. Their teacher, Miss Elizabeth Webster, states that the time and effort spent in the six-week project left the boys with increased self confidence and a very real sense of achievement. With Miss Webster are, from left, seated, Ricky Heribrunn, Ricky Rader, Stefan Wedson, Frank Maren and Michael Erb; standing, Kenny Bay, Glenn Nelson, Jerry Sullivan and Ricky McCord.

Carl Zellers Captures Best Of Show Ribbon

Carl Zellers of Columbus was awarded the Best of the Show ribbon when Hamilton Township Garden Club members and their families were entertained recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Prushing, Rt. 1, Lockbourne, at the club's annual Christmas show and dinner party.

Judged by Mrs. Henry L. Young of Bexley, four winners were named in each of the five adult classes of "An Old Fashion Christmas."

The winners were: inside door decoration — Mrs. Noreen Foreman, Mrs. Benny Sawyer, Mrs. Carl Zellers and Mrs. Lester Badders; outside door decorations — Carl Zellers, Mrs. Eugene Egbert, Mrs. Grant Harden and Mrs. Herbert Wilson.

In the junior class, Paula Joe Shoaf received the blue ribbon.

Following the judging, a Christmas gift exchange was held, games played under the direction of Mrs. Badders and Mrs. George W. Smith, and a dinner served by Mrs. Ruth Ponthus and her daughters.

Gene Mitchell In Aircraft Wing

L/Cpl. Gene D. Mitchell, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow W. Mitchell of 840 Wager St., is serving with Marine All-Weather Attack Squadron 242, First Marine Aircraft Wing in Vietnam.

His squadron, a unit of Marine Aircraft Group 11, flies the Grumman A-6A Intruder jet.

READ TO LIVE

Fourteen books on fires and firefighting were recently presented to Madison Local Schools by the Madison Township Firemen of Groveport. The books, which will be used to increase student awareness of fires, firefighting and firefighting equipment, range from elementary mystery stories to documented histories of some of the major fires in the United States. Shown accepting the books from the Rev. George T. Adams, chaplain of the Fire Department, are Robert Blagg of the high school and Mrs. Lillie Gehring, representing the elementaries.

Obetz & Hamilton Township News

By RUTH BORDEN
491-8141

John R. Craven, Electrician 1/C, U. S. Navy, has returned to the States after a year's service in Vietnam. He entered the service 11 years ago when a group of boys from Hamilton Township decided to join.

He spent Thanksgiving with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Craven, 3357 Faycrest Rd., Columbus, then returne dto Norfolk, Va., where he entered the Naval Hospital there for surgery.

Party At Church

The Christmas program at the Obetz Christian Church will be held Sunday evening, Dec. 22, in the sanctuary. Following the program, there will be a fellowship hour in the parish house with treats from Santa Claus for all. Refreshments will be served. On Christmas Eve there will be a candlelight service at 11. All are invited to attend.

The CWF of the Obetz Christian Church held its monthly meeting followed with a Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Rudy Wolfe, 1693 Thomas Ave., Columbus, last Tuesday. The group collected gifts for the patients at State School and delivered them. They are also making up Christmas baskets of food for the needy.

Caroling Scheduled

The CYF of Obetz Christian Church will be out Christmas caroling Monday evening, Dec. 23, and will be giving "Cheer Baskets" to the elderly members of the church and the shut-ins. This group is under the direction of Mrs. Paul Barr of Obetz.

Members of the Obetz Business Men's Association and their families held an annual party at the club house Saturday evening, Dec. 14. There was a potluck supper with turkey, ham and oysters and all the trimmings.

PTA Notes

MOHAWK

The regular Mohawk P.T.A. meeting will be held tonight. The music department, under the direction of Charles Cooper, Herman Watson and Mary Wielbacher will present a special Christmas program.

Gifts For Franklin Village Provided By Community

Giving gifts to the children at Franklin Village at Christmas has become, in some families, a tradition.

A unique aspect of the gift-giving is that donors have the opportunity to buy the child the gift he wants, rather than donating gifts which end up in a large pool that is up for grabs.

This year, some 400 children will receive gifts through nearly 600 organizations and individuals.

Don Dodsworth, director of special services of the Child Welfare Board, feels that the most important aspect of the community gift-giving program is that donors have an opportunity to learn more about Child Welfare and Franklin Village.

He said, "Here is a way that thousands of people in Franklin County have learned what Child Welfare Board does."

Several months before Christmas, staff members, cottage workers and caseworkers at Child Welfare Board ask each child what he would like for Christmas. This list is available to donors so they may individualize their gift purchases. The children, by getting the gifts they want, according to Dodsworth, know that someone took the time to be concerned.

Some years ago a youngster in Franklin Village wanted a Jerry Mahoney puppet doll. The dolls were no longer popular and hard to obtain.

A group at the Defense Construction and Supply Center took this on as a project. They were unable to locate a doll of this type anywhere.

On Christmas Eve, Dodsworth said, CWB received a telephone call from the group. They had located a Jerry Mahoney puppet doll in a warehouse in Chicago, and were flying it in at their own expense.

Although Christmas gift-giving for the children under the care of Child Welfare Board is important, Dodsworth emphasized that "This should not be a bunch of emotional binges for orphans for Christmas. I think most people who fell this way have never really learned how to help kids."

He said throughout the year there are always many opportunities that families and organizations can have to help. Dodsworth feels that it is what the community provides other than clothing, shelter and food which makes the difference.

Hero's Parents Given Posthumous Awards

Awards earned by Sgt. Ronald D. Busby were posthumously presented to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Busby, in a ceremony held recently at their home, 568 Frebis Ave.

Busby, an alummus of South High School, was killed in enemy action late this summer in Vietnam a few days before he was scheduled to return to the United States.

He was serving in reconnaissance with the Ninth Infantry Division of the U. S. Army.

The awards, five of the 11 he was given, included the Silver Star for Gallantry carried out the day of his death, the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster for heroism, the Army Commendation Medal for Heroism, the Purple Heart and the Good Conduct Medal.

The 20-year-old soldier also had earned the National Defense Medal, the Vietnam Defense Medal, the Vietnam Campaign Medal, the Combat Infantry Medal and the Sharp Shooter with Rifle Award.

Victor Walker Serves In Viet

L/Cpl. Victor R. Walker, of 3039 Baker Hill Rd., is serving with the Third Battalion, Ninth Marine Regiment of the Third Marine Division in Vietnam.

As part of the Third Marine Division's new mobile posture, the battalion has been conducting sweep and clear missions throughout the five northernmost provinces of South Vietnam.

They Were First Ilonka and Frank

Ilonka was the initial leader in Continental Cuisine food service in Columbus. She handles parties from Bar Mitzvahs to company celebrations serving foreign food fair.

Ilonka's Provincial House grew into its vast catering and party house by appointment because of its European food service. Ilonka started in a small bakery in 1950 on East Livingston, branched out in catering service. In eight years bookings were one year in advance.

Ilonka was formerly with the Neil House.

She is nearing her 20th year since leaving the Neil House as party booker. Her continental cuisine has always been in demand. But she isn't satisfied to continue with the same recipes, same party decor and party manner.

Every year she vacations as a shopping-buyer in Old World Foods and entertainment ideas. Trunks of decorative materials arrive shortly after her return from her shopping-vacation Tour abroad.

Her festive fair doesn't come cheap, but arrangements are all settled in advance.

The White House at 693 City Park Ave. was the first big renovation and remodeling job in the village. Completed in 1956, it was sold shortly afterwards by owner, Frank Kondos.

Mrs. Ruth McCarthy owns the house today.

Remodeling included lowering all the ceilings in its eight large rooms, installment of new plumbing, and thoroughly air condition and carpet throughout. In addition to remodeling, a patio and double carport were added. A brick wall was constructed with gates around the lot both on City Park and Stimmel Streets.

Kondos' first major work in the village was the construction of Clarmont in 1948 and its expansion with additional dining space was completed in 1954.

Gist Is German

Christopher Gist is said to have "read" the Bible for the first Christmas in Tuscarawas County area. It is said this enticed the Indians to become Christians.

Research brings to light that Gist was a German. He spelled his name originally as G(h)ist. But it would take more than reading of a book to change Indian beliefs of God in nature. Priests had long been on the scene. Their "beads" did not move them.

It is highly probable that an entirely different Ritual of worship attracted these Indians.

Many Germans were practicing another type, similar to the meditation exercises of the Plain sects. It could be the ritual of the German Jew heritage.

Der Village Markt Offers Ideas For Holiday Meals

For the wage-earner who turns housewife at 5 o'clock, Der Village Markt offers a sanctuary through which Mama can become Queen for the Night.

Hot "food to go" include barbecued chicken, sausage, and ribs. In the delicatessen service area, there are the regulars to add ready-made salads. They are sweet and regular cole slaw, potato salad, and bean, ham and macaroni salads, and the new Polynesian Parfait. On the sweet and sour side, you will find mixed pickles, sweet pickled onions, candied sweet mixed pickled dish.

Vegetables are available both in the frozen food section and the canned goods area.

To make a hit before approaching the man of the house for more Christmas funds, try a German wine. Its lightness will add zest to Der Village Markt prepared meats or your own. It aids digestion, gives feeling of being well fed. A well fed husband offers better hand-outs, it is said.

Mistletoe comes from the old Saxon "mistl-tan." It never touches earth and never has a root. It is a parasite, lives off other trees.

ABOUT OUR ADVERTISERS . . .

"Ohio's Bavarian Motor Works imports have hit the 500 mark," Charles Nemith, Continental Sports Car dealer, said. Actually, these cars are known as BMW's, style types designated by numbers.

BMW's are in their seventh year in Columbus, and in the nation with the BMW models carrying its leadership design that has copped honors in performance in the sports car field.

BMW's are in their seventh year in Columbus, offering sales and service at the same address. The spectacular car seen today had its initial performance seven years ago in Munich. However, the first BMW car was made in 1928. Sales in the United States are climbing remarkably fast for these imports. It is estimated that next year's sales will reach 5,000 nationally.

There are 250 dealers in the country, with parts depots located in South Hackensack, New Jersey and Los Angeles, Cal. Technical schools are conducted in sales and service at both parts warehouses for new employes as well as brush-up courses for care of the new models.

BMW's in this country come to dealers through a New York importer, eliminating exchange through distributors or the middle man. Thus BMW cars offer the best in engineering and performance for less. Compare prices, economy, beauty and mechanical makeup with other imports.

The BMW's lead in Continental car fields because they have continued to set new standards in power and performance, efficiency, economy and reliability since the 1961 model. The initial design carried many original features that have since been adopted by other manufacturers, either singly or in combination. Other features include overhead camshaft, slant-four engine, disc brakes and more miles per gallon.

There is one outstanding feature the BMW's have that new cars in America do not adopt. That is the names of each new line. The BMW's are called by numbers, whereas other imports and American cars carry a name that explains type and makeup of the car, if one wishes to translate the name back through the various languages. No doubt if one could decode BMW names or number-names, he could also find the "hidden" key that would unlock the formula that makes it one of the best cars on the road today.

Car enthusiasts everywhere, in ownership or observance in car performance, recognize the latest BMW as tops in comfort, looks, safety and engineering.

The range of models was planned under the managing director and board member, Paul G. Hahnemann of Munich. In his seven year leadership, output has increased from 250 million to one billion cars. The last two models are the most coordinated in quality.

Only by driving a BMW car can one "see" and "feel" the engineering difference.

Every care has been taken to make this chart an accurate index of fact at the time of its publication: nevertheless it must be remembered that there are exceptions to all rules; there are always some very good wines made when a vintage is not deserving of the highest marks, just as there are, unfortunately, some bad wines made in the best vintages. Your wine-merchant knows . . .trust him.

Do-It-Yourself Center Filled With Holiday Gifts

The holiday season is most opportune for the heating, plumbing and water equipment to demand attention. If that happens at your house, remember the Nationaline Do-It-Yourself Center. It is a house of bargains, as you can see by the photos in their advertisement on this page.

Prices are the lowest, merchandise is displayed for easy selection. Items are well marked. You will find better bathroom fixtures at prices you can afford.

If you plan on extending Christmas decoration into the yard, you will want electrical wiring and tools. The head of the house should remember once Daddy puts aside this planned job because he hasn't the tools, Daddy is out of the notion. You can buy the right tool, at a lower cost, in a few minutes at Nationaline. Remember Nationaline for any repair or replacement job.

Christmas, 1719 Germantown, Pennsylvania

Franz Daniel Pastorius, lawyer from Frankfort on the Main, died on Christmas Day, 1719, in the village he founded with 33 Mennonites, Oct. 24, 1683, 18 days after their ship "Concord" ended a 73 day ocean trip.

Five years later, on February 18, 1688, Pastorius drew up a remarkable document. It reads: ". . . Monthly Meeting held at Richard Warrel's. These are the reasons why we are against the traffick of men Body . . . to be sold or made a slave for all time of his life? . . . fearful . . . taken and sold as slaves into Turkey . . . and it continued on to berate the Dutch and Quakers. It was signed by Pastorius and three other, 18 of 2nd month, 1688 at Germantown.

Ricketts Likes Reb 'Poise'; 'Better' Cruisers Visit C-W

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Sports Writer

South goes at Central Saturday on the bumpy Coliseum floor for the second time this season. And improvements by both may well afford better than a 59-44 South win this time around.

The Coliseum date with the Rebs finds Central's Wayne Rittenhouse warning that "South is moving better than they were the first time we played them during their Invitational tournament."

"WE'LL HAVE to stop their fast break and keep Pat Beasley and Stan Dixon off the boards," Wayne scouts.

"Poise under pressure" is the quality to which Dick Ricketts attributes South's winning ways this early in the infant season.

"We've been winning the close games and a lot of credit belongs to Pat Beasley who is our leading rebounder and the man who intimidates them on defense," he added.

DICK ALSO figures improving sophomore guard Ed Hoffman is helping quite a bit as well as senior (but first-year man) Charles Hay[illegible].

"He's come a long way and all he needs is experience," Ricketts notes of the newcomer.

Canal Winchester and Groveport, communities just three miles apart, line up to wage area warfare with a basketball Saturday night, and Groveport is using the theme song "What a Difference a Year Makes" as it remembers a 79-52 C-W win last season.

"WE'RE HAPPY to be winning," Bob Miller, the C-W cage coach, offers about his group's fine 4-0 mark. "We didn't know that we would start out this way."

The Indians are not as big in size as last year but, behind the big guns of Tim Simpson, are every bit as offensively potent as witnessed by a 45 per cent shooting average.

Simpson, who according to Miller is "doing a great job for us on the boards as well," has managed 33-31-18-24 point nights.

"OUR DEFENSE has been fairly good with the entire team giving a 100 per cent effort," he concluded.

"We've started better this season than in the past," was the way Bill Schneider summed up Groveport's 2-1 mark to date.

"We're looking forward to a pretty decent season, and we have a good bench with last year starter Dick Scott," Bill added. Don Barrett was also mentioned as standout bench support.

GROVEPORT has three scorers near the 20 ppg mark in Bob Ward (18.5), Mark Raynes (19.5) and Jim Stephenson (19.5). Steve Williams and Dennis McKinster round out the starting Cruiser lineup.

CAGE NOTES: "We're slow starting, but we should close fast," is how T-V's Bob Hoover sees things at the 3-4 Viking helm.

"We're also getting a little more consistency now and barely lost to tough Grove City Saturday night," he added.

In fact, T-V had the Hounds by one late in the game before losing, 70-66. Thirty turnovers menaced the home town considerably.

HOOVER singles out Dale Lambert (leading scorer 22 ppg and rebounder 11 pg) as team leader.

Checkers Schedule

The Columbus Checkers only home date this week comes tomorrow (Friday) when the local IHL entry hosts Port Huron on the Coliseum ice at 8 p.m.

Keglers' Korner

By NORMA KIRKENDALL

The ninth annual All-America Youth Bowling Championships will be one of the first national programs to be sponsored by the National Bowling Council as part of its "Million Dollar" promotion program.

The tournament was conceived and sponsored by the Bowling Proprietors Association of America which will continue to conduct the tournament.

IN RECENT years the AAYBC has been jointly sponsored by BPAA and the Sport of Bowling Council, made up of AMF and Brunswick Corp. More recently the ABC and the WIBC have been contributing a portion of the $21,000 in scholarship awards given each year at the tournament.

This is the first year, however, that all members of the NBC will be contributing to the tournament fund.

Members of the NBC include the ABC, AMF, BPAA, Brunswick, the WIBC, the Billiard and Bowling Institute of America, the National Duckpin Bowling Congress and the Professional Bowlers Association.

SINCE ITS inception in 1961, the tournament has traditionally been held in late July or early August in Washington, D.C.

As in the past, the format of the tournament will place 70 per cent emphasis on scholastic ability, the other 30 per cent on bowling.

The scholarship portion of the tournament includes a college entrance-type examination, a written essay, recommendations from high school principals and class rank.

THE BOWLING portion features competition in each of three divisions — Boys Scratch, Boys Handicap and Girls Handicap.

ABC and WIBC each have a relatively new 16 mm sound-color movie which would be of interest at association or at league meetings. The general public also could enjoy these at club meetings.

ABC's film is entitled "Passport to Pleasure" and is a 25-minute description of the real thrills of bowling for men. The "50th Anniversary" shows many of the functions of WIBC and 19 minutes of some excellent bowling.

ABC AT 1572 E. Capitol, in Milwaukee, will furnish their film on request and the "50th Anniversary" can be borrowed from WIBC headquarters, at 1225 Dublin Rd. in Columbus.

Drop a note to either organization for additional details.

your 'CBA' speaks . . .

By ART GOODMAN

By request this article that appeared in December of last year is being reprinted.

If you happen to be a team captain in an ABC sanctioned league, how do you rate as leader or spokesman for your teammates?

WHAT IS the role of a team captain?

"Team Captain" has a nice ring to it, but don't get carried away with the sound of a title. Consider what the title implies.

It's not all prestige — there are many responsibilities connected with the office.

A GOOD team captain has his work cut out for him. He's a busy person and occasionally finds himself with a lot of grief on his hands.

The team captain must first scout around and build a team that will be competitive with other teams in the league.

Don't forget all the league organization meetings the team captain must attend. A good team captain cannot be a silent spectator at these meetings.

THERE ARE many important matters to be discussed and plans to be formulated. As a member of the league's board of directors, he must often act in a judicial role.

He must be a cheerleader, must spark his teammates with enthusiasm and inspiration. He must be a diplomat to iron out the various difficulties that arise during the course of the season.

An effective team captain must at all times maintain good sponsor relationship. It's a challenging job, and you'd better be ready, willing and able to meet the challenge.

Perhaps you have already failed on some of your responsibilities in the early part of the 1968-69 winter season. If so, it's not too late to make amends.

Develop an attitude of aggressiveness and pride; get a charge, not a chore, out of your duties. Then, and only then, will you realize that the "team captain" title has a nice ring to it.

MR. TEAM Captain, have you approached your team members about entering the Men's City Tournament?

If not, you are shirking one of your many duties.

I'm sure your team would be more than grateful to you should they share in the $500 first-place team handicap prize. Your prompt entry will give your team a choice time to participate.

FOR RESERVATIONS call the Association office, 263-3500.

Rams Scramble OCC Cage Race; 'Let 'Em Off Hook'–Bears' Kloman

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Sports Writer

It was a depressing Friday evening for Pleasant View to come into a key Ohio Capital Conference game and have nothing come off the way it was planned.

But the major reason it was a long ride back to Pleasant View High was a gritty, pressure-applying band of Worthington Cardinals who seized every opportunity to whip the visiting Panthers, 61-47.

MEANWHILE across town, Whitehall was shuffling the OCC deck on a sizzling 50 per cent shooting night to easily handle Gahanna (previously unbeaten and highly regarded), 98-75, to jam the first OCC spot with five teams —Whitehall, Westerville, Gahanna, Mt. Vernon and Worthington — all 2-1.

"Nothing went right. We just took the apple on the pressure and couldn't get started," reported Dan Lesher who was obviously upset at the way his Panthers performed.

But everything P-V did wrong, Worthington had a large hand in causing.

THE 15 Panther turnovers were forced miscues with the excellent front play of guards Jack Harrington, John Snouffer and Dick Atha, who merely paced all scorers with 29 points.

The biggest single item that spelled disaster for Lesher's men was Worthington's 57-27 rebound majority.

"WE JUST weren't reacting to the situation on the floor," Lesher noted. "And we couldn't block out on the boards."

"We boxed them out on the boards very well and took away their second and third shot," is the way Russ Gregg credited an impressive Ram win over rugged Gahanna.

Russ lauded the effort of Mike Conley, a 6-3 pivot ace, who gave away four inches to Gahanna's Mike Browning—but nothing else.

"IT WAS his (Conley's) responsibility to keep Browning off the boards, and he was tremendous," Gregg offered.

The veteran cage coach also felt that son Van (who allowed Lincoln ace Mark Wiley three points) and Butch Sark (who hemmed in Fred Points) played above and beyond the call of duty.

Offensively the Rams scored this way: Sark (20), Conley (19), Van Gregg (20), Dan Reid (8), Rick Selvege (2) and Rex Gregg (5).

DeSALES' Treeze Sharrock lauded the spirit and courage of his charges who fought back after all was lost to erase a 14 point last-period Hartley lead and win 51-49.

Pat Mahoney scored 12 points to pace all scorers. Sophomore Steve Fields added 10 to the Stallions' cause. The win gave DeSales a 1-0 CCL log and a 4-0 all-games mark.

Eddie Ratlieff sailed in 11-of-20 from the field to pace East to a 63-36 win over North, Saturday.

"WE HAD them but let them out," observed North's Jim Kloman of the 13-12 first quarter deficit. Ratleff managed seven-of-nine in the telltale second period.

"I wasn't pleased at all by the performance against North," Hart said as the Tigers errored 14 times but shot a not-too-shameful 45 per cent.

PREPARE FOR CITY TOURNEY

Five members of the Columbus Women's Bowling Association display a reminder for local gal keglers in regard to the upcoming 46th annual City Tourney (Mar. 1 at Berwick Lanes). Entry blanks are available at all lanes and entries close Jan. 18. Pictured above (from left) are: Louise Bauer, Marie McAllister, Grace Keyser, Wanda Fillinger and tourney chairman Marge Werkhaven.

Eastmoor To Host Season's First Major Mat Tournament

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

The season's first major wrestling tournament unfolds this weekend as Bob Barnett's Eastmoor Warriors roll out the red carpet for a 15-team field.

Joining the hosts will be fellow City League members East, Mohawk, Walnut Ridge, South, Linden-McKinley and Whetstone and Whitehall, Watterson, Franklin Heights, Wehrle, Ready, Ashland, Hebron-Lakewood and Newark.

PRE-TOURNEY favorite would appear to be Franklin Heights with South, Whetstone, Watterson and the host Warriors likely top challengers for Bob Twiss' Falcons.

Wrestling action gets under way tomorrow at 3:30 and continues until 6:30 p.m. (prelims in first nine weight classes).

After a one-hour dinner break, wrestling resumes at 7:30 with prelims in the final two weight classes and a second round (all weights) running until conclusion.

SATURDAY'S schedule runs from 1 till 4 p.m. with semi-finals and consolations carded. Finals begin Saturday evening at 7:30.

Four mats will be employed for the first three sessions, two mats going during the finals.

Hole-In-One ProgramNets Society$1680

A total of $1680 was donated to the Ohio Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Columbus by Schmidt's Brewery as part of the company's "Hole-in-One" program.

The check was presented at the Society's annual meeting Oct. 27.

THE MONEY covered the cost of 42 one-week camperships for crippled children and represents holes-in-one scored by Columbus area golfers from May through Sept. 30.

Working in cooperation with the Ohio Society for Crippled Children and Adults and area country clubs, Schmidt's honors each golfer by sending a crippled child to camp in his name.

In addition, the golfer receives a golf bag tag and a plaque designating him as "One Fine Golfer."

In the Columbus area, Double D and Winding Hollow Country Clubs (seven aces scored) were tied as the leading clubs.

Tigers Vs. Reds Here

Jet Stadium will be the site for an exhibition game between the World Champion Detroit Tigers and Cincinnati Reds Sunday, Apr. 6 (1:30 p.m.), the Columbus Baseball Club announced Sunday.

WRESTLING NEWS

4 Area Mat Squads Rack Up Victories

South, Groveport, Mohawk and Marion-Franklin stepped into the winners circle on area wrestling mats last week — each recording dual verdicts.

Gordon Brooks' Bulldogs at South moved up to 2-0 with a 31-14 victory over Walnut Ridge, winning seven of the nine closing matches after spotting the Scotties a 6-0 pad.

TONY BRITFORD (120), John Vick (138), Glenn Darby (145) and Nick Ferguson (165) provided pin-wins for the Rebs while Paul Taylor and Paul McCamey earned decisions and Barry Jones won via forfeit.

Groveport hopped off to a 39-0 lead on Ready, coasting to a 39-8 verdict as the Cruisers evened their mark at 1-1.

Dennis Sparks (103), Oshal Waugh (112), Larry Lang (120), Dave Maxwell (138), Rick Berle (145) and Mel Jackson (165) picked up five-point pins for the winners while Gary Lang, Frank Riggsby and Andy Lyles earned decisions.

MOHAWK evened its '68-'69 record (1-1) with a 31-18 verdict over Hamilton Township.

John Butler's Indians pulled away from a narrow 20-18 margin as Henry Neal and Gerald Strother nabbed decisions and heavyweight Joe Anderson won by a pin to close out the match.

The Rangers (0-3) dropped two other mat verdicts recently — losing to Mifflin (26-20) and Grandview (29-14).

AGAINST the Cowpunchers, George Ginunas (127) and heavyweight Larry Wiggins took pin-wins while Vic Pinion won by decision, Tom Knorr won via forfeit and John Savel drew with his opponent.

Wiggins also won by [illegible] vs Grandview while Jeff Fi[illegible]er, Savel and Ginunas al[illegible] took decisions — the latter running his mark to 3-0 with the effort.

Dick Mileff's Red Devils at Marion-Franklin got pin points from Hugo D'Amico (127), Larry Boelter (138), Rick Austin (165) and Wendell Fellure (heavyweight) to sidetrack Mifflin 30-18.

OTHER M-F points came on John Robinette's decision at 103, Chris DeBoard's forfeit victory and Steve Grabovich's draw at 175.

Central won seven-of-11 finals matches to easily outdistance three City League foes in a quadrangular meet Saturday.

Dave Samuel's Pirates scored 101 points to down Linden (68), North (61) and Marion-Franklin (59).

RICK AUSTIN got the Devils lone finals win with a decision at 165 while Larry Boelter (133), John Richardson (154) and Steve Grabovich (175) picked up runner-up points.

WEHRLE scored its first-even wrestling victory, evening its '68-'69 mark at 1-1 via a 33-20 win over Central's Reserves.

Bill Payne (120), Don Iacouvetta (127) and Rick Gleich (133) won by pins for Dave Erwin's Wolverines while Mike Egger took a decision and Craig Bauman, Steve Apisa and Kieran Astley gained forfeit points.

SPECTATOR'S 'Player-Of-The-Week'

East High's smooth and high-scoring forward Ed Ratleff is the third Spectator "Player-Of-The-Week" by virtue of his 45-point effort against Marion-Franklin in East's 109-76 cage win last weekend.

Ratleff followed his Friday feat with a big 14-point second quarter to shake North from a 13-12 East margin to a relaxing 35-18 Tiger half-time advantage.

The 6-6 senior veteran is the top scorer in the City League with a 112 point output in four games.

'Fearless' Predictions

The "Fearless One" continued to amaze himself as well as his many "fans" with an on target 29-6 predicting mark last week in the second week of the young season.

He had better take a different look at the Ohio Capital Conference if that mark is to improve, however.

The overall two-week tally is 52-12 for an .812 percent[illegible].

Around Town

Conducted By
ROLAND SUNKER

The Mike Flore Trio, a versatile, swinging group, is currently playing at Marty Mellman's LaMancha. Appearing six nights a week, the group is composed of Mike Flore on sax (two at a time), Boots Carter on organ and Wally Mitchel on the drums.

While Mike isn't the first person to play two saxs at one time, he is a rarity, that's for sure. Actually, Mike is the best on twin saxophones. When he plays both at once, he obtains a sound as if two separate saxes were playing.

Boots Carter, a familiar name around town, plays a good strong organ. While they lean toward the jazz sound, the outfit is not way out. Much of this, of course, is due to Boots. He plays intricate chords and shows a great deal of inventiveness at the organ. Mike also does an admirable job. Wally Mitchell more than carries his weight in the trio. He is a drummer with taste who does a lot to keep the other members moving. He not only sets down strong tempos, but Wally adds many fancy flourishes that highlight the group.

The Mike Flore Trio is versatile, danceable and listenable. They weave a melody line among good improvisation. You can listen or dance to them every night at Marty's LaMancha beginning at 8 p.m.

Lee Pitman At Sheraton

Lee Pitman, pianist and singer, is one of the best acts to be in the DaVinci Lounge of the Sheraton Hotel for many months. Lee plays a smooth, classy piano. His style is his own and he uses nice, simple chords. Not a way out player, Lee sticks to the melody line and plays very pretty music. He is no creative genius at the keyboard but you'll enjoy Lee's artistry because his style is pleasant and his choice of material is familiar and likeable.

But Lee's talents do not stop with the keyboard. He is one of the finest male vocalists to appear in a Columbus lounge in a long time. Vocal-wise, he has a great style as well as a great sound. He reminds you of Frankie Randall, and as you know, this fellow is no slouch in the vocal department.

Lee is a vibrant entertainer who comes across enjoyably. Take my advice and catch Lee Pitman in the DaVanci Lounge. You have the rest of this week and all of next.

Back Door Lounge 'Cozy'

The Back Door Lounge, located on Briggs Road on the far west side of Columbus, is one of the most intimate, coziest places in the city. Appearing in the lounge is one of the sharpest, shapeliest dancers in the business. Joann Bendetti is also the cleverest dancer this columnist has laid eyes on for a long time.

She is reportedly the first in Columbus to dance in a mini skirt instead of a costume. Joann has incorporated a great degree of class in her act. She is a smooth dancer and uses lots of good techniques. Knowing the value of gimmicks, as is true in all acts, Joann employs quite a few. We won't tell you about them; we'll let you see for yourself. This you can do every Tuesday through Saturday at the Back Door Lounge.

Skipping Around Town

There's some big news this week and the next couple of weeks . . . Tommy Johnson, that great organist at the Vogue, is moving into the DaVinci Lounge beginning Dec.

THE GADABOUT

By PRISCILLA LENOX 444-1051

This year's "Christmas in other lands" will feature England, and we are indebted to two dear cousins for the information. The relatives are May and Howard Taylor of St. Helen's, Lancashire, England. Since they both write in such interesting style, we'll turn this space over to them, with no further ado. May's report will be first, as it's "ladies before gentlemen."

"Our Christmas dinner consists of the traditional roast turkey, pork, accompanied by chestnut stuffing, forcemeat balls, chipalata sausages, followed by Christmas pudding, white rum sauce, mince pies, nuts, fresh fruit, table wine, coffee.

"'Tea' is salad with cold meat, pickles, mince pies, sausage rolls, biscuits, fancy cakes, Christmas cake, trifles, jelly tinned fruit and cream. Supper is cold pork pie and sandwiches.

"Christmas Eve the children are very excited. They write letters and call to Father Christmas up the chimney at bed time. They take their socking and hang it on their beds, after leaving Father Christmas a mince pie and a glass of wine. Now the fun begins when they are all in bed asleep (we hope). We take all their presents and arrange them around their beds, hoping one doesn't stub their toe on the bed while doing this in the dark!

"We dress our artificial tree with lights and tinsel, colored balls and chocolate novelties. It's really children's time in England. The older folk now seem to want to be in pubs or clubs, but that's not for me. We sing carols and play party games with the children on Christmas Day and Boxing Day, so you see we have quite a nice time.

(And now to Howard's portion of "Christmas in England.")

"'How do you spend Christmas?' is a question I have put to a number of people, and most of them said they spent the day at home with their families, fixing the kids up with toys, hanging kiddies' stockings up at the end of the bed, cot or over the fireplace, and being awakened early Christmas morning to be told 'Father Christmas has been.'

"Christmas means not being able to move around the kitchen for toys, party hats, toffee, nuts. One man said it was a hairy time, but no doubt it is one of rich food and quite strong drink.

"It's a time of greeting, of handshakes and 'Season's Compliments,' of visiting relatives and friends, and being visited. Quite a few said they went to church a couple of times on the day.

"It is a time of presents, both given and received, and a time to look up all the names and addresses to send out greeting cards, and when those sent to you are delivered, to say 'Well fancy so and so sending me one!' One man said, 'It's a big business and the spirit isn't there any more.'

"But there's lots of spirit and Christmas trees can be seen in houses or twinkling at the windows. The chapels always have huge trees, and Father Christmas.

"Extra postal staff are engaged by the GPO and letters and cards are apt to be dropped in your letter box any time of day. Graveyards, I notice, are aglow with wreaths comprised of artificial flowers, ever so pretty.

"Carol services are held in most churches on the Sunday previous. Bands and choirs are out at full strength all Christmas morning. Thousands of people spend some time at football and rugby matches on Christmas and Boxing Days."

A huge "thank you" to the cherished British relatives for this excellent description of the Christmas season in their homeland.

Gifts For Giving

No time for a complete report on "Gifts for Giving" this edition, but it is gratifying to label it once again as "successful." Final wrap-ups as soon as possible, naturally.

The Evangelical Christian Youth of the Reeb Avenue Church of Christ in Christian Union will present a Christmas play, "And There Found They Christ," Sunday, Dec. 22. Recent activities of the group include a carol sing at Alum Crest; a Christmas party at the O-I Party House and candlelight communion service. Jack Carter is the youth group's director and the president is Barbara Zwilling.

Chet Long and Tom Crawshaw were invited guests at the catered dinner of the Schiller Park Golden Age Club, Tuesday, Dec. 17.

Birthdays

The middle grouping of birthdayites includes Joe Swetnam, Sandy Craggs, Patti Murnane, Margaret Naegele, Mary Naegele Donna Rogers, Kathy Goeller and Debby Burdett.

Anniversaries

Anniversaries soon to be observed include those of Ann and Paul Wiegerig, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walters, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hoglun, Emma and Donald Wilkerson, Ruth and Ronald Cumerledge, Linda and Steve Miller, Patti and Verrill Barnes, Jean and Ernie Holdren, Dixie and James Mitchell, Karen and Dwaind Welch, Jerri and Ralph Ross.

The Cub Pack of Thurman Avenue UM Church will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 19.

Hodge-Podge

Hodge-podge hop-scotch . . . Mary Circle, Ohio Avenue UM Church has a scheduled meeting for Friday, Dec. 20, at 8 p.m.

The Youth of Redeemer UB Church will carol Friday, Dec. 20, then take refreshments in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bowens. A Christmas Variety Program will be presented Sunday, Dec. 22, at 7:30 p.m., at Buckeye Junior High, 2950 Parsons Ave.

SOUTHSIDER CITED ON OKINAWA

In competition with rivals from 12 U. S. Air Force bases in Japan, Korea and Okinawa, T/Sgt. Addison W. McNeal, 969 Geers Ave., was named "Fifth Air Force Outstanding Airman of the Month." The presentation was made by Maj. Gen. Jerry D. Page. McNeal, who has been on Okinawa for the past 30 months, was rated tops in military bearing, conduct and performance of duty. His wife, Joanne, and their four children are at Naha with the sergeant.

each township for school purposes by the Continental Congress and pool the money for redistribution among all of Ohio's school districts.

The 500 acres at Hamilton and Williams Road held for the benefit of Canal Winchester and Madison Local Districts is potentially worth millions, according to Miller.

Recognizing the fact that many such school sections have been sold in the past for $15 and $20 an acre, Miller contends the local districts should not be "penalized for good judgment" and believes the districts must fight for their title to these lands.

Eagles To Hold Children's Party

Santa Claus will arrive at the Aerie home, 1167 Parsons Ave., at 2 p.m.

News Of Lockbourne

By MRS. BETTY McCUMBER — 491-3466

The Church of Christ in Christian Union will have its Christmas program Sunday, Dec. 22, at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Colleen Ward and daughter, Joyce, had a surprise 21st birthday party for daughter, Diane, Dec. 7. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Avid Clark and Bradley, Mrs. Ruth Blessing, Dixie and Peggy Christian, Jerry and Ruth Eccard, Dwight and Betty Lou Scott, Carol Kirk, Hilda Lozie, Betty and Carolyn McCumber and Bub and Christie Ward.

In Texas

Don and Glenn McKinney are spending a few weeks with Don's daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Macatee (Merrill), at Engleside, Tex. They will not return until after Christmas.

The Methodist Church will have its Christmas program and party Sunday, Dec. 22, at 7 p.m.

Mrs. Wiley Bailey from Warfield, Ky., spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Puckett.

Santa Will Visit

Anyone interested in having Santa visit his home on and around Christmas can contact Mrs. Joy Beane (Cheadle) at 491-7264.

Albert and Shirley Knece have returned from a week's vacation in Florida.

Mrs. Martha Knece and Katherine Knece and Mrs. Hogle visited last week with Martha's daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hammond, at Jackson. Mrs. Ada Knece visited her daughter, Lola Wiggins, at Bloomingville.

Mrs. Nina Tufts and Connie had a wedding shower Dec. 9 for Mrs. Lila Oliver (Tufts).

Program Planned

The Lutheran Fellowship Group and the Ruth Circle had a carry-in Christmas dinner at the church Dec. 15. On Dec. 22 at 10 a.m. members will have a Sunday School Christmas program. On Dec. 24 at 7:30 p.m., they will have a service of carols and Scripture readings.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wilburn visited relatives last Sunday, at Grayson, Ky.

Alpha Gamma Pledges Two New Members

Mrs. James Weitkamp and Mrs. Howard Williams were recently pledged by the Alpha Gamma Chapter of Groveport in a ceremony held at the Huntington National Bank in Canal Winchester followed by dinner at Shade's Restaurant.

Mrs. Jack Woodyard of Dublin presented First Pearl Awards to first-year members who have been active in the philanthropic educational and social efforts of the group and the Pallas Athene Award to those in recognition of individual contributions to the growth, progress and service of the sorority.

Receiving the former were Mrs. David Lindsey, Mrs. Robert Patton and Mrs. James Simms.

Mrs. Norman Hyduk, Mrs. Terry Hollinger and Mrs. Richard Giehl were recipients of the Pallas Athene award.

Mrs. Giehl also was presented a silver tray by Mrs. Hyduk, president, as first runner-up in the Outstanding Girl contest at the state convention.

Cpl. James Miles Spends Holidays In South Vietnam

Cpl. James M. Miles, son of D. W. Miles of 1354 Wick Court, is celebrating Christmas in Vietnam this year as a member of the First Marine Division.

Since 1966, First Division Marines have been serving in Vietnam during the Christmas holidays.

Their mission then was the same as it is now: train the South Vietnamese armed forces, conduct operations against the communist guerilla infrastructure and help the people of South Vietnam build a strong, democratic nation.

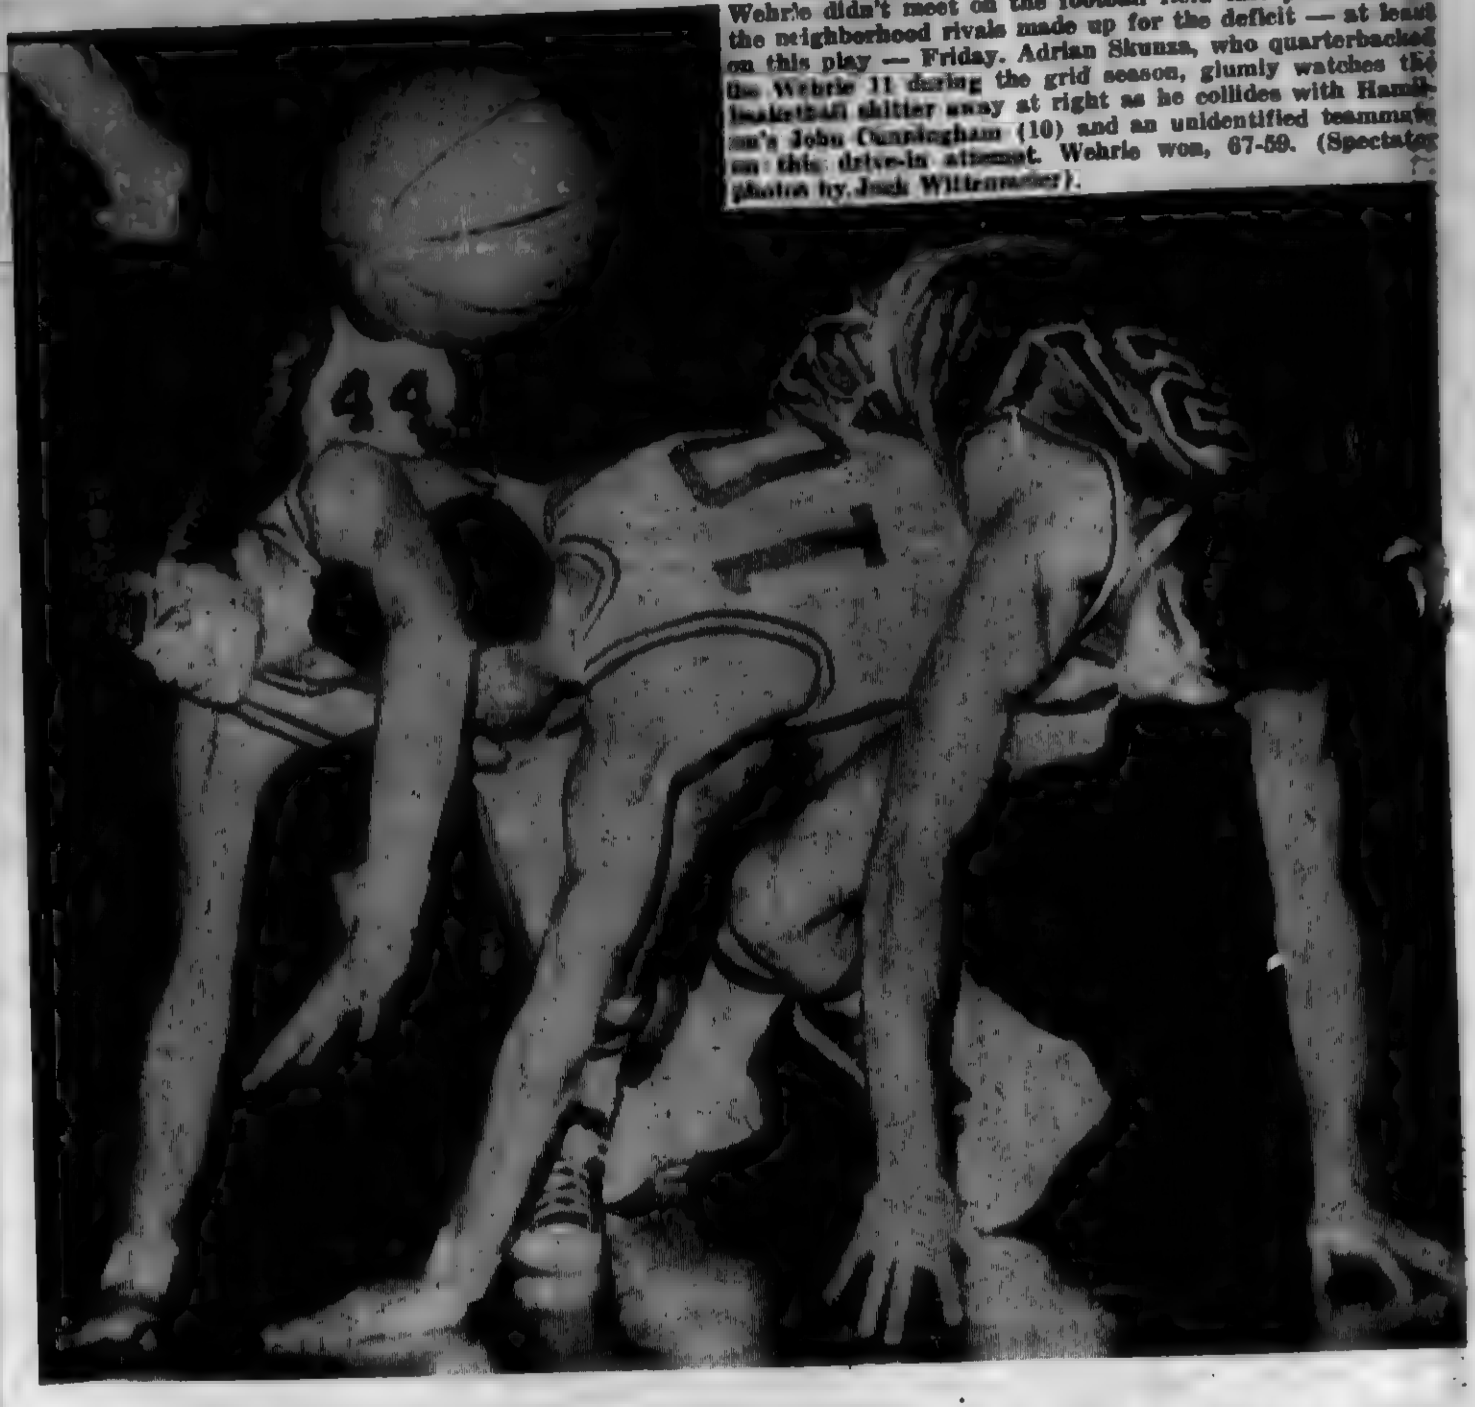
BASKET-BRAWL — Everybody tried to get into the act on this scramble for possession of a loose roundball Saturday at Teays Valley. Leading contenders include (from left): T-V's Neil Fosnaugh, Grove City's Bob Hitchens and T-V's Walt Newman with the Vikings' Larry Dixon bringing up the foreground. Referee called it a draw, decided jump ball would be best solution to problem.



QUARTERBACK SNEAK — Hamilton Township and Wehrle didn't meet on the football field this past fall but the neighborhood rivals made up for the deficit — at least on this play — Friday. Adrian Skunza, who quarterbacked the Wehrle 11 during the grid season, glumly watches the basketball skitter away at right as he collides with Hamilton's John Cunningham (10) and an unidentified teammate on this drive-in attempt. Wehrle won, 67-59. (Spectator photos by Jack Wittenmeier).

INTERESTED PARTIES — Hamilton Township's Dave Gilliam (24) and Wehrle's Adrian Skunza (right) both reach for a loose basketball after the Wolve defender batted the ball away from Gilliam on a drive-in attempt Friday.

LIGHTS OUT — Wehrle's Dave Maurer (45) might have control of this rebound but Hamilton Township defender Steve Mathes (30) makes sure the Wolve cager doesn't find a ready teammate as Mathes and H-T's Bob Fryer (44) converge on Maurer.

MACB COUNSELOR ASKS:

Do Young Men Know The 'Draft Facts'?

By PAT WELSH and JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writers

Many of the thousands of young men inducted into the armed forces annually know very little about the United States Selective Service System, according to a local draft counselor.

PATRICK J. FOLEY, a Hilltop resident who is head of a unique organization called the Draft Information Service of the Columbus Metropolitan Area Church Board (MACB), said his sole purpose is to provide unbiased information to these men.

He added that the service is designed to help draft-eligible young men outside of the Ohio State University area especially, since there are several other agencies available there.

Foley said there are many common misunderstandings concerning the present draft laws that should be corrected.

"For instance," he said, "few people realize that when they apply for a college (II-S) deferment they become ineligible for any other deferment after they leave school."

The MACB information service was set up, according to its director, to aid young men who would not otherwise have received draft counseling.

He stated that the people hit hardest by the selective service system are the poor, since they are not able to afford to go to college, thus being subjected to the draft immediately after high school.

HE DENIED, however, that the system was racist in its approach towards drafting young men, since poor whites are drafted right along with poor Negroes.

Foley, a veteran of the Korean War and holder of a Master's Degree from Fordham University, said he would like to see only a few changes in the present draft system, aimed at a more equitable draft.

Another misconception Foley would like to see done away with is the idea that people calling for changes in draft laws are trying to get out of serving their country.

"These people are only calling for fairer draft laws," he said. "Many of them would be among the first to go if their ideas were implemented.

"Another thing people don't understand is that most conscientious objectors end up serving their country in a non-military way, such as in hospitals and schools. Most end up in Vietnam anyway."

FOLEY SAID the majority of cases processed through his office have been concerned with declaring conscientious objection. His advice in such cases is aimed at helping the applicants express themselves well, since the written application for CO status is very important.

He added that he would like to see selective service become more "selective," with more avenues of service open to men who might serve their country better without a gun. Foley said service in such agencies as the Peace Corps and VISTA should count as military service.

Foley said the alternatives to military service are too restrictive, making the draft system serve as a "channeling device," forcing young men into fields of work they would not otherwise have chosen.

"A young man may have been very content with a career in business," he said, "but to get a student deferment he might switch into medicine or engineering, fields deemed 'in the national interest'."

TOUCHING ON local draft boards, Foley called them "undemocratic," in that jobs on the board are made by appointment, with few restrictions, and that the names of board members are not readily made known.

Foley predicted changes soon. He cited President-elect Richard Nixon's call for draft law changes during the campaign, and said citizens should wage a "ballot box campaign" against unfair practices.

He did say, however, that with an understanding local board and careful interpretation of the present draft laws, fair practices could be a reality.

Foley concluded by saying that the objection to the draft is not a new problem, nor is it as serious as it may seem.

"Possibly one per cent of the people actually object to the draft in principle," he said, "but almost all of them object to actually being drafted."

Gladden GetsUCC Backing

Despite internal problems at a West Side settlement house, a United Community Council progress report voiced its support of Gladden Community House as a UCC-UA agency.

Apparently the crisis which saw Gladden temporarily closed the first week of November will not be met with UCC budget revisions.

UCC Executive Director Walter Tarpley stressed the fact that the report was a progress study. "This was an on-going report. We have not completed our study yet."

TARPLEY SAID the United Community Council was working closely with Gladden officials, helping them to line up and recruit new staff.

While January had previously been set as a target date for reopening the settlement house, Tarpley would only say efforts to re-establish services were being pursued.

The committee's progress report took a swipe at coverage of controversial activities. It said: "Conditions alleged to be exisiting in and around the Gladden Community House during the year 1968 were magnified by the glare of publicity and the press."

The report, however, stated there were more basic problems involved than those "underscored in the mass media."

These included poor communication among staff members, between the board and staff members and between the total program and the community.

THE COMMITTEE speculated it was the communication gap between the board and staff members which led to the closing of the community center.

The report leaned over backward not to judge either the Gladden board or staff members.

While pointing out that the Gladden situation was not unique in Columbus, the committee said UCC must establish structures through which settlement houses can relate.

Among recommendations given were:

- Gladden programs should be "heavily weighted in the direction of community organization and should reach out into the neighborhood."
- Settlement house boards must take a more active part in policy setting.
- Staff members must display a greater accountability to their boards and a greater willingness to share the good and bad features of programs.
- Sensitivity training programs should be initiated to help staff and board members relate more realistically to new priorities.
- UCC and UA board members should also undergo sensitivity training programs.
- The right of a settlement house to contribute constructively to other community institutions (schools, CMACAO, etc.) should be supported by UCC-UA.

WITH THESE recommendations, the committee took note of the fact involvement may alter traditional approaches to health, welfare and group services. It calls for a "progress of community awareness" to be created to work through problems as they arise.

The committee's report covered some 20 hours of research. Interviewed were staff, board members and neighborhood residents.

Recipients Take Plea To State

Approximately 25 to 30 members of a welfare rights organization presented a list of demands to State Finance Director Howard Collier late last week in his State House office.

Principal among their demands, according to Janice Gaines of Dayton, is a call for 100 per cent of welfare standards for Ohio in 1969-71.

The group also called for state to pay 100 per cent of medical services for recipients and charged the state was meeting only 60 per cent of doctors' bills presently.

Collier said Ohio has had "35 years of failure in the welfare system" and suggested schools could assist with some needs of welfare children.

After the meeting, one welfare group member told The Spectator: "We must go home now and come back in mass force." Asked what this would entail, she replied: "Only that we'll be back in force next time."

According to Collier, the state could allocate money instead of utilizing welfare systems. He saw medical services, clothing and school lunches as some programs acceptable to schools.

In opposition to an exclusive story in The Spectator quoting state officials' pessimism over the WIN program, Collier said the work incentive project would show results within 18 months.

He said those physically or mentally handicapped have a right to 100 per cent of their needs, but "the person who could get a job and doesn't should get zero."

Personal Impressions Of A Non-Dialogue

By TED BEARDSHEAR
Spectator Staff Writer

At last week's meeting between a Welfare Rights Organization representatives and State Finance Director Howard Collier, the WRO presented a passionate plea for "100 per cent of needs," "guaranteed annual income," medical aid with doctor and pharmacy bills, special financial aid for Thanksgiving and Christmas and other assorted items.

The psychological drama was played in the footlights of tape recorders, TV cameras, and press representatives with pencil and notebooks.

Collier, fat, baldng and professional, said much which contained little. His role was that of the typical bureaucrat faced with emotion in the raw.

Specific questions got generalized answers. General questions were generally evaded.

But Collier wasn't a villain.

The WRO, a motley lot of white and Negro, barely were able to phrase questions. They seemed unable to comprehend innuendoes of vague answers.

It was a play — a charade of people's "rights" and governmental "position."

Neither dominated. Neither accomplished much. Nothing worthwhile was said.

Just a routine and familiar ritual.

It's hard to believe welfare recipients are starving when their spokesman and leader was a woman weighing about 200. And it's hard to be sympathetic with demands that are geared to provide the "good life" simply because one is poor or disabled or whatever.

It is equally hard to be sympathetic with a government spokesman whose attitude was one of practiced cool and indefinable verbal soliloquies based on a budget that has, in all probability, not even been drawn up.

Passion, threats of violence, pleas of imminent death, starvation, ragged, unfed children . . . a veritable parade of human misery versus budgets, charts, statistics, percentages, political manipulations and expediencies . . . both sides exaggerated.

A confrontation perhaps.

But a confrontation that took place in two separate languages and no interpreters.

One Negro, more eloquent than the rest and perhaps a little more astute, said "He's sayin' nothin'. We're comin' back with an army."

To which cool Collier might have retorted but didn't: "An army won't change one thing."

So much for the psychological drama. Fade out to the strains of "We Shall Overcome."

What you have left is a non-dialogue. But from it all comes the basic philosophical question:

What are the responsibilities of a democracy based on competition to those who don't or can't compete?

Ayn Rand, an advocate and philosopher of pure Capitalism, would let the lame, the halt and the blind die in the streets. She'd defend her position by a flat denial of the Christian ethic and point to a crippled lion which starves to death because he can't run down game.

Then there is the other extreme: "My brother's keeper" who would grant and grant and grant until the whole nation would find welfare preferable to working.

There are other solutions: Welfare States, Socialism, Communism, Dictatorships—as many solutions as there have been civilizations.

Somewhere between the two extremes there might be a workable solution.

As an observer, I report what I see . . . and what I saw was what I wrote.

There were no villains. Collier cannot be condemned. The WRO cannot be condemned.

This play had no heroes nor any villains.

It's as old as man.

One concrete fact emerged. One undeniable, uncontroversial, definite, clear and concrete fact.

Rhodes doesn't have the answer.

But, then, neither did Solomon.

Rep. Wylie Puzzled By Release Of Data

U. S. Attorney Robert Draper of Columbus plans to leave his post Jan. 20.

The resignation comes on the heels of a memo prepared by a House Republican task force on crime which called for the removal of U.S. attorneys in some six cities across the nation, including Columbus.

U. S. Rep. Chalmers P. Wylie, a member of the House task force, appeared puzzled by the release of the 9,000-word report Monday.

He said the report did not come from the full House task force studying crime.

Apparently the memo prepared by the task force staff for its chairman, Rep. Richard Poff of Virginia, was reported stolen — and reprinted in Monday's paper.

Speaking to the issue of the recommendation that Draper and other U.S. attorneys be replaced, Wylie said such posts are appointments at "the pleasure of the president."

He said the attorney post was "not even a job which needs the advice and consent of the Senate."

The mapor components of the advisory document involved doubling the manpower assigned to fight organized crime and limiting the use of electronic eavesdropping.

The unofficial — but well divulged — details of the document said anti-crime efforts initiated under Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark ought to be expanded.

One Nation Or Two: What Can Be Done?

By JOHN MORGAN

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles on what community leaders feel can be done to avert what the Federal Riot Commission Report saw developing: two nations — one black and one white in America).

Low-income ghetto dwellers, utilizing the economic patterns of American life, could begin local industries to provide true corporate competition.

Curtis Brooks, executive director of the Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization, believes this step is possible.

"THE MAJORITY white community can provide management and technical expertise to educate and train the poor so that they can successfully own and operate their own enterprises," Brooks says.

Such a program would be somewhat similar to aid now given by the federal government to underdeveloped countries. Civil rights leader Whitney Young has frequently said he believes in a domestic Marshall Plan, where ghetto areas are given the same assistance as foreign, underdeveloped nations.

Brooks believes a recent CMACAO effort illustrates the effectiveness of this approach.

LOCAL INDUSTRIES loaned CMACAO their experts in marketing, sales analysis, business management, accounting and legal assistance. This team conducted a six-month study to determine what was needed to develop a profit-making factory in the central city.

"As a result of this study," Brooks explained, "several basic products were found which were not being manufactured in Franklin County."

Discussion with some manufacturers who use these items confirmed the belief that a local factory would enjoy many advantages over the present out-of-town sources, the executive director commented.

He also cited other advantages. "Not only would local manufacturing eliminate exhorbitant shipping charges, thus considerably reducing the cost, but local production would also be much more sensitive to variations in users' production needs and permit much quicker utilization.".

IF PROFIT is the test of private enterprise, then the CMACAO venture has been successful.

"Actual contractual commitments from user companies are already in the hundreds of thousands of dollars," Brooks reports.

Now participating companies have agreed to put top management personnel on loan to the project. These executives will work side by side with inner-city management trainees to prepare them for eventual independent operation of their factory.

"This was — and still is — just a beginning," Brooks cautions.

"But it is a beginning filled with promise for the inner-city dwellers who have so long been dealt out of the action."

O. J. Prize In 'Stupor Bowl'

(Eds. note—Columnist Jim Murray is on vacation (probably in hiding after his recent column on Woody Hayes). In lieu of Murray's sports writing this week, we offer this item reprinted from the Philadelphia Inquirer. Although the situation described herein is no longer applicable, we thought it was too good to pass up).

By FRANK DOLSON

PHILADELPHIA, PA. — Now that the Eagles have clearly established themselves as the team to beat — and beat — and beat — in the O. J. Simpson Sweepstakes, American Football League fans are furious.

In Buffalo, where the hometown Bills have a 1-9-1 record, feeling is running especially high.

Outraged Buffalo fans are convinced their team is the worst in pro football and they may have a point.

AFTER ALL, who is to say that a team with no victories in the NFL is worse than a team with one victory in the AFL?

Why shouldn't the Buffalo Bills have a chance to prove their inferiority?

There is only one fair solution to this knotty problem—a post-season game between the worst in the NFL and the worst in the AFL with the loser getting draft rights to Simpson.

FINANCIALLY, the game would be a sure-fire success.

They could play it in Las Vegas, where losers always have had a strong appeal, and sell it to the three major TV networks, as the first annual "Stupor Bodl."

Let's join the telecast.

Buffalo rooters are pleading for a field-goal try, but apparently the Eagles are not going to risk it.

In Case of Tie . . .

AS YOU probably know, under Stupor Bowl rules in the event of a tie the decision is up to the college player of the year.

And so the Eagles are still huddling . . . . and now their fans are counting the final seconds: Three . . . Two . . . One. It's over! It's all over!

THE EAGLES have tied the Bills, 0-0, and delirously happy Eagles' fans, confident that Simpson will pick the NFL, are carrying their coach off the field and waving banners that say, "Joe's OK. He got O. J."

Don't go away because we're going to interview the tying coach after which O. J. Simpson himself, a guest in our combined CBS-NBC-ABC booth, will announce his final decision to the waiting world.

Now down to the Eagles' locker room . . .

INTERVIEWER: We're trying to reach the coach, but as you can see it's a mob scene here.

Pete Rozelle, the commissioner of the NFL, is fighting his way through the crowd to congratulate Joe.

They're smiling and waving for the cameramen. Hey, Joe! Joe! Over here . . . And now, exclusively on CBS, NBC and ABC, here's the coach of the Philadelphia Eagles. Congratulations, coach.

JOE: Thank you, but let's not count our chickens before they're hatched. It's up to O. J. now. It's in the laps of the Gods.

Interviewer: Your modesty is refreshing, coach. Was it difficult to prepare for this game?

Joe: It certainly was. People think all you have to do is walk on the field and lose. They don't realize the preparation that goes into this.

INTERVIEWER: Very well put. As those of us close to the game know, it isn't easy to get a team down week after week . . . Now can you tell us what you considered the crucial moment.

Joe: When we had the ball on their one-foot line early in the third quarter. The game was on a teeter-totter there.

Interviewer: That first-down quick kick into their end zone was a master stroke . . . Otherwise, did the game go according to plan?

JOE: I must admit that one time our game plan broke down completely.

Interviewer: That's when

WORSHIP
IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

Too close for comfort

Here's a photograph taken from a kayak. You don't bring a ship this close to an iceberg! For underwater the tentacles of this cruel, cold monster may reach out a mile or more.

Life for some folks is a succession of narrow escapes. But these are adventures we can do without. They don't prove us bold sailors. They simply prove us poor navigators.

Frightened men sometimes turn to religion as a refuge when dangers—moral, spiritual and physical—loom too close for comfort. God does not fail us in crisis.

But the every-day function of faith is to pilot men on a true course through the sea of life. The Church cannot sweep away icebergs. It warns us of their whereabouts and helps us give them a wide berth.

MAVERICK

By Richard L. Paugh

WITH MUDDY SHOES

Heading into Ohio's shotgun season on the whitetail deer, it looked like full freezers all the way.

Several Southeastern counties had highway kill reports o[illegible]-90 during the first [illegible]ths of 1968.

[illegible] IS an accurate barometer as to the size of the deer herd (when the highway kill is up, the herd is up).

The final count of 1,215 deer taken in the one week did not show the expected increase. As a matter of fact, it was 10 per cent below the 1967 kill.

How can the herd increase and the kill decrease?

SIMPLE. Although the deer permit sales figures are not yet tallied, they are expected to be nearly as great as 1967 but they remained for the most part little used.

Driving rains shortened most deer drives and made posting almost impossible. Nothing is more disheartening to the hunter than cold, blowing rain.

Or, as Granpa always said, "It's hard to hit a deer with a cup of coffee in your hand."

NORTHWESTELN'S zone gave up 67 bucks, the North Central zone had 26 bucks killed, the Northeastern zone gave up 325 bucks and does while the rest of the state had a buck kill of 799 (up over the 727 of last year).

In the Southeastern area, Athens was tops with 86, Washington was second with 78, Muskingum third with 68, Meigs fourth with 50, Gallia fifth with 49 and Morgan sixth with 48 bucks.

These are the very counties where the highway kill was so great.

THE MAVERICK enjoyed the hillsides around Burr Oak Lodge with Earl Schaeffer, Tom Buskirk, Don Bayless and Dick Seitz. We didn't get many shots but we had a real good time.

Michigan's deer kill was down 12 per cent from last year, due — they figure — to rain also.

During the first day on the Upper Peninsula they killed 7,454, compared to last year's 8,751. When it rains, it rains on everyone.

THE ADVENT of the phony Christmas tree is being felt as the Maverick predicted four years ago. It has made the raising of trees for the holiday season a bit chancy.

It is hoped that landowners will continue to plant pines even though they might not be such a terrific money crop.

They furnish excellent cover for all of Ohio's wildlife. If the young forests now standing aren't harvested to their fullest, Ohio will become a winter wonderland by virtue of its greenery.

THE MAVERICK wishes you a MERRY CHRISTMAS!

you made two straight first downs?

Joe: Exactly. Buffalo had shifted into a two-man line with their nine defensive backs playing exceptionally deep and Norm Snead called a couple of running plays for big gains. I had to call a timeout to settle him down.

INTERVIEWER: Coach, you reactivated the great Ollie Matson for the game. Why?

An Expert Fumbler

Joe: We knew he was a team player who would do what we told him without hesitation.

Interviewer: He centainly played a key role for you, fumbling away the ball nine times.

JOE: Yes, we presented him with the game ball.

Interviewer: How wonderful. He must have been thrilled. What did he do when you gave him the ball?

Joe: He dropped it.

INTERVIEWER: Well, coach, I know you would have preferred a clean-cut decision, but that's the way the ball bounces.

Joe: Yes, you know what they say. You can't lose them all.

Interviewer: Thank you coach. We now switch you back to the booth for the official decision.

ANNOUNCER: in Booth: Ladies and gentlemen, we've been sitting here with O. J. Simpson, the man who made the first annual Stupor Bowl necessary.

O. J., you've spent the afternoon watching these two teams fight for your rights. Have you made up your mind?

O. J.: Yes, I have.

ANNOUNCER: Where are you going?

O. J., To the Canadian League!

Jacobs Winless — But High In Loop Statistics

Despite its 0-2 standing in the infant National AAU Basketball League schedule this season, Jacobs Movers paces the loop in field goal average (67-of-131) and rates second in total offense (153 pts. for 76.5 avg.).

Individually, former Eastmoor standout Jerry Groves rates fourth in total scoring with a 17 pt. per game average and first in assists (five per game).

SELF-EMPLOYED?

IA Only the Investment Annuity Retirement Plan has everything you want.

- [illegible]h proprietor, partner and employee chooses his own investments and can make changes freely within his personal tax-sheltered account—before and after retirement.
- Your retirement income will change each year with investment results of your account.
- Lifetime annuity guarantees protect you—and your spouse if you wish—from outliving your account.
- Up to 25% of the employer contribution can be used to buy low cost term insurance, if you wish.
  Example: Of a $2500 contribution, $625 can be used for term insurance. At age 40, this provides $170,000 of insurance protection.
- Death benefits can also be paid as a tax-sheltered, growth-oriented lifetime income.
  Example: Widow age 40 would receive first year annuity payments of $853 per month from a $170.000 account, 15 years certain and life, with payments changing from year to year with investment results.
- There is no charge for telephoning 800-523-2721 any time of the day or night. You may get more information or an enrollment kit simply by leaving your name, address, telephone number and business or profession.

You don't have to be self-employed to be eligible for an Investment Annuity. Immediate or deferred annuities can be used with all types of tax-qualified pension and profit sharing plans, including tax-sheltered annuities for teachers and employees of certain non-profit organizations.

General agent, insurance broker and broker/dealer inquiries are invited. Please write on your business letterhead to John Bridges, C.L.U., Senior Vice President

Look Deeper

The announcement that the state may sell some old mental institutions with large farms and use the money to build small, modern hospitals is commendable, on the surface.

Everyone agrees that structures of 100 year vintage are not suited to the concepts of present day treatment of the mentally ill. In fact, Mental Hygiene Director Martin Janis was once reported to have said that his problem was integrating modern techniques to antiquated structures.

The need for new structures for the mentally ill is real . . . but the question of placement arises: if land is sold, where will the new structures be placed?

Next, the assertion that modern drugs and treatment methods, planned expansion of community centers, and more day care treatment centers designed to treat patients in their home area have made traditional hospitals obsolete is completely misleading.

According to one practicing institutional psychiatrist, the population of the mental hospitals in the state is changing. More and more geriatric cases, requiring custodial care, are being entrusted to the state.

These people are not mentally ill in the sense that they can be helped with therapy or drugs. Their incapacity is a natural result of aging, organic brain syndromes resulting from hardening of the arteries . . . senility, etc.

Further, to complicate things, Medicare and nursing homes have not reached an agreement suitable to meet the needs of the aged, according to this source.

In fact, he asserts, some nursing homes are closing because of financial problems.

The geriatric case, the psychiatrist continued, needs centralized care and expanded medical treatment . . . adding up to the need of traditional large and centralized buildings.

On the other hand, he continues, small, modern hospitals are ideal for the treatment of the mentally ill.

The state then has two problems: one of large centralized buildings for the geriatrics and one of small units for the mentally ill.

The Spectator can only conclude that the state will require MORE hospitals . . . both traditional and modern, and therefore, more land.

If land is sold, where are we going to house the geriatric cases?

And where are we going to treat those cases which cannot be handled by community centers or outpatient methods?

Although the land in question is used for farming, the land is of value to supply the sites for modern structures designed to meet both the centralized custodial care of the aged and the diffused and decentralized acute case care needed by those who are unable to be treated in their home areas.

The idea to build modern hospitals to replace the outmoded structures in Ohio's mental health system is commendable and needed.

But to trade the land on which these hospitals could be built in order to raise funds to build them is like selling a basement to finance a roof.

Wrong Direction

Gov. James A. Rhodes' Wonderful World is again spiraling in the wrong direction.

While the Great Bonder outlined positive goals for the state in the 1970's, he glossed over where Ohio now ranks in the areas of health, education and welfare.

An Indian sage once commented: It is easier to look ahead than to view the present.

A federal summary backs up this contention.

Ohio finished 1968 so far behind other states in rehabilitating disabled persons that it would take a major shift in spending priorities to catch up.

The state ranked 48th in helping physically handicapped individuals become working citizens instead of welfare recipients.

With our good governor's constant chatter about jobs, it is striking that Ohio's rehabilitative rate per 100,000 inhabitants was only 57.

To add fire to this medieval statistic, Ohio's contribution was only 47 per cent of what it could have made to receive the maximum federal funding.

While our governor hits hardest at such federal programs as poverty assistance, he might well ask himself whether one major share of the problem doesn't rest with the pen that pushes the Wonderful World into prehistoric times.

Responsibility

By ROBERT TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

The high court — usually accused of being somewhat to the left of liberal — took a hard line on a plea from a group of Army Reservists that their call to active duty in Vietnam is unconstitutional.

It ruled that the Armed Forces were the final determining agency in such a callup — a decision that takes an entirely different tack from some other recent Supreme Court decisions on draft and activation protest.

The point is that many knowledgeable persons feel the Reservists had a good technical legal point, but that court was fed up with the tack draft protest has taken and decided to lay down a hard line for the future.

And there is a larger meaning to all this.

Somewhere along the line, the leaders of the varied and massive protest movements sweeping our country are going to have to decide whether they truly want reform or whether they are protesting for protest's sake.

There can be no change without help from within the so-called establishment. That is plain and simple fact.

And what has happened is that many establishment-oriented liberal thinkers have become disenchanted with the causes they only recently had been willing to fight for. They have been scorned so often by the "New Left" that they feel their efforts are in vain.

This applies to draft protest, the fight for students' rights and even, to a large extent, to the civil rights movement.

The "don't trust anyone under 30" syndrome is having a reverse effect. Anyone over 30 feels he is not only not trusted but not wanted. And he takes the hint.

In other words, we have protest without responsibility and that can lead only to chaos.

When the responsibility is forthcoming, change will follow — even if it takes time.

Without it, we will face full-scale revolution.

The Gesture

By TED BEARDSHEAR

I dislike writing a column concerning buses so soon after my blistering expose of them some weeks ago, but people ride buses and people are the main source material of columnists.

And this person just happened to be riding a bus.

What I saw was a simple gesture: small, unnoticed except perhaps by me.

He was an old man with a white moustache. His hat was at that formless stage that hats get when they are used for years without a blocking.

His other clothes were somewhat between tawdry and acceptable. The shoes were creased . . . as though the wearer were more used to walking than riding.

The overcoat was a size or two too large. There was a tie on a flannel shirt.

The skin was olive. The face was creased . . . not from defeat or resignation . . . or happiness either. Creased because the face was old. Creased in terms of no great passion of love or hate . . . but the simple middle ground of life in which most people spend the greater part of their lives.

In the haste of a busy day, most people would glance through such a man.

And I, too, except for the gesture. Except for that, he was just an old man riding a bus. One of a million in a city.

As we neared the downtown area, the old man very simply took off his hat and held it over his heart.

It was there for a very short while. He did it quietly and naturally, as unobstrusively as picking up a dropped transfer.

He did not bow or blink. He just took the hat off and placed it over his heart and then put that ancient hat back on that ancient head.

I looked back to see what we had passed.

There was a Catholic church.

On a busy day in a crowded bus in a bigger city, an old man gave reverence to his God.

I thought it, in these times of all times, a magnificent gesture.

Mortal Combat

By ROBERT W. REIDER
Editor and Publisher

REIDER

Columbus and Franklin County Democrats again are preparing to enter mortal political combat—with each other.

It appears that our Democrat "heroes" will train for next November's battle against local Republicans by tearing each other to pieces in a senseless Democratic Primary "political bloodbath."

Why?

Ostensibly because city and county political "stars" can't come to terms over whom should be endorsed, and by what procedure, for city elective offices in 1969. The real problem, however, is that personalities are being placed before principles.

Rank and file Democrats deserve something better than being caught in a squeeze play between leadership factions of the party. If those who vote Democrat are to lose at the polls, they should lose to Republicans — not to internal petty politics.

And the Democratic leadership hardly can demand unflinching loyalty to the "Organization"—city or county — when the "Organization" fails to meet the most basic requirements of loyalty to potential candidates and, especially, incumbent candidates.

"County" oriented Democrats had better appreciate the proven strength of the "City Hall Troops," a strength that has kept their political party in the local ball game.

And the City Hall "branch" had better realize that the "two-party system" does not mean a "City" Democratic Party and a "County" Democratic Party.

In summary, we would admonish Democratic leaders to quit making doctrine of the facetious comment by the late Will Rogers — "I don't belong to any organized political party; I'm a Democrat."

Big Brother Blues

By JOHN MORGAN

The greatest gap in this nation today may well be between bureaucrats and the rest of us who have the "Big Brother blues."

A Greek philosopher many centuries ago caught a common modern mood: "The greatest tragedy is this — that man should have knowledge of so much and control over so little."

ONE OF THE primal disrupting forces in our society today is this agonizing feeling of helplessness in the face of "The System." Black and whites alike share this frustration, for it is a result of present-day sociological realities.

These realities are clustered populations, awareness of social differences created through the mass media and large corporate structures which govern a greater portion of our lives than we want to admit.

While Gov. George Wallace often played on the most crass characteristics of this modern mood, there was a lesson to be learned from the response to his "program."

THE ANSWER is not to "run over dissenters" or "throw the big bureaucrats into the river." But the fact that so many Americans passionately understood Wallace's distaste for bureaucrats is a sign of real division in our midst.

No one likes Big Brother except those who live in his shadow. Bureaucracy is big and impersonal. Rather than compassionate ends, moreover, bureaucracy is judged by efficiency.

We may not like it. But bureaucracy is a result of capitalism. It is part of the American mindset — which wants practical results and programs rather than visions.

To "get the job done" today, bureaucrats tell us, large, massive structures must be set up — each with its own set of rules, hierarchy and sources of revenue.

And while Nixon expresses his distaste for protest movements, it would be wise to remember that the same potential forces which elected him also are at work elsewhere.

On university campuses, students are sick of the arbitrary hierarchy. In churches, laymen think twice about decisions from above. In politics, the day of gigantic organizations controlling the minds of men is under serious attack.

THE COUNTRY is in an angry mood and its first opponent is the bureaucrats.

Part of this anger is unfortunate, because it strikes first at the most vulnerable — poverty organizations, health and welfare agencies.

But streamlining bureaucratic structures really begins at home.

For Richard Nixon this means the federal bureaucracy with its maze of government duplication, civil servant syndromes and impersonal decision-making.

BUT THIS is only the beginning.

Efficiency is not the sole test of bureaucracy or else the Nazi regime would have to be judged the greatest of them all.

What is happening in American life is essentially a test of bureaucracy — how well it can adjust to meet changing needs.

WHAT WE are in store for is a matter for visionaries.

Some believe we are passing into a post-urban stage of history. That the agricultural way of life is disappearing is too common to repeat; but many anthropologists say the isolated city, too, will evaporate into giant population centers.

The first test of bureaucracy is now taking place: Can it function to meet changing needs?

The future test of bureaucracy will be even more crucial: Can it be efficient and also compassionate?

For if bureaucracies fall into the trap of Big Brotherism—withdrawn from the mainstream of American culture — the result could be chaos.

Letters To The Editor

Letters for publication must bear the writer's name and address. The editors, at their discretion, may permit use of initials or pseudonyms if this is requested for a good reason. Safe Driving

To The Editor:

This letter will convey our sincere apprecia[illegible] you and your staff for the series of Defensive [illegible] articles which appeared in the Nov. 14-21-28 iss[illegible] The Spectator.

In our opinion, Jane Robinson (your staff writer who enrolled in the course), did an outstanding job of recapping the important safety factors emphasized in this National Driver Improvement program. Her interesting, and informative descriptions of the course details plus the student reactions should contribute a great deal to the future safety of the Spectator subscribers—who may have taken the time to read the articles.

Our thinks to Jane and the publisher for your continued interest and contributions to traffic safety in the greater Columbus area.

Please keep up the good work, because the rising traffic toll is positive evidence of the need for more emphasis being placed on traffic safety.

How To Tell The Young From The Old

By ARTHUR HOPPE

HOPPE

Once upon a time there was a young man named Guevara Grommet who believed, above all else, in individual freedom.

"Nobody," he said, squaring his chin, "has any excuse for ever shoving anybody else around."

Then, when he was 18, his draft board classified him 1-A.

"Wait a minute," he said. "What gives you the right to take away my freedom, put me in an institution for two years and teach me how to kill people in a war I think unjust?"

"It's because we know," said the draft board patriotically, "what's right for our country."

SO YOUNG GUEVARA went back to his campus and organized an anti-draft rally. But the College Administration denied him permission to speak.

"Wait a minute," he said. "What gives you the right to take away my freedom to have my say?"

"It's because we know," said the College Administration stuffily, "what's right for our college."

So young Guevara decided to stage a peaceful protest. And the cops hit him on the head and tossed him in the paddy wagon.

"Wait a minute," he said. "What gives you the right to take away my freedom and shove me around?"

"It's because we know," said the cops angrily, "what's right for our community."

"What a sick society," said young Guevara. "Whites oppress Blacks. Rich oppress poor. And we slaughter innocents around the world because we know it's good for them. It's people who think they know what's right who shove other people around.

"We must tear down this sorry scheme of things entirely and build a new society. I won't even think about what kind, because I don't want to fall into the trap of thinking I know what's right."

So young Guevara became a revolutionary.

The first thing he did, of course, was to run the Army recruiters off the campus — because he knew joining the Army was wrong.

Then he organized a student strike, kidnaped the Dean of Medieval Agronomy and hit the Administration with demands for 27 new ways of doing things — because he knew the old ways were wrong.

Unfortunately, some students objected to the[illegible]. But when they rose to make their points, he [illegible] them down — because he knew they were wrong.

And when the cops came to restore order, he heaved bricks at them — because he knew they were fascist pigs representing a sick, dead-wrong society.

One day he caught a short, bespectacled student trying to sneak into class. Naturally, he shoved him up against a wall and told the little racist, toady cop-out not to try it again.

"Wait a minute," said the little student. "What gives you the right to take away my freedom and shove me around? I suppose it's because you think you know what's right?"

"Oh, no!" said Guevara, shocked at being identified with the old society he despised. "It's because I know what's wrong."

• • •

MORAL: Old people know what's right. Young people know what's wrong. And when it comes to getting shoved around, there isn't much to choose.

Look Deeper

The announcement that the state may sell some old mental institutions with large farms and use the money to build small, modern hospitals is commendable, on the surface.

Everyone agrees that structures of 100 year vintage are not suited to the concepts of present day treatment of the mentally ill. In fact, Mental Hygiene Director Martin Janis was once reported to have said that his problem was integrating modern techniques to antiquated structures.

The need for new structures for the mentally ill is real . . . but the question of placement arises: if land is sold, where will the new structures be placed?

Next, the assertion that modern drugs and treatment methods, planned expansion of community centers, and more day care treatment centers designed to treat patients in their home area have made traditional hospitals obsolete is completely misleading.

According to one practicing institutional psychiatrist, the population of the mental hospitals in the state is changing, More and more geriatric cases, requiring custodial care, are being entrusted to the state.

These people are not mentally ill in the sense that they can be helped with therapy or drugs. Their incapacity is a natural result of aging, organic brain syndromes resulting from hardening of the arteries . . . senility, etc.

Further, to complicate things, Medicare and nursing homes have not reached an agreement suitable to meet the needs of the aged, according to this source.

In fact, he asserts, some nursing homes are closing because of financial problems.

The geriatric case, the psychiatrist continued, needs centralized care and expanded medical treatment . . . adding up to the need of traditional large and centralized buildings.

On the other hand, he continues, small, modern hospitals are ideal for the treatment of the mentally ill.

The state then has two problems: one of large centralized buildings for the geriatrics and one of small units for the mentally ill.

The Spectator can only conclude that the state will require MORE hospitals . . . both traditional and modern, and therefore, more land.

If land is sold, where are we going to house the geriatric cases?

And where are we going to treat those cases which cannot be handled by community centers or outpatient methods?

Although the land in question is used for farming, the land is of value to supply the sites for modern structures designed to meet both the centralized custodial care of the aged and the diffused and decentralized acute case care needed by those who are unable to be treated in their home areas.

The idea to build modern hospitals to replace the outmoded structures in Ohio's mental health system is commendable and needed.

But to trade the land on which these hospitals could be built in order to raise funds to build them is like selling a basement to finance a roof.

Wrong Direction

Gov. James A. Rhodes' Wonderful World is again spiraling in the wrong direction.

While the Great Bonder outlined positive goals for the state in the 1970's, he glossed over where Ohio now ranks in the areas of health, education and welfare.

An Indian sage once commented: It is easier to look ahead than to view the present.

A federal summary backs up this contention.

Ohio finished 1968 so far behind other states in rehabilitating disabled persons that it would take a major shift in spending priorities to catch up.

The state ranked 48th in helping physically handicapped individuals become working citzens instead of welfare recipients.

With our good governor's constant chatter about jobs, it is striking that Ohio's rehabilitative rate per 100,000 inhabitants was only 57.

To add fire to this medieval statistic, Ohio's contribution was only 47 per cent of what it could have made to receive the maximum federal funding.

While our governor hits hardest at such federal programs as poverty assistance, he might well ask himself whether one major share of the problem doesn't rest with the pen that pushes the Wonderful World into prehistoric times.

Responsibility

By ROBERT TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

The high court — usually accused of being somewhat to the left of liberal — took a hard line on a plea from a group of Army Reservists that their call to active duty in Vietnam is unconstitutional.

It ruled that the Armed Forces were the final determining agency in such a callup — a decision that takes an entirely different tack from some other recent Supreme Court decisions on draft and activation protest.

The point is that many knowledgeable persons feel the Reservists had a good technical legal point, but that court was fed up with the tack draft protest has taken and decided to lay down a hard line for the future.

And there is a larger meaning to all this.

Somewhere along the line, the leaders of the varied and massive protest movements sweeping our country are going to have to decide whether they truly want reform or whether they are protesting for protest's sake.

There can be no change without help from within the so-called establishment. That is plain and simple fact.

And what has happened is that many establishment-oriented liberal thinkers have become disenchanted with the causes they only recently had been willing to fight for. They have been scorned so often by the "New Left" that they feel their efforts are in vain.

This applies to draft protest, the fight for students' rights and even, to a large extent, to the civil rights movement.

The "don't trust anyone under 30" syndrome is having a reverse effect. Anyone over 30 feels he is not only not trusted but not wanted. And he takes the hint.

In other words, we have protest without responsibility and that can lead only to chaos.

When the responsibility is forthcoming, change will follow — even if it takes time.

Without it, we will face full-scale revolution.

The Gesture

By TED BEARDSHEAR

I dislike writing a column concerning buses so soon after my blistering expose of them some weeks ago, but people ride buses and people are the main source material of columnists.

And this person just happened to be riding a bus.

What I saw was a simple gesture: small, unnoticed except perhaps by me.

He was an old man with a white moustache. His hat was at that formless stage that hats get when they are used for years without a blocking.

His other clothes were somewhat between tawdry and acceptable. The shoes were creased . . . as though the wearer were more used to walking than riding.

The overcoat was a size or two too large. There was a tie on a flannel shirt.

The skin was olive. The face was creased . . . not from defeat or resignation . . . or happiness either. Creased because the face was old. Creased in terms of no great passion of love or hate . . . but the simple middle ground of life in which most people spend the greater part of their lives.

In the haste of a busy day, most people would glance through such a man.

And I, too, except for the gesture. Except for that, he was just an old man riding a bus. One of a million in a city.

As we neared the downtown area, the old man very simply took off his hat and held it over his heart.

It was there for a very short while. He did it quietly and naturally, as unobstrusively as picking up a dropped transfer.

He did not bow or blink. He just took the hat off and placed it over his heart and then put that ancient hat back on that ancient head.

I looked back to see what we had passed.

There was a Catholic church.

On a busy day in a crowded bus in a bigger city, an old man gave reverence to his God.

I thought it, in these times of all times, a magnificent gesture.

Mortal Combat

By ROBERT W. REIDER
Editor and Publisher

REIDER

Columbus and Franklin County Democrats again are preparing to enter mortal political combat—with each other.

It appears that our Democrat "heroes" will train for next November's battle against local Republicans by tearing each other to pieces in a senseless Democratic Primary "political bloodbath."

Why?

Ostensibly because city and county political "stars" can't come to terms over whom should be endorsed, and by what procedure, for city elective offices in 1969. The real problem, however, is that personalities are being placed before principles.

Rank and file Democrats deserve something better than being caught in a squeeze play between leadership factions of the party. If those who vote Democrat are to lose at the polls, they should lose to Republicans — not to internal petty politics.

And the Democratic leadership hardly can demand unflinching loyalty to the "Organization"—city or county — when the "Organization" fails to meet the most basic requirements of loyalty to potential candidates and, especially, incumbent candidates.

"County" oriented Democrats had better appreciate the proven strength of the "City Hall Troops," a strength that has kept their political party in the local ball game.

And the City Hall "branch" had better realize that the "two-party system" does not mean a "City" Democratic Party and a "County" Democratic Party.

In summary, we would admonish Democratic leaders to quit making doctrine of the facetious comment by the late Will Rogers — "I don't belong to any organized political party; I'm a Democrat."

Big Brother Blues

By JOHN MORGAN

The greatest gap in this nation today may well be between bureaucrats and the rest of us who have the "Big Brother blues."

A Greek philosopher many centuries ago caught a common modern mood: "The greatest tragedy is this — that man should have knowledge of so much and control over so little."

ONE OF THE primal disrupting forces in our society today is this agonizing feeling of helplessness in the face of "The System." Black and whites alike share this frustration, for it is a result of present-day sociological realities.

These realities are clustered populations, awareness of social differences created through the mass media and large corporate structures which govern a greater portion of our lives than we want to admit.

While Gov. George Wallace often played on the most crass characteristics of this modern mood, there was a lesson to be learned from the response to his "program."

THE ANSWER is not to "run over dissenters" or "throw the big bureaucrats into the river." But the fact that so many Americans passionately understood Wallace's distaste for bureaucrats is a sign of real division in our midst.

No one likes Big Brother except those who live in his shadow. Bureaucracy is big and impersonal. Rather than compassionate ends, moreover, bureaucracy is judged by efficiency.

We may not like it. But bureaucracy is a result of capitalism. It is part of the American mindset — which wants practical results and programs rather than visions.

To "get the job done" today, bureaucrats tell us, large, massive structures must be set up — each with its own set of rules, hierarchy and sources of revenue.

And while Nixon expresses his distaste for protest movements, it would be wise to remember that the same potential forces which elected him also are at work elsewhere.

On university campuses, students are sick of the arbitrary hierarchy. In churches, laymen think twice about decisions from above. In politics, the day of gigantic organizations controlling the minds of men is under serious attack.

THE COUNTRY is in an angry mood and its first opponent is the bureaucrats.

Part of this anger is unfortunate, because it strikes first at the most vulnerable — poverty organizations, health and welfare agencies.

But streamlining bureaucratic structures really begins at home.

For Richard Nixon this means the federal bureaucracy with its maze of government duplication, civil servant syndromes and impersonal decision-making.

BUT THIS is only the beginning.

Efficiency is not the sole test of bureaucracy or else the Nazi regime would have to be judged the greatest of them all.

What is happening in American life is essentially a test of bureaucracy — how well it can adjust to meet changing needs.

WHAT WE are in store for is a matter for visionaries.

Some believe we are passing into a post-urban stage of history. That the agricultural way of life is disappearing is too common to repeat; but many anthropologists say the isolated city, too, will evaporate into giant population centers.

The first test of bureaucracy is now taking place: Can it function to meet changing needs?

The future test of bureaucracy will be even more crucial: Can it be efficient and also compassionate?

For if bureaucracies fall into the trap of Big Brotherism—withdrawn from the mainstream of American culture — the result could be chaos.

Safe Driving

To The Editor:

This letter will convey our sincere apprecia[illegible] you and your staff for the series of Defensive [illegible] articles which appeared in the Nov. 14-21-28 [illegible] The Spectator.

In our opinion, Jane Robinson (your staff writer who enrolled in the course), did an outstanding job of recapping the important safety factors emphasized in this National Driver Improvement program. Her interesting, and informative descriptions of the course details plus the student reactions should contribute a great deal to the future safety of the Spectator subscribers—who may have taken the time to read the articles.

Our thinks to Jane and the publisher for your continued interest and contributions to traffic safety in the greater Columbus area.

Please keep up the good work, because the rising traffic toll is positive evidence of the need for more emphasis being placed on traffic safety.

How To Tell The Young From The Old

By ARTHUR HOPPE

HOPPE

Once upon a time there was a young man named Guevara Grommet who believed, above all else, in individual freedom.

"Nobody," he said, squaring his chin, "has any excuse for ever shoving anybody else around."

Then, when he was 18, his draft board classified him 1-A.

"Wait a minute," he said. "What gives you the right to take away my freedom, put me in an institution for two years and teach me how to kill people in a war I think unjust?"

"It's because we know," said the draft board patriotically, "what's right for our country."

SO YOUNG GUEVARA went back to his campus and organized an anti-draft rally. But the College Administration denied him permission to speak.

"Wait a minute," he said. "What gives you the right to take away my freedom to have my say?"

"It's because we know," said the College Administration stuffily, "what's right for our college."

So young Guevara decided to stage a peaceful protest. And the cops hit him on the head and tossed him in the paddy wagon.

"Wait a minute," he said. "What gives you the right to take away my freedom and shove me around?"

"It's because we know," said the cops angrily, "what's right for our community."

"What a sick society," said young Guevara. "Whites oppress Blacks. Rich oppress poor. And we slaughter innocents around the world because we know it's good for them. It's people who think they know what's right who shove other people around.

"We must tear down this sorry scheme of things entirely and build a new society. I won't even think about what kind, because I don't want to fall into the trap of thinking I know what's right."

So young Guevara became a revolutionary.

The first thing he did, of course, was to run the Army recruiters off the campus — because he knew joining the Army was wrong.

Then he organized a student strike, kidnaped the Dean of Medieval Agronomy and hit the Administration with demands for 27 new ways of doing things — because he knew the old ways were wrong.

Unfortunately, some students objected to the[illegible]. But when they rose to make their points, he [illegible] them down — because he knew they were wrong.

And when the cops came to restore order, he heaved bricks at them — because he knew they were fascist pigs representing a sick, dead-wrong society.

One day he caught a short, bespectacled student trying to sneak into class. Naturally, he shoved him up against a wall and told the little racist, toady cop-out not to try it again.

"Wait a minute," said the little student. "What gives you the right to take away my freedom and shove me around? I suppose it's because you think you know what's right?

"Oh, no!" said Guevara, shocked at being identified with the old society he despised. "It's because I know what's wrong."

• • •

MORAL: Old people know what's right. Young people know what's wrong. And when it comes to getting shoved around, there isn't much to choose.

PUBLIC NOTICE
Wall To Wall Carpets
A FIRST TIME OFFER

Now, for the first time in Columbusland, the opportunity to receive an extremely liberal trade-in allowance on your present carpets and rugs is made available to you!

Now, at discount prices, you can acquire the same lush heavy-traffic carpeting we offer for sale to America's finest hotels, motels, restaurants and theatres and still take advantage of the value of your old carpets and rugs!

Even if you don't have an old carpet to trade, you will be amazed by the low, low close-out prices of our roll balances of first quality carpeting left over from our many commercial installations! These carpets were specially selected for their ability to withstand heavy traffic, retain their original color and clean easily!

Along with this fantastic trade-in opportunity, you will receive, free of additional charge, super heavy commercial padding and custom tackless installation anywhere within 100 miles of Columbusland.

A convenient budget plan is made available to you. Your first payment will not be due until 2 months AFTER INSTALLATION and you may take up to 3 years to pay. You may even use your trade-in as your down payment!

Call today for a free home estimate, measurements and trade-in appraisal anywhere within 100 miles. NO OBLIGATION, OF COURSE.

ORGANIZATIONAL NEWS

Columbus Woman's Club To Make Self-Evaluation

The Columbus Woman's Club will meet on Thursday, Jan. 2, at the Clintonville Women's Club, 3951 N. High St., for the regular meeting of the organization.

Hostesses for the first meeting of the new year will be Mrs. Mack Grimes and Mrs. Miller Rankin with the special program presented by the chairmen of the club departments.

Emphasis on community projects and programs will be presented by Mrs. J. Edmond O'Brien, conservation chairman; Mrs. Robert Keller, education chairman; Mrs. Earl [illegible], fine arts chairman; Mrs. Mack Grimes, home life chairman; Mrs. Anthony J. Gallo, international affairs chairman; Mrs. Joseph O. Keith, public affairs chairman and Mrs. Robert M. Draper, legislation chairman.

The program is an annual event presented as a self-evaluation of each club within the General Federation of Women's Clubs. All members are urged to attend and are invited to bring guests whe are interested in affiliating with the GFWC member club.

The business meeting and program will be preceded by the regular luncheon at 12:15 p.m.

ALPHA DELTA KAPPA

Alpha Delta Kappa, Mu Chapter, will hold its annual Christmas party at the home of Miss Evalyn Buechner, 2800 Castlewood, Dec. 20 at 8 p.m.

BETA SIGMA PI

On Dec. 21, a formal dinner dance will be given for members and their husbands at a party house on the west side. There will be dancing, games and special surprise gifts for the husbands.

The members have been spending time making Christmas presents to present to the girls of cottage 1 at Franklin Village. This is the chapter project for the year.

DELTA THETA CHI

Carole Brown will be hostess to the members and guests of Ohio Alpha Chapter, Delta Theta Chi Sorority, for a Christmas Party in her home at 1340 King Ave., Friday, Dec. 20, at 8 p.m.

Notre Dame Alumnae Year-End Dance Set

This year's annual Notre Dame de Namur Alumnae dance — a highlight of year-end social activities in Columbus for more than half a century — will be held in the Neil House on New Year's Eve.

For the second consecutive year, alumni of the former Aquinas High School and members of the 21 Club, a Catholic organization for young unmarried adults, have been invited to join the festivities.

Dancing will be from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Music will be provided by the Kenny Higgenbotham Band. Noisemakers will be furnished and hourly prizes will be awarded.

Mrs. Daniel Matyac, 1380 Koebel Rd. general chairman, said preparations are being made for one of the largest crowds in the more than 50 years since the event was launched by graduates of St. Joseph Academy, a private school operated by the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur at Rich and Sixth Streets.

Cost of this year's dance, which is open to the public, will be $6 per couple. Ticket reservations may be made with Mrs. James DeStazio of 5018 Jamestown Rd. (451-5160) or Mrs. Patrick Purcell, assistant ticket chairman, 1127 Woodbrook Circle, West (276-8352).

Also assisting in planning the dance are Mrs. Joseph Pollina Jr., 5203 Tamarack Blvd., assistant general chairman; Mrs. William Spiers, 1321 Millerdale Rd., patron chairman, and Miss Roberta Otto, 2340 Sherwood Rd., financial chairman.

Dr. Rosemond Running For City Council

Dr. John H. Rosemond, who has been in private practice here for 15 years, announced his candidacy for Columbus City Council Wednesday.

Dr. Rosemond, who resides at 3300 Livingston Ave., will run on the Democratic ticket, backed up by a group of Negro Democrats.

Rosemond, who was unsuccessful in his 1964 bid for Franklin County coroner, is a graduate of Howard University's College of Medicine.

Duffey To Join Law Firm Here

Judge John J. Duffey, defeated for re-election to the 10th District Court of Appeals in November, will become a partner in the law firm of Harris, Lias and Strip.

Judge Duffey will join the E. Broad Street firm Jan. 1.

He has been mentioned as a possible candidate for City Council.

Drivers Of Hazard Police Chief Warns

"You can study last winter's accident summaries and pinpoint those times when Columbus' streets and roads were glazed with ice."

With this comment, Chief of Police Robert H. Baus issued a warning to drivers not to be caught short when highways freeze.

"Most drivers know glare ice is treacherous," he commented, "yet still they take chances and skid into trouble just the same."

The chief presented facts based on reports from the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards to emphasize this problem.

Stopping distances on ice may be as much as 10 times greater than that required on dry pavement.

INTERVIEWS DEC. 26-28

Careers Conference Open To College Juniors, Seniors

College juniors and seniors will have an opportunity to explore a wide range of job opportunities in the Franklin County area during their Christmas vacations.

Interviews will be offered these students by 57 leading employers in the county area during the third annual Careers Conference Dec. 26-27-28 at the Sheraton-Columbus Hotel.

To arrange for interviews with any number of organizations, students need only to register between noon and 5 p.m. Dec. 26. Interviews will be given all day Dec. 27 and until noon Dec. 28. There's no charge, fee or obligation whatsoever for the students.

Among those offering interviews will be representatives of the Columbus Hospital Federation. A spokesman for the group said there's a great demand for qualified people in nursing, hospital administration and related social fields.

Other fields in which interviews will be given include accounting, engineering, data processing and programming, insurance, research, personnel, finance and banking, science, retailing and others.

John Scott, conference chairman, said the basic purpose of the Careers Conference is "to make known to college students the many career opportunities available to them in the Franklin County area. We want to show them they don't have to go elsewhere to pursue meaningful careers.

"In a sense, the Careers Conference is a way of illustrating to college students that they are wanted by local organizations.

"Of course," Scott added, "local employers are always anxious to fill vacancies as quickly as possible. If they can do so with people from the Franklin County area, it not only would help the companies, but it would help the community as well because college-trained people are a valuable resource. It's a loss to the community when they go elsewhere for jobs."

The conference is open to all college students who live in the Franklin County area and who expect to complete their formal training by Jan. 31, 1970. College graduates, now in military service, also may participate if they expect to be released by the same time.

This is the third year for the Careers Conference. Last year's conference drew 450 students from 71 schools. Some 1,750 interviews were given by 45 companies.

The Careers Conference is sponsored by the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce. The Eastern Kiwanis Club and Delta Sigma Pi commerce fraternity at Ohio State University assist in running the event.

Congressmen Fare Poorly

According to a publication of the Ohio Steering Committee for Adequate Welfare, area congressmen did not fare too well on a list rating concern for the poor.

In three areas — Model Cities funds, poverty expenditures and food stamp programs—both Samuel L. Devine (R-12th District) and Chalmers P. Wylie (R-15th District) received all negative results concerning their voting records.

Only five congressmen out of 24 rated were given positive ratings as to their voting on these three expenditures.

LET PRAYER BRING YOU PEACE

When family or business problems seem beyond solution . . . when the worries and turmoil of daily life bring pressures beyond the bearable . . .

Quiet meditation and prayer offer solace and respite . . . an opportunity to reappraise day-to-day circumstance in light of scripture . . . to seek guidance of a greater power. Whatever your faith...whatever your beliefs...worship this week, and let prayer bring you peace.

ORGANIZATIONAL NEWS

Columbus Woman's Club To Make Self-Evaluation

The Columbus Woman's Club will meet on Thursday, Jan. 2, at the Clintonville Women's Club, 3951 N. High St., for the regular meeting of the organization.

Hostesses for the first meeting of the new year will be Mrs. Mack Grimes and Mrs. Miller Rankin with the special program presented by the chairmen of the club departments.

Emphasis on community projects and programs will be presented by Mrs. J. Edmond O'Brien, conservation chairman; Mrs. Robert Keller, ed[illegible]n chairman; Mrs. Earl [illegible], fine arts chairman; Mrs. Mack Grimes, home life chairman; Mrs. Anthony J. Gallo, international affairs chairman; Mrs. Joseph O. Keith, public affairs chairman and Mrs. Robert M. Draper, legislation chairman.

The program is an annual event presented as a self-evaluation of each club within the General Federation of Women's Clubs. All members are urged to attend and are invited to bring guests who are interested in affiliating with the GFWC member club.

The business meeting and program will be preceded by the regular luncheon at 12:15 p.m.

ALPHA DELTA KAPPA

Alpha Delta Kappa, Mu Chapter, will hold its annual Christmas party at the home of Miss Evalyn Buechner, 2800 Castlewood, Dec. 20 at 8 p.m.

BETA SIGMA PI

On Dec. 21, a formal dinner dance will be given for members and their husbands at a party house on the west side. There will be dancing, games and special surprise gifts for the husbands.

The members have been spending time making Christmas presents to present to the girls of cottage 1 at Franklin Village. This is the chapter project for the year.

DELTA THETA CHI

Carole Brown will be hostess to the members and guests of Ohio Alpha Chapter, Delta Theta Chi Sorority, for a Christmas Party in her home at 1340 King Ave., Friday, Dec. 20, at 8 p.m.

Notre Dame Alumnae Year-End Dance Set

This year's annual Notre Dame de Namur Alumnae dance — a highlight of year-end social activities in Columbus for more than half a century — will be held in the Neil House on New Year's Eve.

For the second consecutive year, alumni of the former Aquinas High School and members of the 21 Club, a Catholic organization for young unmarried adults, have been invited to join the festivities.

Dancing will be from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Music will be provided by the Kenny Higgenbotham Band. Noisemakers will be furnished and hourly prizes will be awarded.

Mrs. Daniel Matyac, 1380 Koebel Rd. general chairman, said preparations are being made for one of the largest crowds in the more than 50 years since the event was launched by graduates of St. Joseph Academy, a private school operated by the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur at Rich and Sixth Streets.

Cost of this year's dance, which is open to the public, will be $6 per couple. Ticket reservations may be made with Mrs. James DeStazio of 5018 Jamestown Rd. (451-5160) or Mrs. Patrick Purcell, assistant ticket chairman, 1127 Woodbrook Circle, West (276-8352).

Also assisting in planning the dance are Mrs. Joseph Pollina Jr., 5203 Tamarack Blvd., assistant general chairman; Mrs. William Spiers, 1321 Millerdale Rd., patron chairman, and Miss Roberta Otto, 2340 Sherwood Rd., financial chairman.

Dr. Rosemond Running For City Council

Dr. John H. Rosemond, who has been in private practice here for 15 years, announced his candidacy for Columbus City Council Wednesday.

Dr. Rosemond, who resides at 3300 Livingston Ave., will run on the Democratic ticket, backed up by a group of Negro Democrats.

Rosemond, who was unsuccessful in his 1964 bid for Franklin County coroner, is a graduate of Howard University's College of Medicine.

Duffey To Join Law Firm Here

Judge John J. Duffey, defeated for re-election to the 10th District Court of Appeals in November, will become a partner in the law firm of Harris, Lias and Strip.

Judge Duffey will join the E. Broad Street firm Jan. 1.

He has been mentioned as a possible candidate for City Council.

Drivers Of Hazard Police Chief Warns

"You can study last winter's accident summaries and pinpoint those times when Columbus' streets and roads were glazed with ice."

With this comment, Chief of Police Robert H. Baus issued a warning to drivers not to be caught short when highways freeze.

"Most drivers know glare ice is treacherous," he commented, "yet still they take chances and skid into trouble just the same."

The chief presented facts based on reports from the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards to emphasize this problem.

Stopping distances on ice may be as much as 10 times greater than that required on dry pavement.

INTERVIEWS DEC. 26-28

Careers Conference Open To College Juniors, Seniors

College juniors and seniors will have an opportunity to explore a wide range of job opportunities in the Franklin County area during their Christmas vacations.

Interviews will be offered these students by 57 leading employers in the county area during the third annual Careers Conference Dec. 26-27-28 at the Sheraton-Columbus Hotel.

To arrange for interviews with any number of organizations, students need only to register between noon and 5 p.m. Dec. 26. Interviews will be given all day Dec. 27 and until noon Dec. 28. There's no charge, fee or obligation whatsoever for the students.

Among those offering interviews will be representatives of the Columbus Hospital Federation. A spokesman for the group said there's a great demand for qualified people in nursing, hospital administration and related social fields.

Other fields in which interviews will be given include accounting, engineering, data processing and programming, insurance, research, personnel, finance and banking, science, retailing and others.

John Scott, conference chairman, said the basic purpose of the Careers Conference is "to make known to college students the many career opportunities available to them in the Franklin County area. We want to show them they don't have to go elsewhere to pursue meaningful careers.

"In a sense, the Careers Conference is a way of illustrating to college students that they are wanted by local organizations.

"Of course," Scott added, "local employers are always anxious to fill vacancies as quickly as possible. If they can do so with people from the Franklin County area, it not only would help the companies, but it would help the community as well because college-trained people are a valuable resource. It's a loss to the community when they go elsewhere for jobs."

The conference is open to all college students who live in the Franklin County area and who expect to complete their formal training by Jan. 31, 1970. College graduates, now in military service, also may participate if they expect to be released by the same time.

This is the third year for the Careers Conference. Last year's conference drew 450 students from 71 schools. Some 1,750 interviews were given by 45 companies.

The Careers Conference is sponsored by the Columbus Area Chamber of Commerce. The Eastern Kiwanis Club and Delta Sigma Pi commerce fraternity at Ohio State University assist in running the event.

Congressmen Fare Poorly

According to a publication of the Ohio Steering Committee for Adequate Welfare, area congressmen did not fare too well on a list rating concern for the poor.

In three areas — Model Cities funds, poverty expenditures and food stamp programs—both Samuel L. Devine (R-12th District) and Chalmers P. Wylie (R-15th District) received all negative results concerning their voting records.

Only five congressmen out of 24 rated were given positive ratings as to their voting on these three expenditures.

Our Editor Explores The Mystery Of Radio

By CLAUDIA ELKINS
Entertainment Editor

Several weeks ago, I spent three hours at a radio station questioning the various employes about radio.

Why?

Because for some reason, I thought it would make an interesting article . . . what goes on behind the voice.

Mistake number one was to assume three hours was enough time. Mistake number two was to assume that it would be an article. If I transcribed what was on tape and my notes I could easily consume 10 pages of the paper. Spectator Managing Editor Robert Tenenbaum would be somewhat disturbed and Copy Editor Ted Beardshear would probably run to the nearest supply cabinet for several red pencils muttering all the way . . . why, why, why?

The station I visited was WMNI Radio which is owned by William R. Mnich. The station is located on the seventh floor of the Southern Hotel and broadcasts country and western music on both AM and FM.

My overall impression is a lot of people, all doing a variety of tasks, in separate rooms with cartridges, tapes, records, papers, electronic equipment, buttons, knobs, microphones, lights and photos as the predominate decor.

From all of this comes a radio program, be it music, news, a specialty, advertisement or public service. Let me say, here and now, to all disc jockeys, wherever you are . . . I hold you in high esteem. There you sit in one of these rooms (studios) just you and that mass of equipment, spinning records, plugging in wires and turning knobs.

I visited Ron Barlow as his program was in progress. We talked during commercials and records. Not much was said except that he'd forgotten a spot, used to work at The Spectator and wondered who had erased the tic-tac-toe game on the blackboard in the studio.

In another room (production room), sat Roger Miller taping music for the Sunday FM programming. He has been at the station since March and is the newest disc jockey.

Still in another room, I met a fellow who has more names than I have space. For each of his talents he has a different name. His 5 - 10 a.m. name is Jim Michaels. This fellow is a magician and an escape artist who has appeared at almost every function in town, as well as being a disc jockey.

Then my hostess, Mrs. Lois Collins, introduced me to Carl Wendelkin. Having offered me a large overstuffed chair, I turned it down for a straight back chair which seemed out of place. I commented on this and was told the chair was "Tiny" Cunningham's, "jack of all trades" at the station.

I think there is a message here, it was the most comfortable looking . . . "Tiny" has dieted down to 350 pounds.

Mr. Wendelkin had so much information about WMNI Radio that every question asked was answered, answering questions yet unasked.

Records are submitted by recording companies according to the type of music played on the station. Disc jockeys at the station help Mr. Wendelkin in auditioning the records, selecting a maximum of 15 records out of at least 100 records received each week. These 15 are then added to a current "play list" of 90 and are played throughout the week with those becoming old or showing no response dropped the next week for an additional 15 new records.

In addition, he is responsible for all public service announcements, specialty programs and books the stars for the country and western shows WMNI sponsors at Veterans Memorial.

The next show, scheduled for New Year's Eve, will include Phil Beasley and The Mohican Ramblers with Karen Kirk, Jay Lee Webb and Jack Green and The Jolly Green Giants . . . to name a few. Tickets are now on sale at Central Ticket Office for the 8 p.m. show.

There are many, many other programs on WMNI Radio, there are many other departments which contribute to the broadcasts heard over the air.

Radio is a fascinating field and for the three hours I spent, I barely scratched the surface. There were just too many very nice people, all willing to share their love . . . WMNI Radio.

In the near future, I shall follow up this introduction with a look at WRFD and then a combined article on the disc jockeys at both stations.

In the meantime, a special thank-you to Mrs. Collins, promotions director, and WMNI . . . it was wonderful. And a message to the reader, stay tuned.

Off-Broadway 'Bag' Packed With Gems

A brightly wrapped bag arrived at 2210 Summit St., Friday. It was addressed to Columbus from Off-Broadway Theater.

As the cast unwrapped gem after gem it became more apparent that Gene Casey has triumphed again.

I am referring to Off-Broadway's second musical revue of this season, "That's My Bag." Tucked neatly into this bag are from good to knee-slapping skits, colorful costumes that are knock-outs, exquisite music that temptingly teases and a fountain of talent that splashes "show-biz" to every corner of the dimly-lit theater.

With sweeping mastery, "That's My Bag" is Gene Casey's elaborate display of material, sequence and delivery. The material, ranging from good to excellent, dodges in and out of life with perception calculated for laughter. Impact is not as strong as in past revues.

This factor is attributed to the first act which has 22 skits with only the opening, "Waitress," "Rickshaw (Second Edition)," "Bank Robbery," "The New NRA" and "First Act Closing" resulting in excellent material. The remaining 16 lack the formula of absurdity.

The second act offers 19 skits. Nineteen perfect little gems, topped off with "There's a Man in My Soup."

Two pertinent phases of the "Bag" is the "running" waitress skit and the sequence of material. Wrappings like these definitely display Casey's wizardry.

Color is abundant as changes of costumes are more frequent than in past revues. The costumes evoke a flurry of merriment only equaled by the clever set which is a picturesque gallery of bags.

The musical director, David Lewis, has again scored an ivory masterpiece which echoes . . . more, more. His part-time guitar accompanist, Marty Celay, is, simply put, a genius. I would like to see a skit written for them.

And now for five jewels who convey a sparkling freshness that wraps this bag into the success it is. They are Dale Phillips, Valerie Veraska, Marty Celay, Kay Salvatore and Jerry Grasse.

As they dash, deliver and dance in and out of "That's My Bag," their individual talents glisten. But it is their ability to work as an ensemble which catapults the revue into a gem worth far more than the admission price.

With all the bags and wrappings now uppermost on everyone's list, I recommend that Off-Broadway's "Bag" be inked in as quickly as possible. It is a bag that is unwrapped for you and the memories will be wrapped up in your bag for many a day.

Phone 268-7759 and Off-Broadway will deliver to you and yours a bag brimming with gems.

STATE-WIDE SANCTION ALERT ISSUED

OEA Gives Hamilton Until March 31 To Improve

The Hamilton Local Schools have until March 31 "to make some progress toward solving its problems" or face full state wide sanctions by the Ohio Education Association.

That could mean a loss of teaching staff under OEA rules, which require teachers to boycott a district under sanction or be charged with violating professional ethics.

THE OEA action, calling for a five-step program if the so-called sanction alert is to be lifted, imposed the alert Friday in a news conference called by Dr. William P. Miller, chairman of the Muskingum College Department of Education and head of the OEA Task Force which studied the troubled district.

Hamilton district residents threw the district into a crisis Dec. 10 by defeating, for the second time in five weeks, a 13-mill operating levy.

Miller said the OEA Executive Committee had approved the sanction alert and warned that full sanctions could be forthcoming if the district did not comply with five provisions. They were:

Maintenance of a program of "quality education" without further cutbacks and fulfilling contractual obligations to teaching staff until financial resources run out.

CLARIFICATION of financial needs by bringing in an "outside unimpeachable source" to determine the minimum millage needed to maintain adequate programs.

Improvement in communications with the community, the administration, board of education and staff.

Full utilization of negotiation agreeents now in effect with the Hamilton Local Teachers Association.

ACCEPTANCE by the community of its financial responsibility, including "approving a levy of sufficient millage to conduct a quality education program."

The last point left in doubt the district's apparent plans to place another levy on the May primary ballot. If the OEA follows its report to the letter, a special election would have to be called to approve a levy.

If full state-wide sanctions were imposed, it would be only the fifth time in the 121-year history of the OEA. The last time sanctions were imposed was two years ago in Martins Ferry during a teacher strike.

MILLER said the Task Force received cooperation from the board and from Superintendent John Savel during its investigation. He refused to pinpoint the blame for the current crisis, saying it was the responsibility of "all facets of the community."

The Task Force report said that its study showed "a situation has developed in the Hamilton Local School District which could result in complete deterioration of the public education process if allowed to continue."

Miller, in response to a question, said the OEA's primary responsibility was to the educational system as a whole and that its secondary responsibility was to its members in the district.

AND HE said that speaking as a member of the Task Force, he saw a "ray of hope" in the cooperation the group received.

Savel told The Spectator that he had met with the OEA Committee last Tuesday but declined to comment on the results of his meeting.

Savel's only comment was that "school will start as scheduled on Jan. 6 and continue as planned."

Dr. Styner Brighton of the OEA explained the Educational Association's meeting last week with Savel, H-T board members, representatives of the Hamilton Teachers Association and County Superintendent Fred Daniels.

DURING the past month or two, there has been some concern on the part of the local association (H-T Teachers Association) as to what they consider irresponsible actions on the part of some people in their community (i.e.—attacking teachers, not supporting levy)," Brighton revealed.

"The Hamilton Teachers Association has since taken action to impose sanctions on the school district and asked is (OEA) to do likewise.

Dr. Brighton added that "although the School Board has the authority to set policy and the community has the right to decide whether or not they wish to support a school program, teachers — as professional persons—also have the right to object to condtions under which they believe they cannot execute their professional duties.

"IF A situation is determined under which teachers cannot properly practice their profession or children cannot learn, then the Association (OEA) can decree that district 'off limits" to teachers everywhere."

This brings up the matter of sanctions and Dr. Brighton admitted the sanctions could be of either a "severe or mild" nature.

"The primary task of any OEA investigation is hopefully to identify the source of the problem and make recommendations as to what needs to be done," Dr. Brighton continued.

"However, if these recommendations are not followed or if they meet resistance from the teachers, school board or community, it becomes necessary to invoke sanctions."

OEA sanctions, in a "severe" sense, could mean placing the districts on the "off limits" list for teachers.

Also involved would be the use of advertising in professional magazines, informing teachers everywhere that the district had been "quarantined."

Dr. Brighton reported the effects of an OEA sanction imposed on the Lorain School District in recent years.

"I BELIEVE they needed something like 162 teachers to begin classes in September and were able to come up with fewer than 20," he concluded.

Dr. Brighton pointed out that the Hamilton investigation was not of a "full-scale" nature.

In the latter instance, PTA and student groups are usually interviewed along with teachers, school board and administrative personnel.

C-W's 'Community Education Commitee' Will Meet Dec. 30

An organization calling itself "Community Cooperation for Better Education" will meet Monday, Dec. 30, to explore positive steps needed in the wake of Canal Winchester's school problems.

Harold Schacht, a local resident active in community affairs, said the meeting (tentatively set for 8 p.m. at David Lutheran Church on Groveport Rd.) would have three initial objectives:

- Sitting down together to discuss and study problems.
- Putting into writing the group's goals.
- Talking about financial problems afterwards.

Schacht, who was particularly articulate on the need for community action during a school board meeting recently, said the Dec. 30 meeting would begin to set up various study groups.

The groups will explore curriculum, facilities, staff, finance, public relations and community contact.

Schacht described his role in the organization as one of "adviser" and stressed that he had taken no public stand, either pro or con, on the school situation.

Following the defeat of the school's 6.6 operating levy, Schacht had called for the creation of a community group — which he envisioned as a joint effort of board, administration, faculty and taxpayers to back the schools.

"We are going to study and discuss the situation — in other words, look for reasonable solutions," he commented last week.

He said he would help to organize and set up the community group if three conditions were met: the board would agree on the facts; the administration would pursue a public relations task, and teachers would use better discretion in discussions with students.

Schacht stressed one fact about the Dec. 30 meeting — "We need people to come out."

School Board Pledge: 'Eager To Cooperate'

A special meeting between Canal Winchester Superintendent of Schools Carl Miller and the School Board last week resulted in "no action and no solutions" on the school district's problems following the recent failure of an operating levy.

However, Miller reported that "an attitude of eagerness to work with any group or organization to help solve our educational problems" was a significant result of the meeting.

The group to which Miller refers is the "Community Cooperation for Better Education Committee" which came to light at the board's regular meeting two weeks ago.

Miller reported that none of the suggested cuts proposed following the failure of the levy could be acted upon until the board gathers for its annual organizational meeting on Thursday, Jan. 2.

Among the suggested cuts are:

(1) Operate present program until funds run out, then close the school.

(2) Reduce busing to state minimum (no busing of high school students or for elementary students living within two miles of school).

(3) Close school at 3:30 p.m. (no athletics, band, class plays, meetings or other extra-curricular activities).

(4) Have each family rent or buy textbooks and furnish own supplies.

(5) If necessary, eliminate art, music, physical education, remedial reading and speech and hearing therapy from elementary program.

(6) If necessary, conduct half-day sessions in elementary (no lunches, three bus trips instead of four).

THE 'APPLE' OF HIS EYE

Groveport Elementary School principal Paul Glendening looks on favorably as two third-grade students — Cynthia Mullins and Dennis Werner — add the finishing touches to the Christmas tree in his office last week.

NEITHER SNOW, NOR RAIN ETC.

T-V School Board 'Okays' Architects

The Teays Valley Board of Education has decided to retain the services of the firm of Wells and Rettig to study and design the future needs of the school district.

The verdict to continue dealings with the firm which designed the present high school building was reached by the board after interviews with several interested architects.

Superintendent of Schools Benis Lutz reported that "no specifications have been decided, only the architect has been named."

The makeup of the new T-V facility, which will hopefully be funded by an upcoming bond issue, is also undecided at present although Lutz admitted "the leaning is toward the 'middle school' concept."

The basic difference between the junior high (grades 7-9) and middle school grades (5-8) concepts, according to Lutz, is one of standards or curriculum — the latter throwing the emphasis on academics.

The "leaning" toward the middle school concept, says Lutz, is twofold: physical needs and philosophy of program.

Other factors involved include the fact that Teays Valley elementary schools are "tremendously overcrowded."

In Lutz's estimation and the superintendent's belief, the middle school concept would help eliminate students from "peaking too early."

Another point Lutz brought up was that of a kindergarten setup.

"At present, we don't have a kindergarten program in the district. The middle school concept might make that possible."

The middle school — by its flexibility — could also help eliminate the elementary squeeze by drawing more grades into its system.

Lutz admitted that the program was just in the discussion stages, however.

"Nothing can be definite until a depth study is conducted to see what else should be added," the T-V superintendent concluded.

In other action, the Teays Valley School Board:

- Approved Adult Farmer Program (sponsored by Vocational Agriculture Department with partial reimbursement from the State Department).
- Rejected a request to join the Ohio School Board Association.
- Received bids on a tractor (with mower and blade) for Scioto and for Ashville.
- Approved purchase of two units from the Brown Implement Company.
- Okayed hosting of the Sectional-District basketball tournament at the high school (begins Feb. 14).
- Set up Board negotiating committee to work with the negotiating committee from the Classroom Teachers Organization on procedure, technique and greviance policies.

Village Hopes Dim As Soil Samples Rejected

Negotiations directed at landing a $750,000 warehouse distribution center for the north end of Groveport are continuing this week.

But the optimism generated by the village's Businessmen's Association has dwindled considerably since the hope that Groveport could lure the needed industry was revealed late last month.

Major reason for the setback was an unfavorable report by the interested company on soil samples taken at the proposed site (believed to be located on Hamilton Road, north of the Big City Garden Center).

The village association hasn't given up hope yet but a member, Benny O'Hara, admitted the situation "doesn't look too good" at present.

The company decided, after testing the soil at the site, that the section of ground they desired was unsuitable for building. A glacial drop which had fused on the property prevents the type of construction desired, the village association was informed.

Additional negotiations are now in progress between the company and land owner. The buyer now apparently is in the market for a portion, instead of all, of the land.

The proposed building would contain 150,000 square feet of floor space and provide employment for 55 people.

Groveport Council had paved the way for the project by agreeing to pick up the tab for extension of the existing water lines approximately 50 feet to service the structure.

O'Hara reported the Businessmen's Association expected to receive a final answer from the company within the next week to 10 days.

Eastland Meeting Set Jan. 7

The Eastland Joint Vocational School District reviewed the make-up of its 1969 board at its regular meeting last week.

James Dougan and Kenneth Foley were appointed from the Franklin County Board and Wayne Davis from the Whitehall City Board.

Other members continuing on the board are William Hockman (Franklin County) and Willard Brenning (Whitehall).

In other action, the board:

- Agreed to participate in a Work Incentive Program In Automotive Mechanics and Basic Adult Education (program would run from 2:45 to 10:15 p.m. Jan. 6 through June 6 and 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., June 9 through July 25).
- Employed James Abraham as a teacher of basic electronics in the adult education program.
- Agreed to participate in a tax-sheltered annuity program for benefit of staff members.
- Set Tuesday, Jan. 7, (8 p.m.) as date and time for organizational meeting.

Madison Board To Meet Dec. 30

The Madison School Board meeting has been scheduled for Monday, Dec. 30, at 8 p.m., superintendent of schools Phillip Williams has announced.

Dick Wagner Does It Again

No one in Amberly's is quite ready to declare it a monopoly but a third straight first place in the community's annual Christmas Decorating Contest for Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wagner of 2846 Winsford Court isn't very encouraging.

The Wagners were presented with their winning plaque Sunday along with runnersup Mr. and Mrs. Everett Watters of 4999 Warminster Dr. and third-place winners Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Babylon, of 2856 Fareham Court.

Tom Duvall, president of the Amberly Civic Association, made the presentations (with an assist from Santa Claus, who spent the misty afternoon visiting with the small fry.)

Crane Plastics To Enlarge SS Plant

Construction of a modern, 60,000 square-foot addition to the manufacturing facilities of Crane Plastics, 2141 Fairwood Ave., was announced last week by company president Robert S. Crane, Jr.

Crane also reported that the South Side company has doubled its property holdings (from six to 12 acres) to allow for further expansion.

The two developments raise the company's total value for its 1968 expansion program to well over $500,000, Crane stated.

The new structure will increase Crane's total plant area from 85,000 to 145,000 square feet, it was revealed.

Construction will begin immediately and is expected to be completed by next March, Crane said.

Crane's production of plastic products will increase by 20-25 per cent when the addition is completed with about the same percentage of new jobs created, according to Crane.

The company currently produces over four million feet of plastic extrusions each week, he added.

A major portion of the new addition will be designed to meet the growing demand for production of rigid-vinyl residential siding for the construction industry, says Crane.

Presently, the company is the nation's leading producer of rigid vinyl extrusions, he continued.

Also included in the new addition will be a new shipping dock and enlargement of an existing storage area, Crane concluded.

THE GADABOUT

By Priscilla Lenox 444-1051

Although the young women will certainly not seem old enough to warrant a "10 year" reunion, such will be the case when members of the Re-Ni-Go Camp Fire Horizon Club meet Monday, Dec. 30, at David's Buffet. The story really began 20 years ago when the then second grade pupils of Southwood School banded together as Blue Birds under the direction of Lillian Skobrak and Essie Buller.

Both leaders will be present at this year's get-together, for they have always maintained a keen interest in the activities of their "girls," through the years.

'Requirements' Passed

Passing "requirements" and having birthdays, mixed with generous portions of fun, saw the girls advance from Blue Birds to Camp Fire Girls, before attaining the Horizon Club status. (There was no Junior High classification when the girls were traveling the Camp Fire Girl path).

All these memories will be revived, of course, along with the up-dating of the past years when the young women hold their reunion next Monday.

Still In Columbus

Still in Columbus are Betty Jean Straub, a Columbus school teacher; Maribeth Whitacre Macioci, Betty Skobrak Kershaw, who headed the local Camp Fire office after graduating from OSU; Nancy Murphy Rittgers, Pat Bryant Asher, Linda Junk Gassman, Judy Marte Layman. Nancy Buller Cowles now lives in Cincinnati and Carol Murphy Marstellar travels the other end of I-71 from Cleveland.

Irene Dagys Celec, another school teacher, is in Dayton, O. Priscilla Dicke Roth, wife of a minister, is currently residing in Kingsport, Tenn.

Mrs. Skobrak is still associated with the Camp Fire organization as trainer for Blue Bird leaders, incidentally.

We asked Lillian what the "next generation" census was, in the group, and as near as we could figure out, there are about 20 prospects for Cub Scouts and Blue Birds!

Breaks Collarbone

Dorothy Kessler, Moler Street, is suffering the effects of a broken collarbone. Her granddaughter, Diane Kessler, had a brief taste of hospital routine but is now reported doing nicely. Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. James Mitton, who had a new baby boy not too long ago. Get well wishes are extended to several members of the Itskin family: Darrell, Connie and Lana.

Birthdays

A new age and a new year arrive almost simultaneously for these post-Christmas birthday kiddies . . . Mary O'Donnell, Terry Abrahamson, Phillip Ramirez, Harold Jones, Johnny Ramirez, Jr., Cheryl Backus, Brett Lloyd, Randy Duncan, Danny McClain, Eva Herron, Randy Hough, Patti Hall, Timothy Hoyt, Steven Baird, Troy Itskin, Douglas Mitchell, Gail Harrison, Brian Meadows, Steve Clark, Marsha Peesinger, Scott Cunningham, John Prindle, Kelly Keys and James Rush.

The known birthday teeners include Richard Ellis, Becky Fullen, Martin Cataline, Dan Goeller, Jean Sanders, Patrick Hartung, Patty Hall, Marty Burdett and Paula Hofmann.

Anniversaries

Couples observing wedding anniversaries include Bonnie and Thomas Lyle and Marian and Don Wilson.

Perhaps some localities would be interested to learn that Paul Davis, who resided on Bruck Street in his early years, is now married. Paul exchanged his "I do's" on Oct. 28 in Temple City, Calif.

An exchange of wedding vows Saturday, Dec. 28, will unite Kathleen Hall, Galloway, and South High graduate Briley Ritchason, 992 Joos Ave.

Hodge-Podge

Hodge-jodge, hot-scotch . . Mrs. Veryl Sherburn will be the hostess for the post-Christmas party and gift exchange of PEBS, Chapter 2. The hostess resides at 1128 South Champion Ave.

Basketball games this week include South High School's hosting of Chillicothe, Friday, Dec. 27, and Capital University's participation in the Muskingum Tournament, Friday, Dec. 27, Saturday, Dec. 28, at New Concord.

NOW WHAT? — Canal Winchester cager Chuck Carpenter (with ball) finds himself in quite a jam Saturday at Groveport as the Cruisers' Mark Raynes (40) and another teammate (hidden behind Raynes) apply the old squeeze on the Indian hoopster. Groveport snapped five-game C-W win skein with 70-55 victory — Winchester failing to register its first field goal until 13 seconds remained in the opening period. Two leagues . . . the scrambling Ohio Capital Conference and the tight Mid-Eight . . . plus a Northland Holiday Tournament head a scanty Christmas week card.

And probably the game drawing the most interest will be the London at Groveport battle that sees 4-0 Mid-Eight leader London visiting one of the trio log-jammed in second place with a 3-1 mark.

LONDON, (COMING from a scare on its Madison County floor (50-48 squeaker over Grove City) will once again test the strength of big board men and shooters Jim Pena (6-5, center), Howard Portor (6-1, guard) and Ben Markley (6-3, forward).

"We have three pretty good scorers in Jim Stephenson, Bob Ward and Mark Raynes," notes third-year Cruiser mentor Bill Schneider.

"They have all been near 20 ppg and that is a considerable help to say the least."

IN OTHER Mid-Eight league action: Bexley at Grandview, Hilliard at Grove City and Mifflin at Marysville.

Pesky Whitehall will try to stay in the driver's seat in the rugged OCC with a neighborhood bout with Reynoldsburg. "I think we are beginning to jell a little, and I am pleased with our scoring punch," observes the veteran Russ Gregg.

And Reynoldsburg had better awe that scoring punch as it has produced a near 80 points-per-game for the East-Side ICC power.

THAT LEAVES only the Holiday tourney this week with Northland hosting a four-team event headed by multi-champion Linden, who has won the last three such affairs.

Jim Boscker's host outfit gets things underway at 7 p.m. Thursday facing Brookhaven for the second time this season. His Vikings clipped them on the upper lip last time (64-59) without the services of Don Moser.

TO HEAR beleaguered Mark Whitaker, Brookhaven coach, tell it, it will be a night when he won't know what to expect.

"We have had only six or seven boys practicing for the last two weeks because of the flu," Mark noted.

"Between the flu bug and the injury bug, we haven't been able to work on anything," he continued. "And that doesn't allow much time for improvement."

FORREST Sharrock's DeSales five will have the honors against rugged Linden at 8:30 p.m. Pat Mahoney, Chris Hunkler and sophomore Steve Fields have been doing the job for the Stallions while a fivesome of Panthers . . . Larry Mays, Willie Williams, Don Penn, Cal Wade and Larry Cochran . . . figure to offer a stiff test to the Central Catholic Leaguer.

The winners meet at 9 p.m. Friday with the losers playing at 7:30.

East, London Outlast Contenders; Surprising Wolves Stay Unbeaten

By BOB WHITMAN
Spectator Sports Writer

Ace rebounder Nick Connor pulled down a couple of mighty important ones in the waning seconds Saturday at the Fairgrounds Coliseum and pitched all-courters to Ed Ratleff and Dwight Lamar to bring East from a 71-69 scare to a 77-69 winner over Linden.

That was the closest any Ohio prep team has been to Bob Hart's touted Tigers during this 1968-69 cage campaign which is six unbeaten games old for his Tigers.

THE BENGALS had impressive leads throughout the game . . . 11-1, 49-34 and 52-34 . . . but the scrappy Panthers of George Mills refused to be counted out.

They fought all the way back to a 65-63 deficit, but never pulled in front of the East hustlers. It was what the coaches first summed it up as — a battle between height and speed.

East had plenty of the first and enough of the second to post its fifth City League win.

RATLEFF and Lamar were again the East scoreboys with 30 and 20 respectively. Willie Williams had 25 for the losing Panthers.

Jim Pena dropped a fielder with nine seconds remaining as London stopped pressurized Grove City in London (50-48)—setting up a healthy 4-0 Raider Mid-Eight League lead and a 3-1 three-team, second-place jam.

Dave Ball netted 16 and Jeff Singleton managed 10 in the G-C loss. That gives Herb Russell's boys a 4-2 overall mark this season.

BOB FOWLE'S Wehrle bunch scored 27 points in the final period to upset Watterson in the CCL, 67-58, and show a 2-0 loop and 5-0 all-games record.

Four double figure scorers . . . Dave Maurer (17), Tony Predis (16), John Skunza (12), and Tim Sachs (10) . . . paced the Wehrle way.

Hartley fired in 70 per cent of its shots to wound Fairfield School for Boys, 97-40. Pete Wein (29) and Bill Saas (22) led the 3-4 Hawks.

HOOK SHOT — Groveport's Jim Stevenson (20) arches a hook shot over the extended reach of Canal Winchester defender Don Richardson Saturday.

HOLIDAYS TRIM SCHEDULE

Rams Pick Off E-M Wrestling Plum

By JACK WITTENMEIER
Spectator Sports Editor

Dale Faust's Whitehall Rams made hay in the consolation bracket Saturday to pick off the '68-'69 wrestling season's first major plum — the Eastmoor Invitational — to highlight a scant pre-holiday mat schedule.

All but four area teams — DeSales, Watterson, Eastmoor and Whetstone — have closed up shop for the year.

THE STALLIONS and Eagles of the CCL compete Friday and Saturday in the day-long "Tournament of Champions" at Dayton Stebbins.

Eastmoor journeys to Toledo Whitmer for a 16-team face-off (begins at 1 p.m.) on the same two days while Whetstone will be competing at the two-day Ridgeview Invitational.

Franklin Heights showed two finals champions — Jerry Branham (112) and Wes Love (127) — to Whitehall's none but the Rams still corraled the most points, edging Bob Twiss's Falcons (71-66) for the E-M title.

FOUR WHITEHALL finalists had to settle for the runnerup spots but the key points came in the consolation bracket as Rick Stover (112) and Dick Evans (154) supplied decisions and heavyweight George Heaton added vital pin-win points.

Following the Rams and Falcons in the point totals were: Watterson (61), Eastmoor and Lakewood (39), Whetstone (36), South (33), Linden (31), Ready (30), Walnut Ridge (24), Newark (23), Mohawk and Ashland (21), East (12) and Wehrle (0).

Here are the finals results: 103 — Tom Shumate (Lakewood) dec. Waulter VanGumster (White.); 112 — Jerry Branham (F-H) dec. Eric Alexander (Watterson); 120 John Kasmerski (Whetstone) dec. Billy Roshon (White.); 127 — Wes Love (F-H) dec. Ricci Jackson (East); 133 — Steve Haslup (Whet.) dec. Tony Wilson (F-H; 138—John Vick (South) dec. Mike O'Connor (Watt.); 145—Bob Burnett (Mohawk) pinned Ken Paulson (White.) 154 — Steve Dutil (Newark) dec. Guy Rowinski (E-M); 165 Kevin Jones (E-M) dec. Larry Griffin (Linden); 175 — Bob Bulby (Watt.) dec. Dennis Boggs (White); HWT—Jeff Brandt (Walnut Ridge) pinned Chuck Wolfe (F-H).

Double winners included: 103 — Rich Bowers (Rey.); 112 — Stan Greenblot (Bex.); 120 — Flip Majerus (Rey.); 127 — Larry Lieberman (Bex.); 133 — Dennis Netfeld (Rey.); 138—Don Friedenberg (Bex.); 145 — Bob Frampton (Bex., win and draw); 154 — Jeff Johns (Grandv.); 165 — Rob Hirsch (Bex.); 175 — Tom Walker (Rey.); HWT. — Ron Gates (Bex.).

GROVEPORT'S dual mark slipped to 1-3 with a double setback during the week—Bob Carter's Cruisers bowing to Brookhaven (21-12) and Westerville (28-10).

Dennis Sparks (103) started Groveport off on the right foot with a pin-win but Westerville responded with 20 straight points to put it away.

GROVEPORT took reserve meet honors, however, 26-21.

Pleasant View blasted off to a 20-0 lead and then coasted to a 23-18 dual victory over Bishop Ready.

AFTER JEFF Mathias' pin-win at 103, P-V strung together five straight verdicts —Ron Cosner, Roger Overcash, Mike Briggs, Jeff Smith and Bob Walton — before the Knights could break the scoring ice.

Bob Spetnagel added the other Panther points with a decision at 154.

HAMILTON Township broke into the winner's circle for the first time this campaign — at the expense of Marion-Franklin 26-19.

Tom Knorr (112), Bob Kline (120), George Ginunas (127) and heavyweight Larry Wiggins scored pin points for Wes Mirick's Rangers while John Savel and John Neidigh added decision markers.

Red Devil wins came on decisions by Jim Jayjohn, Larry Boelter and Rick Austin and pin-wins by John Robinette (103) and Steve Grabovich (175).

CENTRAL dropped out of the ranks of the unbeaten as Dave Samuel's Pirates lost out (50-48) in a triangular effort with winner Circleville and Pleasantview (39).

DAR Birthday

A few of the members reenacted activities with a play, mostly by song, of happenings since it was formed Dec. 11, 1926.

Two members in attendance, Irma Gobel and Fay Maxwell, both professional researchers in family histories, were descendants of Christian.

Christian came to Amish country in Stark County by way of Philadelphia, reformed to the United Brethren faith and moved into South Central Ohio, about 1814.

Miss Maxwell owns his preacher-size Bible, yet Ohio annals do not carry his service in this work. His war record is found in the Pennsylvania Archives.

DAR has long been recognized for compiling war records for the National Archives. It is said that a history of the Amish of Ohio now exists, one compiled by the editor of an Amish newspaper in northern Ohio.

Woman And The Hairdresser

For the past ten years, the woman and the hairdresser are increasing in fashion importance. Emphasis on coiffures as the central facet of beauty or dress determines the woman's chicness.

The hairdresser's role is to help a woman to define, to accent, a woman's personality. Yet coiffures are designed to save time, to make life easier. No longer does the woman have time to have the hairdresser comb her hair each day.

For the older woman, the coiffure is one to make her look younger. Here again, the hairdresser's role comes into play that the fashionable woman might adapt the newest trends to her own personality.

Cycles repeat themselves in hair styles, however it is best for a woman to stick close to a style that becomes her. The hairdresser at Christine's & Rapunzel may suggest a change. They are accustomed to handling varied types of hair textures and types of faces. They can divorce themselves from your face to create a new you.

They are stylists, creative artists that sculpture a hair-do to bring out a pretty angle of the woman's face. More than that, when a hairdresser washes your hair, she has learned how to massage your head and hair to awaken its oil pockets which liven up the hair. One washing her own hair hurries through this process, and hair washday is a half-way measure. With beauty shop care you feel relaxed, fresh, and beautiful inside, certainly perked up.

If you are wondering whether to bleach or dye, Rapunzel and Christine's can also help you.

How do they learn when to stop bleaching? They, like other good hairdressers, spend their off days bleaching strands of hair, and trying out various combinations.

You can be assured they can look at your hair, feel of the texture and know what formula to use. Take their suggestions on hair care.

We have a color technician in the Village now. Mis Mary has completed varied studies which places her in the category of "color technician," a solver of hair problems and corrective measures.

Jesus In The Manger

Francis Assisi, the man who called the wind his brother and the birds his sisters, was the one that gave the world the custom of exhibiting the creche in church, where barn and hay, soft breathing beasts, flowing breast and hungry babe, shepherd and star are elevated for delight.

Out of the North the barbarian mind, forest-born, brought tree worship, whether of fir or holly or yule log. It took mistletoe from the Druids, stripped present giving from New Year's where in Latin lands it still is observed, and made of Christmas a children's festival, set to tune of joyful carols.

It glorified woman and child, and brotherhood of men.

You will search the four Gospels in vain for a hint of the day or the month when Christ was born. December 25th was already being celebrated in the ancient world as the birthdate of the sun god Mithras. Jesus means the same as Mithras. One also finds the story within the Constellations and preserved in Virgil, four year Latin.

After Christmas sales offer savings at Dor O-Bell Gift Shop and Linden Laden. Both carry a wide selection of gift items, each a specialty house in its own right. Browse around in both. One never knows when a sale item will be the thing you have been looking for. It might be markdown.

ABOUT OUR ADVERTISERS . . .

Herr Michael Beauty Salon opened recently in the Village. Not the hair-do art created by Herr Michael, the gentleman that will style and create a hair style meant for you. If you are wondering what the name Herr means, please take note. It means gentleman, owner and proprietor. Going a little further in name breakdown, Michael is derived from a white, fibrous opal of the Azores, where the St. Michael of the Catholic Church derived its September 29 Feastday. For this reason, Michael or Mike is a highly powerful name in any land. One can expect outstanding work at Herr Michael's salon.

Len Immke's Opel offers savings to any bargain hunter, It is GM's lowest priced car. Its mileage per gallon is nearly tops. It's roomy, offering long trip comfort for one or more. Safety is built in. The business woman looking for a good American made car, can't go wrong with an Opel. There are six models to choose from, all require little upkeep. For Opel owners, don't forget the Service Department is always ready to serve you.

For one wanting to junk a VW, call Rusk Bros. They also offer body repairs, painting and sales in new and used parts. If you are having trouble in getting good mechanical service, try Rusk's.

Discount prices are still offered at Hancock Cleaners. They also offer fast service.

If holiday entertaining played havoc with your carpeting over Christmas, rent a shampooer from Paul's and make it look like new again.

Closets cluttered? Callander Cleaning can help. They will take all your summer clothing off your hands and keep it for you in moth-safe storage. It will be returned to you fresh and perfectly cleaned, ready for spring wearing. It's like adding another closet to the home.

Do you need a quick repair job done on holiday clothes? Take them to Best Cleaners. Word is around the community, one can set his watch by his lunch hour timing . . . except one day last week. George Brand, the proprietor, was five minutes late, a couple of customers said.

For a handsome momument, in ageless devotion, call Nino's Memorial. He chisels with the old world training in workmanship and feeling for a job well done, has learned to speak English well in his few short years here. Of Old World training, he knows the love you wish to impart in Memory.

THE PSALMS,

Hymnbook Of Humanity

Christmas caroling and sermons often carry themes of one of the Psalms. They are the only part of the Old and New Testament that may be found in any Protestant, Roman Catholic, Greek Orthodox or Jewish Bible. They are quoted in the milestone ceremonies of life, from baptism, confirmation and bar mitzvah to marriage and the final rites. There is hardly anybody who does not know one or more of them by heart.

In the 16th century, Christians banded together in communities so they could sing Psalms according to the Psalms' own rule: "Seven times a day do I praise Thee."

At the time of the Reformation, reformers from Martin Luther to John Knox, Oliver Cromwell and John Wesley drew strength from the Psalms.

In 1787 the Constitutional Convention meeting at Philadelphia was near failure because the 13 former colonies could not agree on a form of effective national government. Then 81-year-old Benjamin Franklin rose to his feet, moved that the delegates begin the next day's meeting with a prayer, for he believed in one particular Psalm saying, "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it."

Confirmation has long been made that passages of Psalms predate David, established by ruins of the lost city of Ugarit, a Bronze Age center of commerce on a caravan route between Egypt and Mesopotamia. The language of these Ugaritic writings are similar to Hebrew.

Seventy-three Psalms contributed to authorship by David established the Judean dynasty at Jerusalem about 1000 B.C. All of the 150 Psalms predate David, and all explain in varied ways the Law of the Universe. "Do unto others that which one wishes to have done unto oneself."

The Corner Food Shop is well stocked in varied types of Toast Crackers for snacking anytime, You might like to try the threesome party group called Danish Accent, English Beef, and Italian Meat Ball.

UA Agencies Must Whittle $100,000 From Programs

Failure of the community to reach the total United Appeal goal will force 69 agencies supported by the funds to whittle nearly $100,000 in services from their new programs.

This was the interpretation given by UA President William E. Knepper as the UA Board of Directors Thursday approved recommendations of its screening committee for agency allocations totaling $4,603,300.

THIS FIGURE for the 1968 campaign was 1.8 per cent short of the goal.

Knepper said cuts in specific programs will be up to the boards of the agencies involved.

"Revised post-campaign requests," Knepper said, "totaled $343,344 more than actual allocations. The 1969 goal, if met, would have provided nearly two-thirds this amount, permitting minimal programming to meet community needs."

He said the new grants will limit UA agencies to only basic services.

THE NEW funding provides for only one new agency, Maryhaven, Franklin County's only female residence for alcoholics. However, no new or increased programming will be possible except in the case of the Epilepsy Association.

Even with the Epilepsy Association, however, initial programs have been cut. In place of a broad, rehabilitative program, the allocation will provide partial salary for a social worker.

USO, Knepper added, will receive no increase in funds—despite a special request by the military for additional overseas programs.

IN CUTTING back original agency requests, Dr. John Pfahl, OSU professor of business organization and co-chairman of the screening committee, said his committee has set top priority on limited merit raises for personnel.

Marvin Glassman, chairman of the UCC budget and admissions committee, said the UCC will allocate funds in early January for 59 of the UA agencies.

GLASSMAN SAID UCC would probably give priority to programming in day care services, which are directly related to employment, housing, health and welfare; rehabilitation services for the unwed mother; alcoholism; and special programs for the 14-18 age group where adequate services and facilities are now lacking.

Following are the allocations for the 10 agencies directly financed by UA:

American Red Cross, $630,000; American Social Health, $20,000; Association for Coordinated Community Services, $27,000; Arthritis Foundation, $62,250; Central Ohio Diabetes Association, $26,450; Epilepsy Association, $6,000; National Multiple Sclerosis Society, $40,600; United Cerebral Palsy, $120,600; Mental Health Association, $54,000; United Community Council, $3,590,400 (for 59 agencies); USO-national, $23,000; and USO-local, $21,000.

Duo Art Exhibit Slated

Jan. 10 marks the opening of a divided but related exhibition at The Columbus Gallery of Fine Arts, "Columbus Collects" and "Collectors Choice."

The "Columbus Collects" part of the exhibition consists of approximately 40 paintings and 30 pieces of furniture which will be grouped in period vignettes. All of the items in this collection have been collected by Columbus area residents.

The corresponding part of the exhibition is titled "Collectors Choice" and consists of paintings and small bronze sculpture from well-known New York galleries.

The exhibition can be viewed through Jan. 28 at regular Gallery hours: 12-5 daily.

Free guided tours are available every Saturday and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. with planned tours available upon request.

Phone 221-1078 for information.

$2.5 Million Headed For Area Services

Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc., is planning to invest $33.6 million for new pipelines and other facilities in Ohio during 1969, pushing total construction expenditures in the last 10 years to over $3 billion.

Columbia Gas and its associate companies—Ohio Fuel Gas and Ohio Valley Gas — all have headquarters in Columbus.

Elden H. Davis, Columbus manager for the gas company, said $29 million will be used to build new pipelines throughout the state.

THE GAS companies serve some 955,000 residential, commercial and industrial customers in Columbus.

In the Columbus area alone, the gas firm expects to invest about $2,500,000 in 1969.

Major projects scheduled in this area include:

- Approximately 8,000 feet of new pipeline along Green Street and Interstate 71 at a cost of about $120,000.
- A $75,000 project for 3,300 feet of pipeline along Champion Avenue, north and south of Broad Street.
- In Grove City, 9,800 feet of new pipeline along Alkire Road which will cost about $49,000.
- About 2,700 feet of pipeline along S. High Street south of Frank Road at a cost of $34,000.

Davis said the new budget reflects the "continued accelerated growth of the gas industry and of Ohio itself."

YWCA Starts New Year Programs For 'In-Group'

Girls, six-12 and junior high school age, do you want to join the "in group"? — in condition and in the know?

Saturdays at the YWCA, 65 S. Fourth St., are planned for you.

Beginning Saturday, Jan. 4, and continuing for 10 weeks, a program of crafts and gym will be offered for girls six-12 years of age.

The craft classes at 9-10 a.m. and 10-11 a.m., will be taught by Mrs. Campbell (Ann) Warren.

Mrs. Sue Litzinger will teach girls how to exercise, including the use of the trampoline.

Judi Ford, Miss America 1968, credits the YWCA with providing the opportunity for her to develop her trampoline skill — a deciding factor in her selection at Atlantic City.

Gym classes are 10:15-11 a.m. and 11:15-12 noon. Members and non-members are welcome.

A new series designed for junior high school gals and their mothers will begin Saturday, Jan. 8, and continue for four consecutive Saturdays.

The first session in this "Mother-Daughter Venture" Saturday, Jan. 18, 10 a.m. to 12 noon features "You — Pretty and Poised." See the "pretty" you emerge with the know-how of hair styling and make-up.

Jan. 25, 1 to 3 p.m., emphasizes ""The Creative You" — discover a timely and useful craft.

Feb. 1, 10-12 noon explore "You, the Female Sex," grow in understanding of yourselves as females.

Feb. 8, 1 to 3 p.m., focuses on how "You Defend Yourself," don't be defenseless, learn the womanly manner of self-defense.

Call the YWCA, 224-9121, to register for these programs or to secure additional information.

THAT IMPRESSIONABLE AGE

You have to be so careful what you say to children when they're at that impressionable age.

Our neighbor has a little daughter. And, being something of a skeptic, he's been careful not to let her be exposed to religious teaching, at least not in any direct way.

But the other night she asked, "Who is God?" And, since he wants to see her grow up with the highest ideals, he hesitated a moment before he answered her question.

Then he said, "God made the world." (And he wondered why he hadn't said "God is nobody—there isn't any god.")

Her wondering eyes and pursed lips tugged at his heart. "Gosh, Daddy," she mused, "He's somebody to know!"

Whether you're a child or an adult, that pretty well sums it up. Either God is nobody—or He Is Somebody To Know!

And the church bells ring every Sunday.

Two UCC Officials Selected

John C. Elam, 4012 Lyon Dr., and Walter R. Tarpley, 370 Berkeley Rd., will serve on the 60-member board of directors of United Community Funds and Councils of America (UCFCA) in 1969.

UCFCA is made up of 2,500 united community service organizations. Columbus ranks with New York City, Chicago and Washington as the only cities to claim more than one member on the national board.

Elam is a past president of United Appeal, past chairman of its screening committee and current member of its board of directors.

Tarpley, executive director of the United Community Council, is the first Negro professional staff member to be named to the board.

Tarpley has been executive director of UCC, the planning and research agency for United Appeal, since March, 1968. He was formerly community relations director for the City of Columbus.

Police Chief Urges Driver Coffee Breaks

Columbus Chief of Police Robert H. Baus announced his department is again cooperating in the National Coffee Safety Stop Program to cut traffic accidents during the Christmas/New Year's Holidays by urging motorists to stop for free coffee breaks.

The Coffee Safety Stop Program is a nationwide effort of safety groups and thousands of restaurant operators who have volunteered to serve free coffee to travelers during peak traffic hours of the holiday season.

Participating restaurants are displaying a special Free Coffee Safety Break sign.

The Chief also cautions drivers to "watch out for the other guy, obey all traffic regulations and adjust driving to changing road, weather and visibility conditions."

For those planning extended trips during the holiday season, he added, "Be sure your vehicle is in top mechanical condition before starting out. Once on the road, drive carefully and stop often for rest breaks.

"If you don't see a free coffee sign, stop anyway. Frequent safety stops will help keep you alert and alive to enjoy the Holidays."

Safe Driving Urged Over Yule Holiday

Col. Robert M. Chiaramonte, superintendent of the Ohio State Highway Patrol, has issued a personal plea to area motorists to take necessary safety precautions when using the highways during the holidays.

"We are especially asking the cooperation of drivers in curbing the amount of alcoholic beverages consumed before using the highways," Chiaramonte said.

"Statistics show that between 60 and 75 per cent of all fatal accidents involve drinking drivers."

To combat this problem, the Ohio Legislature passed the "implied consent" law in early 1968.

This law states that any person stopped by an officer who has reasonable grounds to believe the motorist is driving under the influence of alcohol, must consent to a chemical test to determine blood alcohol content.

Refusal to submit to such test can result in a six-month suspension of the person's driver's license.

"We are asking Ohioans to consider the possible consequences of driving under the influence of alcohol," Chiaramonte said.

"At the very least, the drinking driver is risking being arrested, fined up to $500 in addition to court costs, sentenced for a maximum of six months to the county jail or workhouse and having his license suspended for not less than 30 days or revoked entirely."

VanderWerf Gains Honors

The Rev. Nathan H. VanderWerf, executive director of the Metropolitan Area Church Board, has been selected to appear in two publications.

Because of his service to the community, Rev. VanderWerf will appear in the 1969 edition of "Community Leaders in America." The 1968 edition of the publication contained the listings of approximately 4,000 leaders.

In addition, he will be included in the 12th edition of "Who's Who in the Midwest." This distinction is given to 15 persons out of every 10,000 persons whose accomplishments in their fields are worthy of interest.

WELCOME JINGLE

In days of yore guests opening the front door would be greeted by the merry tingle of sleigh bells. You can buy them on a strap that can be hung from the door, on a flexible metal support that vibrates as soon as the door is opened.

To extend a hearty welcome, paint your door for the holidays, then spray a quick-drying enamel that contrasts with your door. You'll have attractiveness with sound effects that spell out a real welcome.

THE GREATEST GIFT — HOPE

By ARTHUR HOPPE

Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the king, behold, there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem,

Saying, Where is he that is born King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him.

When Herod the king had heard these things, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him.

"King of the Jews, you say?" said Herod, staring coldly at the three Wise Men standing before him. "Is that why you would worship him?"

"No, your highness," said one. "It is because of the miraculous gift he brings — the greatest miracle of all."

"The age of miracles has passed," said Herod. "Tell me about this supposed miracle."

"He will go forth among men, teaching peace and brotherhood," said the second. "He will tell them to turn aside from wealth and to love even their enemies."

"Any fool can talk about peace and brotherhood," said Herod. "That's no miracle. If the people listened to such twaddle, that would be a miracle."

"The people will come to worship him," said the third Wise Man, "and will build costly temples in his honor throughout the known world and worlds yet unknown."

"Still no miracle," said Herod. "People are always building temples to this god or that. And it's no miracle if one sect happens to triumph over the others. I suppose there will be battles?"

"Yes," conceded the first Wise Man sadly. "Those who worship him as The Prince of Peace will slaughter, rape and pillage in his name for centuries yet to come. His followers will grow rich and struggle for temporal power — all in his name."

"You call that a miracle?" said Herod. "He preaches love and poverty and his supposed followers practice hate and greed. Far from being a miracle that is precisely what I would expect of the miserable human race. Hypocrites, all."

"But wait, your highness," said the second Wise Man. "On one day each year in the milleniums to come, the world will celebrate his birth."

"The world celebrates the birth of emperors and kings," said Herod. "That's no miracle."

"And on this one day each year," said the third, "his followers will give of their wealth to each other and love their neighbors and lay aside their arms in war. Brotherhood and joy shall fill their hearts on this one day each year."

"You might call that a miracle," said Herod. "But if men can be saints one day each year, it only emphasizes what hypocrites they are on all the other days of the year. And that would be no miracle."

"No Sire," agreed the first Wise Man. "But all men yearn to be saints, even though [illegible] men fail. And therein lies the miraculous gift of this day that will sustain men in the ages yet to come."

"What gift?" said Herod, frowning.

"Hope," said the three Wise Men simply.

• • •

Then Herod, when he saw that he was mocked of the wise men, was exceeding wroth, and sent forth, and slew all the children that were in Bethlehem, and in all the coasts thereof, fr[illegible] years old and under . . .

Yet, lo, the hope survived.

PART II: THE DRAFT – WHAT FEW PEOPLE KNOW

Why One Columbus Youth Won't Go To War

By PAT WELSH And JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writers

DANIEL BRUSTEIN

A quiet, young Columbus native who says he holds a special feeling of love for the United States" may face a five-year jail sentence for allegedly refusing to register for the draft.

Daniel Brustein, who started college at the age of 16, is under indictment by a federal court here for failure to register for the draft. Brustein now is a third-year student at Antioch College in Yellow Springs, O.

THE YOUNG STUDENT said he went to his local board in Columbus shortly after his 18th birthday and told them he did not intend to "cooperate."

He first visited the board in April of this year. In July he was arrested for failing to register and a hearing was held in October.

Final briefs have been submitted and a decision is expected soon from Federal District Court Judge Joseph P. Kinneary.

BRUSTEIN SAID he based his refusal to cooperate on two considerations: His belief that the draft is unnecessary, unconstitutional and immoral and his strong opposition to the war in Vietnam.

The written statement he presented to his draft board said he felt he should do more than just "talk about opposition to the war and its corallary, the draft."

Brustein appears ready to accept the consequences of his action.

"People have to realize that they do have choices within the system if they are willing to accept the consequences."

And, Brustein added, "the consequences will become less severe if more people object to the present system. The United States government should realize that it can no longer trespass on the private property and lives of its citizens and other nations."

"THE UNITED States," he continued, "has to begin recognizing the sovereignity of people and of other nations, which it has not done up to now."

Brustein said he thought about applying for conscientious objector status with his local board, but that he did not believe "anyone, including the draft board, has the right to judge the sincerity of my moral or philosophical beliefs."

He said he felt the draft system was unfair in its approach to student deferments, permitting men rich enough to afford college educations a period of deferment — while men not able to go to college are drafted right after high school.

He added that he believed the U.S. could maintain an effective military force with a voluntary army, making the draft unnecessary.

Because of the Vietnam war, however, Brustein said he could not serve in the military, no matter how fair the draft system.

"I AM NOT a pacifist. There could be times when I could justify fighting in a war, but this is not one of those times."

He said he objected to the Vietnamese war because U. S. involvement came about through a misunderstanding of Communist bloc countries and a desire to control the economic concerns of Southeast Asia.

According to international law, the SEATO Pact and the United Nations Charter, Brustein claimed, the war is illegal. He said the U. S. is not living up to the Geneva Conventions, which he said were binding on the U. S. because it agreed to the terms of the convention. The U. S. government, however, never signed the conventions.

BRUSTEIN IS basing his argument in the courts on the fact that he claims he gave his local board enough information for them to register him and it was their responsibility to do the rest.

Should Brustein be found not guilty, he would be considered registered for the draft and his local board would then decide what kind of classification to give him.

He could possibly be classified 1-A and thus be draft eligible.

If Brustein then should decide not to serve in the armed forces, the penalty could run as high as a jail sentence of five years and a $10,000 fine.

WHILE THE YOUNG college student professes a "special feeling of love" for this country, he says that in the case of Vietnam he feels the U. S. is wrong.

He believes he cannot support the armed forces in this particular war.

Brustein, a geology major in college, said he was not worried about how his actions would affect his career.

But he added that he was worried about young men less fortunate than he, who would not be able to get a job because of records of draft objection.

Careers Conference Opens

For college juniors and seniors in Franklin County, Christmas is a good time to look into career opportunities in this area.

The Columbus Careers Conference opens Thursday, Dec. 26, at the Sheraton-Columbus Hotel. It will continue all day Friday and until noon on Saturday.

The first day of the conference, starting at noon, has been set aside for registration. There also will be registration, along with interviews, Friday.

TO ATTEND the conference, college students must be residents of Franklin County who expect to graduate by Jan. 31, 1970.

A record 57 companies and organizations based in Franklin County will have representatives to conduct interviews.

John Scott, conference chairman, said "there's a great need for college graduates to fill challenging positions with area firms. This is one reason why a record number of companies have decided to participate in this year's conference."

THIS IS the third year for the conference. The first conference had 37 participating companies. There were 45 last year when 1,750 interviews were given to 450 students.

More than 500 students are expected to seek interviews at this year's conference.

"The conference also makes a contribution to the community," Scott added, "because it encourages college students to check out career opportunities in their hometown before they go elsewhere. You might say the conference helps conserve a valuable resource — college graduates — for the community."

Interviews will be given in a wide variety of fields — personnel, banking and finance, nursing, hospital administration, accounting, engineering, insurance, science, retailing, data processing and programming, research and various social areas.

Columbus Refuse Pick Up Schedule Changed

Christmas and New Year's Day both fall on Wednesday this year and Columbus City employes will observe the holidays, according to James J. Yoder, superintendent of the Division of Sanitation.

The following refuse pick-up schedules will be in effect for the weeks of Dec. 25, 1968 and Jan. 1, 1969.

If your reguar pick-up day is Dec. 25, set your refuse out on Dec. 26.

If your regular pick-up day is Dec. 26, set your refuse out on Dec. 27.

If your regular pick-up day is Dec. 27, set your refuse out on Dec. 28.

If your regular pick-up day is Jan. 1, set your refuse out on Jan. 2.

If your regular pick-up day is Jan. 2, set your refuse out on Jan. 3.

If your regular pick-up day is Jan. 3, set your refuse out on Jan. 4.

ONE NATION OR TWO: WHAT CAN BE DONE?

Chain Of Inner-City Industries One New Approach To Urban Woes

(Editor's Note: This is the third in a series on articles setting up general guidelines for attacking the greatest American probem according to the Federal Riot Commission report. The developing threat of two nations—one black and the other white).

By JOHN MORGAN
Spectator Staff Writer

Getting at some of the economic problems which plague Columbus' inner city is one of the major objectives of the Columbus Metropolitan Area Community Action Organization.

Attempting to establish one industry in the Columbus ghetto, CMACAO's Executive Director Curtis A. Brooks says his organization "discovered a whole new approach to solving some of the ills that plague our cities."

WHY STOP with just one inner-city industry?

In the course of the next two or three years, Brooks envisions the development of several factories, shopping centers, restaurants and other profit-making ventures.

This development, however, entails the guidance of the white community.

"Plans are being carefully explored to link a complex of local inner-city factories as a franchise or subsidiary of a major national company," the executive director explained.

He said such an arrangement woud provide international exposure for local products through a wider market and sales organization of such a large company.

This chain of profit-making ventures in the ghetto would mark the beginning of what Brooks calls "true corporate competition."

The CMACAO director expained what was involved in this process.

"SINCE THIS is the era of the huge corporate complex, survival dictates innovative change in small industry in order to compete.

"This thrust toward 'bigness' must occur in these days of corporate mergers as a solution to meet the needs of the poor and broaden ownership and participation to the invisible people trapped in poverty."

Brooks illustrates his viewpoint by pointing to the consumer habits of people in poverty.

"Many of the inner-city small merchants," he explained, "have to charge people more for goods and services because they cannot compete with big corporations which can purchase goods at a much higher volume and offer them to the public for lower prices."

Brooks classifies the public as generally middle-class consumers who have transportation to get to these huge retail outlets.

"The poor need the same alternatives in acquisition of goods and services as everyone in order to stop the poor paying more from escalation."

WHILE NOT looking upon CMACAO's program as a cure-all, Brooks feels it's a "viable way of getting the people who have been denied access to the mainstream of the economy to participate on a true competitive basis outside the corporate world."

He believes the amount of management potential in the Franklin County ghetto is "absolutely amazing."

"This derives," he says, "partly from academic sources. But the real fountainhead is the natural life experience of the ghetto—relating to one another and utilizing the survival skills which black Americans have developed in a hostile environment."

The key to making this economic approach work is cooperation between black and white Americans, the haves and the have-nots.

"Assuming that capitalism is the way of life," Brooks concludes, "this alternative of capitalistic participation must be diligently and aggressively pursued."

Columbus, Ohio, Thursday, December 26, 1968

Christmas 1968

Christmas again — and still the highest priority is peace.

Peace in Vietnam.

Peace in our cities.

Peace within ourselves.

At a time of year celebrating the birth of the "Prince of Peace," there appears to be nothing but strife, war and poverty.

Strangely enough, there neither can nor should be peace with these hobgoblins of the human imagination which drain our spirits and warp our intellects.

The paradox is that as we wage war against poverty, hunger and ignorance in our midst we will grow closer to peace.

For peace is not simply the absence of war. The human spirit by nature is in conflict.

The real question is: Against whom do we wage our war?

Against the hungry, 10,000 of whom die daily around the world?

Peace will come when we realize that wars against poverty, hunger and ignorance are part of an on-going process.

Let this Christmas be the birth of that new direction.

And let us say a prayer for peace quietly while we wage a war loudly for human justice in this age.

And give us the wisdom to know the difference.

Dear Santa . . .

Although unsigned, the letter was thought to have been written by certain city officials.

Dear Mr. Claus:

We are writing to ask you for a few gifts this Christmas.

We know you have problems coming to all Columbus homes, particularly since last year when you were caught in a traffic jam out on I-71 during a one-inch snowstorm.

We'll try to correct that, Mr. Claus, as well as making sure our city police do not pick you up for speeding again.

And to save time this year, sir, please don't visit the Mayor's office and spend four hours looking at the Kennedy collection.

Our gift list is small, so we know you can handle it.

For our governor, please bring a financial expert to bail him out of bond troubles.

To our city councilmen, may we suggest a little dose of meaningfulness to bolster their meetings?

And for all Columbus, could you bring a little more sanity and a little less bickering?

Thank You, sir.

Foolish Blunder

The Franklin County Republican organization has committed an unforgivable blunder in appointing Jacob A. Shawan to the legislative seat left vacant by the tragic death of Rep. Bob Jones.

Bob Jones was a different kind of legislator — a politician with deep feeling for his constituents. His wife, in the aftermath of his untimely death, had urged the GOP machine to replace him with the same kind of man—Bill Martin, Jones' campaign manager.

But machines don't work that way. Jones had been a thorn in the party's side at times and now he has been replaced with a "good party man." It is, of course, the same Jake Shawan who was appointed to a seat on the County Commission and then defeated two months later at the polls.

And when you bring in the issue of carpetbagging, you complete the picture. Just a month ago, Shawan changed his legal residence from his Dublin home to his insurance office in the 62nd District.

It is another good example of why politicians remain so completely alienated from the people they purport to serve.

Another Drink, Dear

By ROBERT TENENBAUM
Managing Editor

This is an appeal to wives all over Columbus.

Could you please become football fans, just for a few weeks?

It isn't really such an awfully big request. We husbands (and boy friends and sons) are only asking for a few short weeks of understanding.

After all, there are only a few games coming up that we'd like to watch.

Like the NFL Eastern Division championship, the NFL Western Division championship, the NFL championship, the AFL Western Division playoff, the AFL championship, the Rose Bowl, the Sugar Bowl, the Cotton Bowl, the Orange Bowl, the Tangerine Bowl, the NFL Playoff Bowl, the Super Bowl and a few assorted all-star games.

Is it really so much to ask?

Just because hubby spends two out of every three waking hours watching football on TV, is that any reason to file for divorce?

Just because he sits down in front of the TV at 1 o'clock New Year's afternoon and watches football right on through to 11:30 at night, is that any reason to go home to mother?

Lots of women like football. It's not really just a man's game.

And bring me another Coke, dear.

Family Of Man

By JOHN MORGAN

A favorite pastime of my family—before it scattered itself across the face of the earth in such backward places as Columbus, Ankara or North Carolina — was to sit down together on Christmas eve and talk intimately.

In an age where the television set has taken the place of human companionship, this family get-together stands out in my memory more than the tinsel or the tree.

WE TALKED those Christmas eves of memories important only to families.

This was one way of binding together our separateness, for each member of the family had gone his or her own way—many times to the chagrin of my parents, who nevertheless had the wisdom never to let us know their feelings.

They were content if we were on the path we had chosen. They never judged us, although there were many sordid things to judge; they never called us immature, although there were too many cases of youthful stupidity.

We were, to say the least, a motley group, driven by different ideas of success, split by political jargon, separated by thousands of miles.

But we were a family on Christmas. There was no generation gap, no political alienation, no needless judgments, no middle-class pleasantries.

CHRISTMAS WAS a special time of year, a rare moment of time sliced out of the mishmash of daily routine. It was being accepted . . . and joy in a cruel world.

I remember the early Christmastide in the inner city of Philadelphia. The candle-lit, dim church sanctuary and the off-key voices of a boys' choir. Carolers from a nearby university breaking through the unusually quiet air with verses and songs everyone knew.

And then home . . . Home, a place where human values seemed more vital than spiritual ones, if indeed these values were not spiritual themselves.

HOME . . . freedom to be oneself, to be part of more than one's self, to find one's self as part of something larger.

When going "home" in this age seems so difficult, home in my case was where I lived.

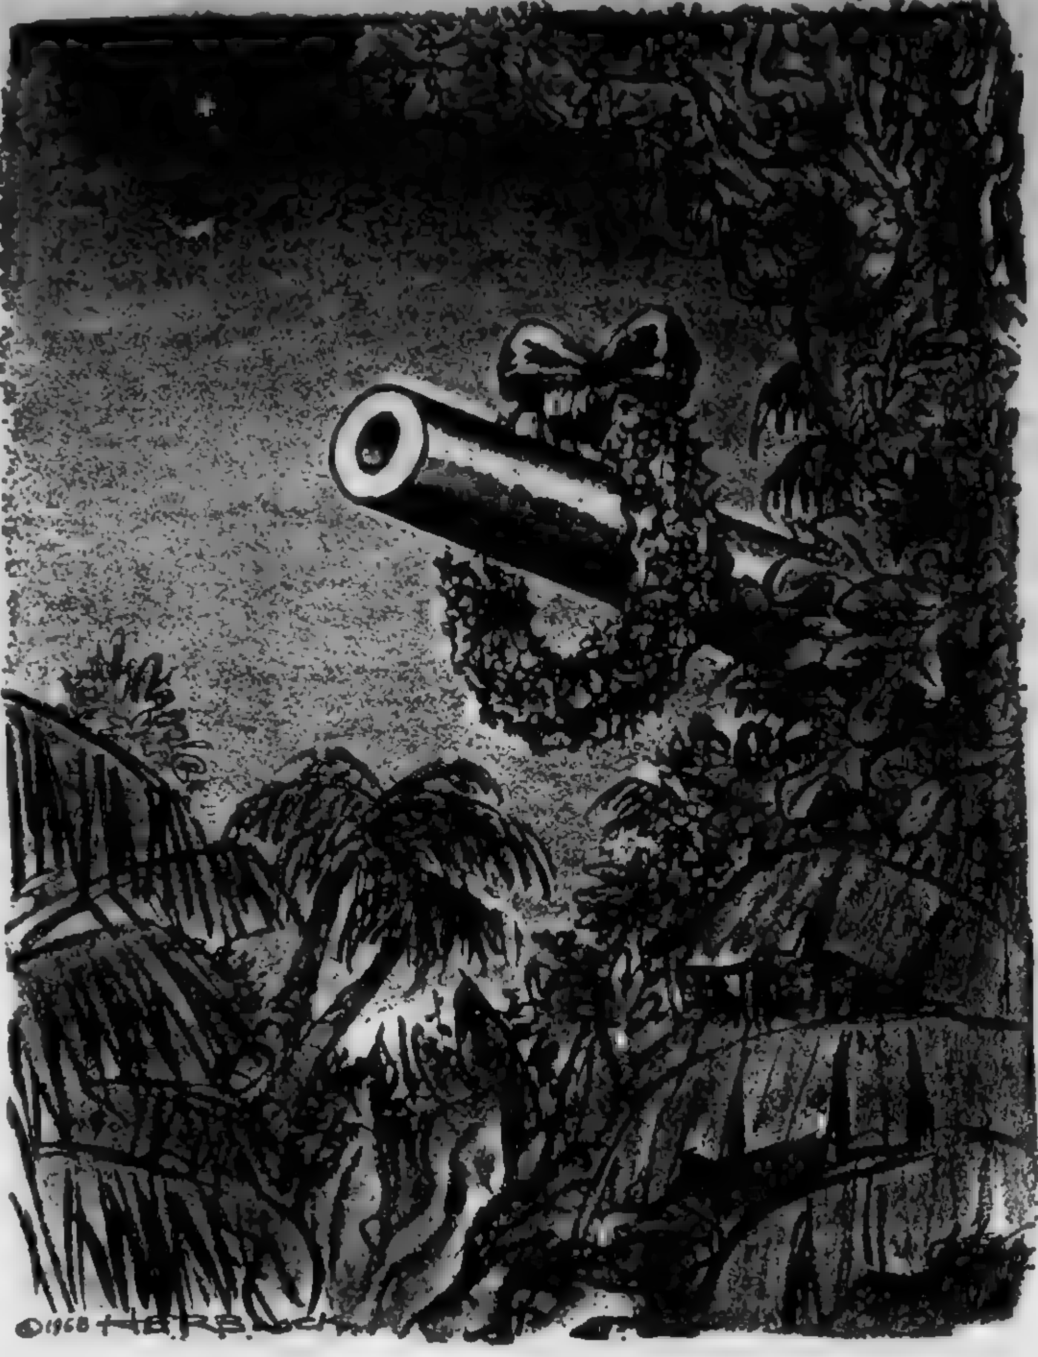
And now I belong to the family of man.

Christmas within this clan does not evoke the same nostalgic memories.

HERE WE are — really one family — split into a thousand parts, each against the other, killing, plundering, destroying, forgetting that the color of a man's skin or the political philosophy he lives by do not detract from his humanity.

Blessed are those in the family of man who know the spirit of love — which is called Christmas — all the year.

Silent Night?



Glowing Examples

By ROBERT W. REIDER

REIDER

Ray McVay, of McVay's Dari-Twist, is typical of the Greater Columbus business and civic leaders whose determination made the drive to send West High's outstanding band to the Rose Bowl such a success.

McVay operates an ice cream shop and a Christmas tree stand at 2860 Sullivant Avenue on the Hilltop.

This year he has vowed to give a portion of his gross sales to the Roses Fund. He estimates the band's "take" will average 50 cents a tree and he's projecting the sale of 2,000 trees.

If McVay reaches his goal, the campaign drive will net a neat additional $1,000 . . . a substantial and wholly unexpected contribution to this deserving cause. McVay says his money will be used by the Band to help spruce up their uniforms.

Dick Sensenbrenner, the general chairman who sparked the drive to come up with the needed $43,000, already has expressed his thanks to the entire community.

With the support of people like McVay—and dozens of merchants pitched in with comparable contributions—the drive which seemed almost insurmountable when started in September, went over the top in grand style.

Doing things like this is what makes life really worthwhile. The world could stand a few more McVays and Dick Sensenbrenners.

P.S. Merry Christmas to you . . . and you . . . and you!

Christmas Eve

By TED BEARDSHEAR

Christmas Eve, 1968, and I stand on northeast corner of the downtown bridge that spans the Scioto River.

It's a graceful bridge, arching gently over the water. Not like the spider strands of steel that weave themselves from Manhattan to Brooklyn and to Jersey . . . a graceful bridge that arches . . . a nice bridge for Columbus.

The wind is brisk as it always is in winter at that corner. And I look east and there is City Hall; nice, clean city-hallish architecture.

And I think of Mayor M. E. Sensenbrenner, with his rat-ta-tat chatter and wit, his outspoken stands on any given issue, his rages, his tears, his smiles. And I think behind that combination of politician and Bible salesman is a man who truly loves his city and wants to do right by it.

I like "Jack."

I like the city. It's been about a decade now. Born in Chicago, lived in New York . . . but raised in a small town nearby.

When I was lonely, Columbusites offered friendship.

When I was sick, Columbus had hospitals.

In a decade, there have been good times and bad. But somehow, Columbus always offered something.

We have an affair, this city and I. We know each other. We've been together a long time. We've been high and low together. And we've settled in the middle.

I learned my trade here. I ply my trade here.

I like the people here. The city is big enough for anonymity. Big enough for some culture. Big enough to find good cuisine. Big enough to produce some fine women. (Two of whom I nearly married).

Yet small enough to have the romance of "the old home town" . . . like the town in which I was reared.

On east is the tower. The "tower in a cornfield" someone once said. They don't say that any more. Downtown sports tall and modern buildings. We'll soon be a million people.

To the south are the state buildings and the Avenue of the Flags: the spacious and scenic waterfront which survives in spite of every developer who wants his piece of glass and concrete on it.

Sometimes . . . just sometimes, I think of the subways of Manhattan and the skyscrapers and the chic Fifth Avenue women and Greenwich Village and the Bowery and Chinatown and Harlem and Broadway and Wall Street and Park Avenue and Central Park and I think that maybe next year I'll go back.

Next year, I say. Every year for 10 years it's been next year.

But when you've got an affair going with one city that's pretty nice . . . the city to the east may be chicer and flashier and prettier . . . but it's hard to leave after this long.

Sort of like a man choosing between women. His wife may not have the young excitement of his secretary, but he knows his wife; he loves her; she raises the kids and keeps the house nice; she cooks well.

That secretary is exciting all right . . . but the wife? Well, the wife is home and comfort and contentment.

Christmas Eve, 1968, and I stand on the northeast corner of the downtown bridge that spans the Scioto River.

To the north is the police station. A little northwest is the old post office. A little more northwest is the penitentiary.

They don't add to the sentiment. They're cold, like the winter wind. But police and pens are part of the city.

Going on northwest is a big neon sign: a red neon sign. It's reflected in the river.

Christmas Eve, 1968. In remembering a decade, it winds up with a reminder of mortality.

The winds are colder, somehow. They seem to cut through a little more like a razor.

It's hokey, but I love this city. I wouldn't be surprised to see someone leading a cow across Broad and High Streets, but it wouldn't change how I feel about Columbus. The attitude is gratitude for Columbus.

But next year?

Ah, next year. Maybe, just maybe, I'll run off with the secretary.

From CWB

To The Editor:

Please accept our sincere thanks for the fine support you gave the Child Welfare levy renewal. In a presidential year, when time and space were really at a premium, it was gratifying to receive so much coverage and support from your organization and other news media. We consider it an outstanding example of public service.

As you know, the victory margin for the levy was narrow. We believe that the news media's handling of the campaign and the many endorsements given the levy by newspapers and broadcast stations provided that vital extra push which put it in the victory column. As a result, the Child Welfare agency will be able to carry on its important work, serving those youngsters in the community who need help.

So again, we extend our thanks for your valuable contribution. We offer them on behalf of the agency, the many volunteers who participated in the campaign and, most of all, on behalf of the children.

Mrs. Richard B. (Ann) Butler
Richard Compton
Co-Chairmen, Levy Committee

From SDEA

To The Editor:

The Scioto-Darby Education Association wishes to express its appreciation to the voters for their support at the polls Nov. 5 of the five-mill operating levy.

We also wish to thank the many persons who worked diligently for the favorable vote. Continuation of quality education in the Scioto-Darby School District is essential in the growth of our community.

Preserve The Generation Gap

By ARTHUR HOPPE

HOPPE

Herewith is another unwritten chapter from that unpublished textbook, "A History of the World, 1950-1999." Its title: "The Generation Gap—And Let's Keep It That Way."

BY 1970 the Generation Gap had widened into a chasm. Armed warfare raged on every campus. The jails overflowed with protesters. Not a child in the land thought his parents understood him. And vice versa.

A Youth Separatist Movement was formed. "We not only want to run our own schools, our own pads and our own lives," said young militants, "we want to run our own country."

On July 4, 1971, Youthland seceded from the Union—laying claim to the West Coast from the Sunset Strip to the Haight-Ashbury and the East Coast from Greenwich Village to Fort Lauderdale.

Civil war threatened. The Old Country, as it came to be called, boasted an Army of 238,673 senior officers and a stringent draft law. But as it had no one left to draft, it had no soldiers to do the fighting.

Youthland, on the other hand, had a plethora of healthy young men of draft age. But of course it had no draft laws and, consequently no army.

So the two nations dwelt in uneasy peace. And both were very happy.

"At long last, we've got a little tranquility around here," said the Oldsters happily. And they adopted vigorous legislation in favor of law and order and cheaper booze.

"At long last, we've got a little freedom around here," said the Youngsters happily. And they adopted vigorous legislation in favor of individual freedom and cheaper marijuana.

So both generations at long last had what they wanted. The Oldsters had tranquility. And the Youngsters had freedom.

But after several months, the Oldsters began dragging lethargically around frowningly, muttering testy things like, "The newspapers are certainly dull these days. There's nothing to talk about at these stupid cocktail parties. And why's it so damn quiet around here?"

And the Youngsters, to keep their hands in, still demonstrated lethargically daily. But their placards were blank. For the life of them, they couldn't think of anything to protest against. And they frowningly chanted testy things like, "Down with something or other!"

THE TWO NATIONS, recognizing the inevitable, were re-united on July 4, 1972. And, oh, what a heart-warming scene there was in every home as the father welcomed back his son.

"Let me embrace you, my boy," each father said, "as soon as you shave off that scraggly beard and get yourself a decent job."

"Shave my beard?" cried the youth, his chin up, the old adrenalin racing through his veins again. "Now don't be square, Dad. I've got a right . . ."

"Square!" shouted the father, his blood boiling, his eyes shining once more. "Listen here, you young whippersnapper . . ."

And both generations lived fully, if perhaps not happily, ever after.

'Star' Dazzling In Array Of Material

With that yearly yuletide contingent of top-notch films now being shown, Northland Cinema is not to be overlooked.

The theater celebrated the opening of "Star" last Thursday night with the Columbus Junior Theater of The Arts sponsoring the opening which was as Columbus star-studded as the film itself was Hollywood star-studded.

Those attending were interested not only in the life and times of the late Gertrude Lawrence, but also in the life of CJTA's building, as profits gained are to paid in renovating the facilities.

More pleasant work no one could ask for, as the dazzling array of sets, costumes, scenes from long ago Broadway hits, music and Julie Andrews colorfully depict a performer rich in talent and showmanship.

Yet one cannot help but realize from even the outline of the late Gertrude Lawrence's life that she was relentless and selfish in her desire to be loved by her audiences.

Miss Lawrence relished the extravagant life and by no means stopped even after she was taken to court. Her life is depicted by the use of actual interpretation as well as by the usage of news-reel type coverage enacted by the cast.

This serves to preserve time, as well as encompass the awesome activities of Gertrude Lawrence. The only fault found with this process is that no particular segment is then developed.

It is so very easy to overlook these faults for the vivid and rich sets along with the elegant and grand costumes. They invite one to longingly wish for the return of the early 1900's.

I'd gladly go back, just to take another look at the wardrobe, listen to Julie Andrews sing and to again be a part of such overall splendor. — CE

Around Town

Conducted By
ROLAND SUNKER

Now that the hustle and bustle of preparing for the holiday season is over, we can all settle back and enjoy Christmas, New Year's and the days between. The entertainment offering in Columbus during the Christmas season and for New Year's Eve is spectacular. You'll miss some fine shows and musical groups if you don't get out to your favorite spots the last week in 1968.

New Year's Eve promises to be the greatest New Year's celebration this town has experienced in many a year. There are all types of parties and celebrations planned by the local clubs, lounges and restaurants.

Many are offering packages where one price includes cover charge, food, entertainment and alcoholic beverages. The package prices range from $2 to $25 per person, depending on what is included in the package. Some clubs are not charging any cover.

In order to help you select the club or clubs where you may ring out the old and ring in the new, the Around Town Column is recommending the following places:

Back Door Lounge

Dori Di Vito, owner, is planning a swinging New Year's at the Back Door Lounge. Besides the traditional hats, horns and noisemakers, Dori will have a buffet table available for all her friends and customers. There will be no cover or minimum. Dancer Joann will help bring in the New Year.

Boathouse

A bang-up New Year's party will be held at Pat Zill's Boathouse. Providing entertainment for the festivities will be Oscar Monroe and his group, Oz and the Wizards. A more talented group you won't find anywhere. They do impersonations of most of the famous stars. Pat will have all kinds of favors, hats and horns for his customers. There will be a small cover charge.

Clock Restaurant

Buddy Cotter will be playing for the New Year's celebrants at the Clock. This is the place that will have the most community singing in town on Dec. 31. You can bet that "Should Auld Acquainance Be Forgot" will be sung about 1969 times. Besides hats, horns and favors, the traditional spareribs and sauerkraut will be served.

El Diavolo

Joni Jayne, Columbus' sexiest singer, and the Bobby Shaw Duo are going to ring in 1969 at the El Diavolo. This is one of the best groups around town and Joni is one of the most talented vocalists in the Midwest. Owner Jacki LaFon wants everyone to come to the El Diavolo's New Year's party. She'll have horns, favors and hats for all. There is no cover or minimum.

The Everglades

As always, the Everglades will have a big blast come New Year's Eve. Miss De Lois and her Music Men will swing out the old and bring in the new in "real fun type style." There will be on hand plenty of hats, horns, etc.

This is one place where you should make advance reservations. A small cover charge for this night only. By the way, let's all hope that owner Tony Deleweese will be out of the hospital by then.

Imperial House — Arlington

Host Jack Gunnery has planned a very nice New Year's party for his customers. In the ballroom of the Kings Inn, there is a party package that includes dining and dancing. Bud Hudson and his orchestra, the Note-Ables, will help you dance in the new year. The buffet offered for the evening is out of this world. It includes roast beef, prime rib of beef "Au Jus," sea food Newburg, southern fried chicken, barbecued ribs, all types of salads, relishes, desserts and the whole works.

The complete package is $8.50 per person. Make reservations now for this one. Also, in the Knaves Cave, Rusk and McGowan, that crazy musical-comedy duo, will help you celebrate the arrival of 1969.

Imperial House — North

This is where Dino's Special Gala New Year's Party is scheduled. For $25 per person you get a fabulous package that includes all of your beverages (anything you want, and as much as you want), a complete dinner with all the trimmings as only Dino knows how to prepare, dancing to TV personality Andy Launer and his Trio and at 1 a.m. a breakfast buffet. Of course, besides the usual hats, horns and noisemakers, Dino has some other surprises for you. You had better make reservations early.

Marty's La Mancha

Owner Marty Mellman is presenting a complete floor show and dining and dancing for the New Year celebrations at the La Mancha. The floor show, headlined by singer Erica Trevor, includes a comedian and other variety acts. Steve Burkey's Orchestra will provide the music for the evening. Marty will have favors, hats and horns. There's a cover charge of $3 per person.

Lincoln Lodge

Another gala New Year's party is scheduled again at the well-known West Side motel. In the ballroom, Paul and the Peppers, a really good musical group, will provide the entertainment and dance music. The New Year's package includes dinner and cover charge, and is $7.50 per person.

Foster and Ferrell will help bring in the new year in the Cocktail Lounge at the Lincoln Lodge. By the way, reservations are required for the festivities in the ballroom.

Off Broadway Theatre

Here's a really differet way to celebrate the New Year. One price includes a special showing of Off Broadway's current revue, "That's My Bag!" at 10 p.m. Also included in the package are all your drinks, champagnes, etc., snacks and the traditional paper hats, horns, leis, streamers . . . the works. It's going to be quite an evening. Make your reservations early. All admissions will be advance reservations, prepaid.

Ohio's Grand Ole Opry

Jimmy Joseph has created a swinging country and western New Year's Eve Party with an all star show and plenty of action.

Headlining the show is lovely Marti Brown, a beautiful and talented singer, who records with United Artists. On the same bill will be the well-known Homesteaders from the Grand Ole Opry.

Many other Opry stars and bands will entertain New Year's Eve. Make your reservation early if you plan to spend New Year's at Ohio's Grand Ole Opry.

The Speakeasy

Host Danny Mann has gone all out in arranging a big, gala New Year's party. There will be continuous entertain-

Dog License Deadline Set For Jan. 20, '69

The 1969 dog licenses went on sale at the Court House on Dec. 2, according to a statement made by Arch J. Warren, Franklin County Auditor. The deadline for the purchase of licenses without fine is Monday, Jan. 20.

Auditor Warren is emphasizing the time-saving convenience of using the mail-order application which appears in this paper today.

Those not having an application form can still obtain a license easily by mail. All they need do is submit a description of the dog (sex, age, color, breed, and whether it is long or short-haired), together with the owner's name and address to the Franklin County Auditor's Office, Dog License Division, Court House, Columbus, Ohio 43215, together with a self-addressed, stamped envelope and the appropriate fee.

All dogs three months or older on Jan. 1, 1969 must be licensed.

Licenses purchased on or before the Jan. 20 deadline are $2 each; thereafter, a $1 penalty is added. Kennel licenses are $10 each through the Jan. 20 deadline, after which there is an additional $5 penalty assessment.

Those purchasing tags by mail are urged to send no cash; rather, they should remit by money order or check.

Licenses are being sold at two locations: The Court House Dog License Division (Mound Street side of the Court House basement), Mound and High Streets, and the Humane Animal Shelter, 2770 Groveport Pike.

The offices of County Auditor Arch J. Warren are open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Phi Beta Kappa Includes 158 OSU Faculty, Staff

A total of 158 Ohio State University faculty and staff are members of Phi Beta Kappa.

Headed by President Novice G. Fawcett, the national scholastic honor society's list of current members at Ohio State also includes an additional 31 faculty members who have retired from teaching duties, plus 105 students.

Election to the society ranks among the highest academic honors on many American campuses.

Among various departments at Ohio State, largest number of faculty Phi Beta Kappa members are found in the English department, which has 15. History has 14, chemistry 11 and physics 10.

Election of undergraduates and recent graduates to the Ohio State chapter takes place each spring.

Candidates are chosen on the basis of scholarship and character from students in the Colleges of the Arts and Sciences.

JIM MURRAY

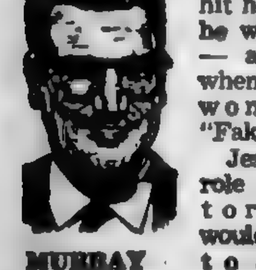
Willard – 'The White Hope'

Well, I see where the referee stopped the fight on old Jess Willard the other day.

As usual, he was still on his feet and groping for his opponent at the time.

I DON'T know whether Dempsey loaded the gloves on poor old Jess, but history did.

History kicked him, gouged him, held on the break, hit him when he was down — and then whenever he won, yelled "Fake."



MURRAY

Jess had a role in history you wouldn't give to John Wilkes Booth.

HE WAS that most pathetic of athletic figures — he was, God help him, "The White Hope."

When Dempsey got through with him he was the white heap.

They hauled old Jess off a wheat thresher in Kansas when he was almost 30 years old and told him it was his patriotic duty to restore the heavyweight championship to the white race.

JESS WAS an amiable giant at the time who hated no one and the only man he ever hit hard, he killed.

A gentle troglodyte, he never made that mistake again.

Jack Johnson sort of deeded the title over to him in a peculiar minstrel in Havana where the fight was held since Johnson's sexual exploits had been saluted by the Congress of the United States, no less, which passed a law in his honor, forbidding interstate traffic in women.

THE MOTION pictures of that fight, banned in this country as suitable for ma- audiences only (none of were available at the time, presumably), were recently uncovered in Australia.

They show that the overweight, dissipated Johnson was soundly thrashed by the stronger, better - conditioned Willard.

Unlike L'il Arthur, Jess never needed but one woman, or one suit at a time, and the only thing he took on long trips with him was his Bible.

His life was like that.

Society was constantly tying a can to his tail, and poor Jess, who was part Cherokee, ran off with a cowboy-and-Indian show for a few years, where he rode out, waved his hat, then went back and helped with the shoveling.

HE LOST his title on the banks of Maumee Bay on an Independence Day so hot (112 degrees at ringside) that the lumber in the area smouldered, ice cream stocks melted, and musicians on the rim blistered their lips on white-hot metal of cornets.

I caught up with Jess 42 years later in a bar in Montrose, at a meeting arranged by a mutual friend.

Jess was still bitter about that hot afternoon in Toledo.

"HERE," he said, snatching my hand and putting it in a dynamite-sized hole in his left temple. "Does that look to you like it was made by a gloved fist? Dempsey put that hole there with the first punch of the fight."

Floored eight times in the first round, his cheekbone crushed, his ribs caved in, unconscious at the bell, Willard, nevertheless, never again went down in the two succeeding rounds.

He had to quit when his busted ribs threatened to puncture his lung.

HE COULDN'T breathe. His seconds and his manager had deserted him by that time, and his eyes were swollen so shut a spectator had to lead him to the dressing room.

Willard bitterly assailed Dempsey's manager, Doc Kearns, the day I met him.

Kearns, he said, kept pulling false fire alarms outside his training quarters in Toledo at all hours of the night, awakened him with phony telephone calls, bribed his handlers, and even tried to doctor his food.

NO GESTURE of appeasement ever abated his wrath.

Dempsey even hired him once to push Dempsey's brand of liquor in a series of Florida bars.

After Jess would set up a round for the house (on Jack) he would then proceed to denounce his boss and rehash the story of the loaded glove.

HE NEVER forgave nor forgot.

He died as he had lived. Stubborn, fierce, suspicious—an orphan of sports.

Dying, he broke out of the hospital, doubtless feeling the medics were loading their punches.

THEY'RE saluting Jack Johnson on Broadway in a play sardonically called "The Great White Hope."

Even posthumously, old Jess still gets to play the antihero, a man betrayed by history, caught between two legends.

'Fearless' Predictions

The "Fearless One" rolled up a 20-6 outing last week, missing a couple of real tight ones.

That ups his all-games record to a hot 72-18 for a torrid .800 clip thus far.

HIGHLIGHTS

Ohio State is the Harmon National Champion for 1968 with Penn State finishing in the runner-up position. In last year's final ratings, Penn State was 10th, the Buckeyes were 28th. With an average power quotient of 104.7, there was more football POWER jammed into the Top Twenty Teams this year than in any other year. And no less than fourteen of these teams are involved in Bowl Games which should make for some of the finest post-season entertainment football fans have ever enjoyed.

The biggest mover among the top powers was Florida State. The Seminoles clobbered North Carolina State, Wake Forest, and Houston in their final three games to move from almost nowhere into the No. 10 spot in the final ratings.

Just a note about the ratings of the Top Forty Teams: Please keep in mind that a team's rating is based on the AVERAGE of its performance against ALL opposition through the entire season. A team's won and lost record has no bearing on its national position. Calibre of competition is a major factor in determining a team's rating.

For the third consecutive year, the powerful Southeast Conference ranks Number One among the more than 55 football conferences in the country. However, they just nosed out the strong Big Eight Conference which moved from 5th place last year to the runner-up spot in 1968.

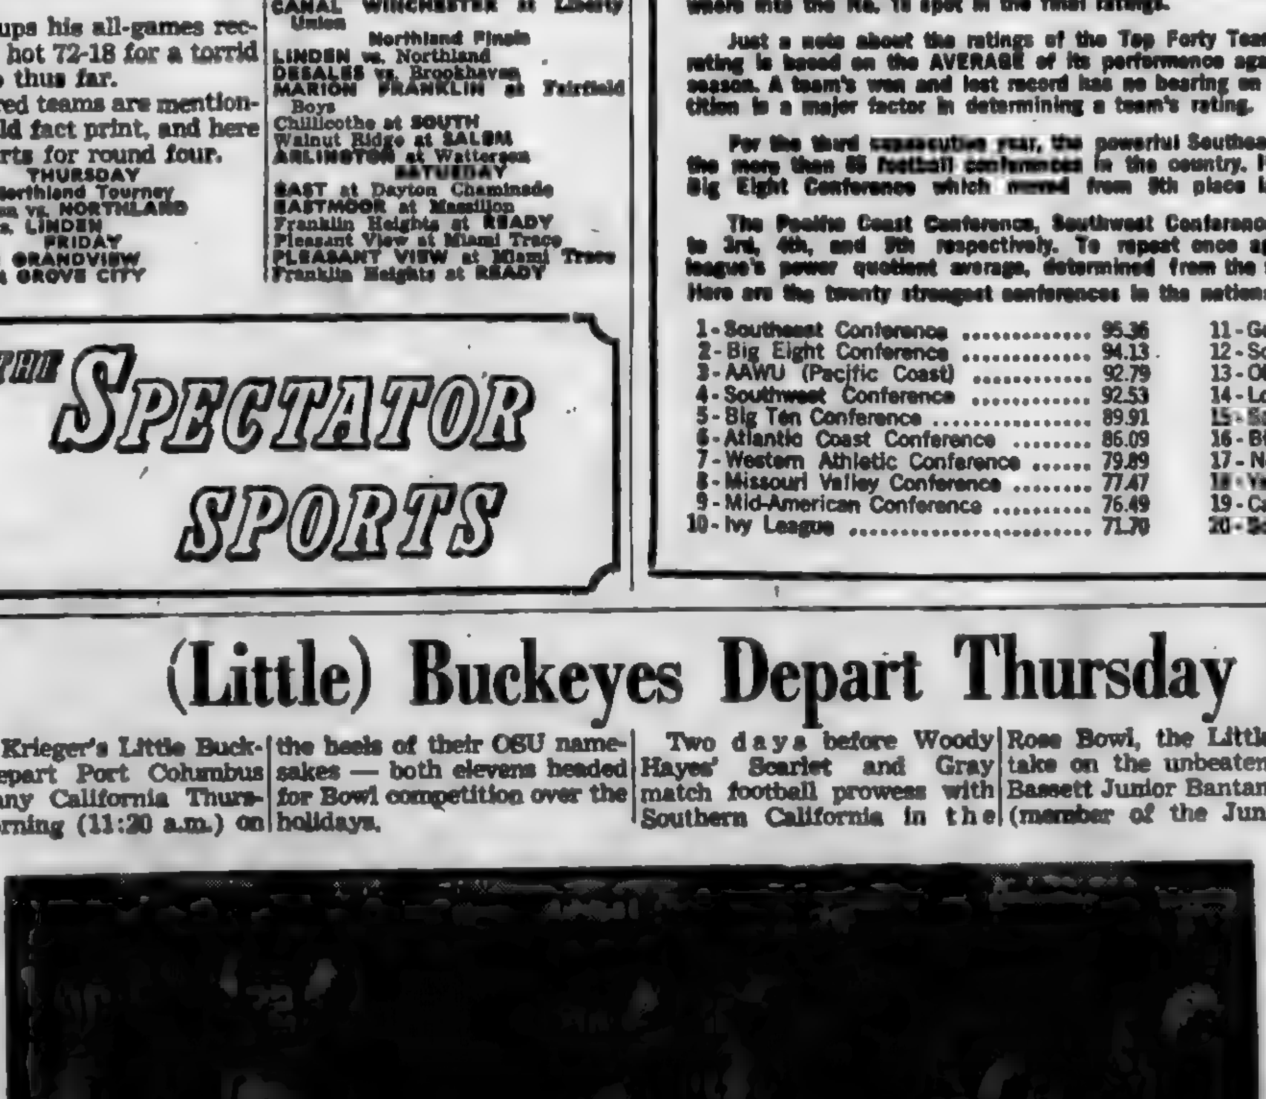
The Pacific Coast Conference, Southwest Conference, and Big Ten each dropped a notch to 3rd, 4th, and 5th respectively. To repeat once again: These ratings are based on each league's power quotient average, determined from the ratings of all teams in every conference. Here are the twenty strongest conferences in the nation:

1 - Southeast Conference	95.36	11 - Gulf States Conference	70.10
2 - Big Eight Conference	94.13	12 - Southland Conference	64.68
3 - AAWU (Pacific Coast)	92.79	13 - Ohio Valley Conference	63.61
4 - Southwest Conference	92.53	14 - Lone Star Conference	63.15
5 - Big Ten Conference	89.91	15 - Southern Conference	62.60
6 - Atlantic Coast Conference	86.09	16 - Big Sky Conference	59.42
7 - Western Athletic Conference	79.89	17 - North Central Conference	54.66
8 - Missouri Valley Conference	77.47	18 - Yankee Conference	53.25
9 - Mid-American Conference	76.49	19 - Calif. Collegiate Athletic Ass'n	52.52
10 - Ivy League	71.70	20 - Southwestern Athletic Conference	50.74

(Little) Buckeyes Depart Thursday For Bowl

Tom Krieger's Little Buckeyes depart Port Columbus for sunny California Thursday morning (11:20 a.m.) on the heels of their OSU namesakes — both elevens headed for Bowl competition over the holidays.

Two days before Woody Hayes' Scarlet and Gray match football prowess with Southern California in the Rose Bowl, the Little Bucks take on the unbeaten (10-0) Bassett Junior Bantam eleven (member of the Junior All-American Football Federation of Southern California) in the "Little Rose Bowl" (8 p.m., Dec. 30, at La Puente High School Stadium).



"THE STOPPERS"—This is the defensive unit the 1968 Little Buckeyes hope will hold its opposition at bay Dec. 30 when the local gridders compete in the "Little Rose Bowl" in California. Left to right (down position) are: tackle Ken Ham, guard Chip Jakeway, guard Jack Spring and tackle Joe Schieppl Standing: end Mike Keeney, linebacker John Wirthman, linebacker Jeff Hutchison, halfback Rick Ellis, linebacker Don Callander, halfback Tom McKelvey and end Ron Gorman.

IN SIX years, the Little Buckeyes have compiled 56 straight victories (including four Bowl titles, two in Florida, one in Hawaii) — totaling 2,381 points and yielding but five TDs to the opposition.

Before Thursday's departure, the well-traveled eleven had logged more than 20,000 airmiles over the past four years.

Following their arrival in Los Angeles at 3 p.m., the team will set up arrangements for three days of full-dress workouts besides tours of the Universal Movie Studios and the August-Bush Gardens.

FOLLOWING THE Bowl game, the team will journey to the Disneyland Hotel which will serve as "home" for the Little Bucks until their departure for Columbus at 8 a.m. on Jan. 4 (home arrival scheduled for 6:13 p.m.).

WITH MUDDY SHOES

After the crunch of shopping and the bloat of over enjoyment is over, there remains a wonderful part of the holiday season to be enjoyed all by yourself.

That is the looking through cards and rememberances from near and far and remembering back to wonderful outdoor adventures.

MY MAILMAN was kind enough this year to fetch many, many cards with unusual names at points of origination.

Take for instance, Kenogaming.

Hard to say but much harder to forget after you have skimmed its surface in search of moose, bear and walleye.

EIGHTEEN torturous miles of deep, cold water north of Sudbury, Ontario. The only permanent building are those of the Lehner family — John, Christine and their two fine sons, Fred and Henry.

From the first of May until the last of September, these hardy people make a wonderfully comfortable base of operations for scores of hunters and fishermen.

Almost never are the visitors disappointed in their take. And why should they be? The camp sets in the middle of hundreds of miles of Canadian wilderness — unmarred by pitchfork or pollution.

I HAVE hunted and fished their back country twice and both times, I knew I had been in God's Country.

Just when I felt I had seen and done everything possible to see and do, John or the boys would pack me off to another hidden lake or bear stand.

The problem, of course, is in the leaving. One could gladly forget about the return to civilization and work happily from room 'n board if not for the family and friends back in Ohio.

THE LEHNERS "winter" in Toronto, keeping up to date on their correspondence and starting to set calendar dates for the coming season.

Just on the outside chance you are looking forward to a spring bear hunt, good fishing trips during the summer or moose in the fall, I strongly suggest dropping a line to John Lehner (Camp Kenogaming, Mile 112, C.N.R. Sudbury, Ont.).

It's been four years since I have been up to the area but I understand that those I've sent up say that the fishing and hunting are getting better rather than worse.

SHOULD this column sound too much like an advertisement, forgive me but I'm completely sold on those opportunities.

So many times, an outdoorsman hears of a 'good' spot, only to go ahead and spend his money finding the location is rotten, the lodgings bad or the cooking lousy.

I can assure, the food is outstanding, the new cabins with hot showers and the well-equipped boat livery are all one could ask.

LOOK AHEAD a bit and plan a week off this summer, drop John a note and ask for his rates and folder.

You may either drive to Sudbury and take the train, making sure the camp knows when to expect you.

OR YOU may fly AIR CANADA to Timmons and take a pontoon plane into the bush.

Either way, you get to see magnificent country.

Hearty Ho-Ho's are for Bob West and his 300 — 775 at Amos. Of course, he averages 204 in two leagues so was due to hit big.

This was the third perfecto for Columbus this season and second high series (Dan Shepard and Ed Thomas share 300's and Bill Gaynes had a 785).

BLANKS are also available for the second annual City Match - Game Championships Jan. 25-26 and Feb. 1-2.

Rainbow and Wink-O will split the first weekend for the men and women with Holiday hosting the match game finals.

Top prize for the men is $250, trophy, paid entry and expense money to the National BPAA All-Star May 3-9 in Hialeah, Fla. Second place among the men receives $150, paid entry and expense money.

No. 1 among the women gets $150, trophy, paid entry and expenses. Second place award is $100, entry fee and expenses.

ENTRIES ($35) close Jan. 22.

South High Chapter of DECA is sponsoring its fourth annual Headpin Tournament at Berwick Lanes Jan. 11 through Feb. 2, from noon until 11 p.m. each Saturday and Sunday.

Entry fee is $1 adults, 75 cents for students and limited to men 190 and under, women 170 and under, bantams up to 12, juniors 13 through 18.

TOP PRIZE is $50 for men and women — students receiving only trophies for first three places.

There's still over a month to sign up and 3045 five-woman teams have entered the 50th WIBC Championship Tournament scheduled for San Diego, Calif., Apr. 3-May 26.

Largest number of entries ever was 6094 in the 1967 event at Rochester, N. Y.

EIGHT teams from Columbus are part of the 64 already signed up from Ohio. California (naturally) leads with 1333 entries.

Jan. 16 is the beginning of the four-day meet for the 128 members of the Professional Women's Bowling Association—in a $15,000 tourney at Canton's Hall of Fame Lanes.

clude the full run of Disneyland and excursions to Marineland and Knotts Berry Farm.

Also included in the itinerary is attendance at both the Parade of Roses and Rose Bowl game on Jan. 1.

DIRECTOR Krieger is hopeful that two special meetings with President-elect Richard Nixon and comedian Bob Hope can also be arranged for the team.

Highlights of the Little Buckeyes' California trip and Bowl game will be shown on WLW-C on Jan. 7 (7 p.m.).

ALL'S FORGIVEN

Christmas in Czechoslovakia marks the ending of all quarrels and the start of a new year among friends. Thus it is customary to visit friends and foes to forgive any misunderstandings that may have taken place during the year. Still current is the legend that St. Nick descends from a golden cord, escorted by an angel dressed in white.

LET PRAYER BRING YOU PEACE

When family or business problems seem beyond solution . . . when the worries and turmoil of daily life bring pressures beyond the bearable . . .
Quiet meditation and prayer offer solace and respite . . . an opportunity to reappraise day-to-day circumstance in light of scripture . . . to seek guidance of a greater power. Whatever your faith...whatever your beliefs...worship this week, and let prayer bring you peace.

'Candy' Produces 'That Stuffy Feeling'

Remember that stuffy feeling that always follows a bout of consuming a huge amount of candy?

That is precisely the feeling I had during and after viewing University City Cinema and Loew's Ohio's grand finale of 1968, "Candy."

I kept thinking, maybe, if I were a man or if I had at least read the book "Candy," upon which this movie is based, enjoyment would have resulted.

As it stands, having now seen the film, I really do not care to take the time to read the book. As for being a woman . . . I really don't mind, except why must women always take the blame?

As best as I can make of it, "Candy" is a photographic escapade which is fused with comedy and a cast reading like a male's who's who in filmdom.

The comedy is an attempt at deploying an absurd content into a humorous facade and it fails miserably. The escapade is an insane sex venture furthered by absurdity on film by such colossal bits of humor as an operation performed with an audience of first nighters dressed as if they were attending an opera.

Simply the story concerns "Candy," a walking "giver" of herself. Her father, uncle, a guru, a poet, a physician, a virgin, a hunchback a commander of an airplane . . . all take part.

Appearing in these roles are John Astin, Richard Burton, Marlon Brando, Ringo Starr, Walter Matthau, John Huston, Charles Aznavour and James Coburn. Obviously they have chosen to appear in the film because of the fun of it and nothing more.

As for "Candy," Miss Ewa Aulin . . . reclines, sits and stands through every moment of "giving" with style . . . even if she is only 16.

Actually the best part of the film is waiting to see which actor portrays which man and who gets the candy in the most direct and quickest manner.

This giving and taking involves the total film . . . thusly my feeling of stuffiness, enough is enough and "Candy" is enough.

Anyway "Candy" has arrived, is staying and is giving; if one approaches viewing with a mature mind and is not a prude and has a broad sense of humor . . . something can be taken away. —CE

Curt Meeks To Direct Curtain Players

Meeks

His credits list him as performing at Gallery Players, Village Little Theater, Independent Players, Players Club, Stadium Theater, Capital University and Playhouse On The Green.

Meeks remarks that Tennessee Williams' serious comedy "concerns two marriages at points of acute crisis. One couple has just broken up after six years together. The other has not been able to come to terms in one day of wedlock. Both couples are living through a period of adjustment. The play examines the sources of the crisis."

Tryouts will be held Jan. 3 and 4 at 8 p.m., State Savings Bank, Westerville and Schrock Roads.

'Bullitt' 3-D Suspense Fare

For excitement, suspense, action and Steve McQueen, a nail-biting detective story and blood splattered murders, the place to head is RKO Palace or Cinema East. The title for all of this is "Bullitt."

"Bullitt" is a 3-D involvement as one "Frank Bullitt" tracks down the unknown person or persons responsible for professionally killing a potential witness which he and two fellow poicemen are guarding.

Three-D movies were some years ago touted as the means by which viewers could experience being in on the action by wearing a special type of glasses.

Well, believe me, I experienced the sickness at the sight of blood. My stomach turned over during a chase scene on the streets of San Francisco; my heart pounded loud and clear when "Bullitt" was creeping around corners crawling under airplanes, and when the end came I sighed a sigh of relief as the murderer got his due.

Detective story buffs are in for a real treat. Fans of Steve McQueen are in for a bigger treat. Nothing wrong with this film . . . except that we now must wait for another "Bullitt" release.

Believe me, you don't need 3-D glasses for this. Rough and tough Steve McQueen and his crew will take very good care of you. — CE

LTOB Audittions Dated; 'Bonus' Musical Starts Jan. 3

Auditions for Little Theatre Off Broadway's second major production of the season, "Send Me No Flowers," will be held Sunday, Jan. 5, at 2 p.m. at LTOB's playhouse, 3651 Broadway, Grove City.

The popular comedy has parts for four women and eight men.

Production dates for the play, the second of five planned in LTOB's first season in its new playhouse, will be Feb. 21, 22, 23, 28 and March 1.

Three "bonus" shows are planned at LTOB, to be presented by touring groups from other Columbus-area community theaters. The first of these "bonus" shows is the musical revue "Look for the Joke."

"Disillusionment . . . that's what love is," states the comedy song in "Look for the Joke," the musical revue scheduled at Grove City's Little Theatre Off Broadway, 3651 Broadway, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 3-4-5.

Tickets may be reserved by calling 875-5110.

MAKE A WREATH

To make a wreath use a wire hoop or coat hanger bent into a circle. Wire pine needles to the hoop with short pieces of wire. Add pine needles until the foundation wreath is at least two inches deep. Then wire on pieces of evergreen and berries.
